Final Tribute To Johnson

Nixon At Services In Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The City of Washington said its final farewell today to Lyndon Baines Johnson. The body of the former President —eulogized as the "tall man with giant character" —was then taken home for burial in the Pedernales River country of Texas he loved.

Thousands of everyday Americans paid their respects to the dead 36th President as he lay in state at the Capitol rotunda. Hundreds of dignitaries and friends —and former foes —led by President Nixon then attended funeral services in the capital city's final tribute to the 36th President.

As funeral speaker, W. Marvin Watson, a longtime adviser to Johnson, said of his lifelong friend: "History will record that in the seventh decade of the 20th century, America had Lyndon Johnson when he was needed,"

At the conclusion of the one-hour funeral, Johnson's body was taken through quiet city streets filled with bright sunshine and cold shadow to Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland for return to Texas aboard the same plane on which he took the presidential oath Nov. 22, 1963.

At the rites at the National City Christian Church, the pastor, Dr. George R. Davis, said in invocation: "We have come here to celebrate sunrise. Often we have walked to the mournful sound of muffled drums. We come here to celebrate to the glorious trumpets of God."

Davis took as the theme for the sermon to his former parishioner the Old Testament words: "When after the death of Moses, the Lord, God, called forth Joshua to lead the nation."

He said the former President had many of the qualities of Moses —"the hardness of discipline ... sitting on top of a volcano you didn't create, trying to control it."

Watson, whose voice broke at the end of his eulogy, said: "He was a tall man of giant character and when he committed himself, he committed himself totally. And he asked his countrymen to do the same.

"In victory, he taught us to be magnanimous. In defeat, he taught us to be without hate — to learn, to rally, to accept the challenge and to try again."

Johnson's widow, Lady Bird, sat erect and unfaltering in a pew across the aisle from Nixon and his family as black opera star Leontyne Price sang "Take My Hand, Precious Lord" and "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Police said 40,000 Americans passed by Johnson's flagdraped coffin as he lay in state in the vaulted rotunda of the Capitol where he began his political career in the 1930's as a protege of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

At least 3,000 more gathered outside the church as government dignitaries, a group of foreign representatives and scores of personal and political friends arrived for the funeral.

Joining President and Mrs. Nixon at the funeral was Mamie Eisenhower, widow of another President.

Johnson's final resting place is a plot under a huge, live oak in the family cemetery at the

Hawkins Resigns Position

By PAT PERRY

Wilber D. Hawkins, superintendent of the Tamalpais High School District resigned last night.

The 42-year-old administrator will continue as a "consultant" to trustees at his full salary of $33,000 a year until June 30, with his former duties assumed by Asst. Supt. Robert D. Torrey, according to Robert W. Corlett, district board president.

Three of the five board members — Corlett, Bette Wallace and Jerrold M. Ladar — had requested Hawkins to resign in a series of recent closed meetings. Trustees Frank L. Miller and David D. Ring vigorously opposed the firing.

Immediately after Hawkins announced his resignation at a special session, Miller and Ring launched into an angry diatribe against fellow trustees, claiming Hawkins's ouster resulted from "intrigue and maneuvering behind the scenes."

Ring, white with fury, read a long statement to the audience predicting that lack of district leadership would help two teachers' unions gain control of the district.

Hawkins's unpopularity with the unions was due to his efforts to hold salary increases down, said Ring.

Miller declared himself "outraged" at the "star chamber activity" of Mrs. Wallace, Corlett and Ladar in forcing the superintendent to quit.

"He is being fired for essentially minor and petty reasons," said Miller, "each of them personal to one of the three trustees involved."

One of the principal reasons for Hawkins's ouster reportedly was his recent action in approving $5,000 in district reserve funds to remodel and furnish the office of Lawrence Sheppard, Tamalpais High School educational leader, without board approval. Trustees later ordered the room stripped and as much of the furniture returned as possible.

Ring conceded that "the Tam furniture affair was a fiasco," but said "in a system like this it would be surprising indeed if nothing ever went wrong."

And Miller said the episode's importance had to be compared to the district's multimillion dollar operation.

Whether Hawkins's resignation is final was open to question today, depending perhaps on the outcome of the April 17 school board elections.

Ring, Corlett and Ladar are up for reelection, and it is certain that campaigns will be conducted on the issue.

Ring and Miller last night called for candidates to replace all three of the incumbents whose terms are expiring, Ring adding that he'll run again if only two "able" candidates surface.

Miller, whose term doesn't expire until 1975, said he will

Marin To Get Disaster Aid

Reagan Orders Help In Recent Flooding

By JEFF GREER

Gov. Ronald Reagan proclaimed Marin and San Luis Obispo counties to be emergency areas yesterday as a result of flood damage suffered last week.

The proclamation had been requested by boards of supervisors in the counties.

Reagan's action means that Marin County property owners will be able to apply for property tax relief for flood damage to homes or businesses. The Bolinas Public Utility District also will be able to seek special legislation for rebuilding its storm-damaged water system under the state Emergency Flood Relief Act.

Flood damage victims in Marin — and particularly Novato — may learn tonight what tax relief and financial help will be available under the governor's action and under federal programs.

A public question and answer session will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Olive School, 629 Plum Street, Novato.

The session will be sponsored by the Novato Flood Control Zone Advisory Board and the City of Novato, according to Charles E. Murphy, county flood control engineer.

Although today has been declared a national day of mourning, Murphy said he had asked local, state and federal disaster and assistance officials to attend the meeting to answer public questions.

Spokesmen for the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, Small Business Administration, Farm and Home Administration, state Office of Emergency Services and the county disaster office were invited, Murphy said.

Meanwhile, final estimates of damage to public facilities and roads in Marin County were reported by Frank E. Kirby, county emergency services coordinator.

He said the Marin total was $907,910, not including private property and residential damage. The public damage total was compiled by state and local engineers and other experts, Kirby said.

A week after the storm troubles, figures still were sketchy on damage to private property, Kirby reported. He said only Novato had provided any firm figures.

Novato City Mgr. Charles A. Brown reported to Kirby that homes in Novato suffered about $113,500 damage, and business property about $29,500 damage.

Kirby appealed to property owners in other cities to work with their city officials in compiling private property damage estimates. He said that the Marin Chapter of the American National Red Cross had found damage to 329 homes and businesses countywide, mostly in Novato.

Homeowners or businessmen should obtain private contractors' cost estimates on mudslide removal, replacement of warped floors or repair of any other damage, and give the information to their city's administrators, Kirby urged. He said he will check daily with all cities to obtain new damage reports, and forward them to state and federal agencies that may offer assistance.

Lawrence Weinstein of Mill Valley, a volunteer who has been assisting Kirby and state officials in estimating storm damage, added yesterday that property owners who suffered damage also should send repair estimates by certified mail to the Small Business Administration, attention of the disaster Program Manager, Room 15451, 450 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco 94102. The information should include the damage victim's telephone number and address.

Weinstein said a copy of the damage estimate and aid request also should go to the property owner's city or the county emergency services office.

Weinstein warned that President Richard M. Nixon has not yet acted to authorize SBA assistance to Marin County property owners, so the office technically cannot act yet.

The state Office of Emergency Services has loaned two water purification units and pumps, plus four 3,000-gallon storage tanks to the Bolinas Public Utility District, according to an announcement from H. R. Temple Jr., state director of OES. The loan of the equipment for up to 90 days will enable the district to complete repairs expected to cost $116,200, to the community's water system.

Cambodia To Join Peace Efforts

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Cambodian Prime Minister Hang Tun Hak said today all offensive operations would be halted against Communist forces in Cambodia following implementation of the Vietnam cease-fire. (See other stories, page 5.)

As the world awaited the silencing of the guns when the cease-fire begins in Vietnam Saturday at 7 p.m. EST, President Nguyen Van Thieu said South Vietnam might hold "one-man, one-vote" elections within six months if the agreement proves effective.

Thieu did not specify what offices would be at stake.

Hak did not set a specific date for cessation of offensive operations, and he said defensive actions would continue.

Hak's statements in Phnom Penh to UPI and Thieu's in Saigon to a meeting of police officers came as the United States took the first steps to end its long, costly role in Indochina. Looking ahead to the cease-fire, the United States stopped virtually all troop shipments to Vietnam, ordered the clearing of North Vietnam's mined harbors and made plans to aid returning American prisoners of war.

Hak told UPI the halt in his government's offensive operations was intended "to prove our good will and to allow the North Vietnamese to withdraw in peace." In the meantime, he said, "We will of course continue defensive operations."

U.S. military intelligence sources estimate that the Cambodian government has no control over about 75 per cent of Cambodian territory and less than 40 per cent of the population.

Under terms of the Vietnam peace agreement, all foreign troops are to be withdrawn from both Laos and Cambodia and neither nation is to be used as a base for moving troops or munitions into Vietnam.

In Paris, North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh arrived today for Saturday's signing of the cease-fire pact and was mobbed by hundreds of Vietnamese carrying flowers and chanting "Vietnam has triumphed."

He told an airport news conference that his government and the Viet Cong would abide fully by the terms of the accord and hoped the other parties to it would do the same. In the 60 days after the agreement takes effect, the United States is committed to withdrawal of all its remaining troops in South Vietnam and the Communists are supposed to release nearly 600 American prisoners.

The basic details of the steps taken to implement the agreement are these:

—The Pentagon canceled all military orders for assignments to Vietnam "effective immediately." Spokesmen said the order will virtually stop the flow of U.S. military personnel to Vietnam and that only a few "specially skilled personnel" will be sent during the 60 days.

—The U.S. Navy was ordered to prepare mine sweeping task forces to be sent to clear North Vietnamese harbors Saturday night when the cease-fire goes into effect. The mines were put in place in May when Nixon ordered a bombing campaign against North Vietnam.

—Plans were advanced to receive U.S. prisoners. American negotiator Henry A. Kissinger said Wednesday the first prisoners would fly out of Hanoi aboard a U.S. Air Force jet within 15 days after the cease-fire agreement is signed and that they would be released in four equal segments about 15 days apart over the 60-day period. Lists of the Americans held captive are to be provided during the signing of the accords in Paris Saturday.

In addition, the United States and North Vietnam announced that a force of 1,160 men from Canada, Hungary, Indonesia and Poland will police the peace, starting their move into South Vietnam within 48 hours after the truce.

Job Changes Nothing New For Tam Superintendent

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Changing jobs will not be new for Wilber D. Hawkins, who resigned last night as superintendent of Tamalpais High School District.

Hawkins has served in six school districts since he entered teaching in 1956. He remained eight years in Temple City Unified School District in Los Angeles County, but not all eight years on the same job. While there he advanced from elementary school principal to assistant superintendent.

His stay in Tamalpais High School District, which he joined for the 1970-71 school year, will be his second longest on one job.

Hawkins is highly regarded by administrators who served with him in Temple City and in Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School District, from which he came to Marin. Two of them interviewed by the Independent-Journal expressed surprise at his troubles here.

His personnel record still on file in Temple City shows that Hawkins' first job was as an elementary school teacher in Torrance in 1956-57. After two years there, he moved to Ventura, again as a teacher — the only time until coming to Marin that he served outside Los Angeles County.

After a year in Ventura, Hawkins took a job as an elementary school assistant principal in Redondo Beach. After a year there, he went to Temple City as an elementary school principal. In 1964, he was advanced to director of elementary education, and the following

Marin City Gets Funds For Recreation Center

The Marin City Community Services District said yesterday it has obtained federal funds to construct a swimming pool, park and recreational area in the community.

Daniel Winters, executive director of the district, said the Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved a $110,800 grant for the project, which will include a 40-by-75-foot pool and a wading pool for children.

The pools, along with bath houses, restrooms, dressing rooms and courts for table tennis, shuffleboard, badminton and volley ball, will be capable of handling 500 persons a day, Winters said.

The park and picnic area — for which $36,000 has been allocated — will contain barbecue pits, picnic tables, children's play equipment and an open pavillion designed for use by the community's senior citizens.

The pool and park will be located on Drake Avenue adjacent to the Marin City police and fire station.

Winters said Lee Andrew Johnson, the district's building superintendent, and youths from the community had cleaned up the area last summer, to make it a feasible site for the recreational project.

No Let-Up In Vietnam Action

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. warplanes striking throughout South Vietnam and the heaviest Communist shelling in nearly a month spelled no let-up on either side today with an official Vietnam cease-fire less than three days away.

Neither U.S. nor South Vietnamese officials made any secret of their intent to keep fighting until the cease-fire takes effect at 8 a.m. Sunday (7 p.m. est Saturday).

"Until Sunday we'll do anything we want to," said a Vietnamese official. "There has been no change in mission," said a ranking U.S. officer.

UPI correspondent Alan Dawson said North Vietnamese gunners fired 4,000 artillery and mortar shells on South Vietnamese paratroops and marines between sunset Wednesday and sunrise today near the destroyed city of Quang Tri, 435 miles north of Saigon. It was the heaviest shelling this month anywhere in South Vietnam.

U.S. command spokesmen said 298 jet fighter-bombers and 90 B52 bombers hit Communist positions in South Vietnam in the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today. It was the first time the fighter-bomber raids dipped below 300 since President Nixon halted the bombing of North Vietnam Jan. 15.

A South Vietnamese ranger convoy ran over two mines in close succession in Quang Ngai province, 300 miles north of Saigon today, military sources said. They said four soldiers were killed and 16 wounded.

In other fighting, military sources said North Vietnamese 82mm mortar shells killed two men and wounded five in a 30-round attack today on a government position 25 miles northwest of Saigon near Ben Cat.

Rumors of around-the-clock curfews for South Vietnamese cities as the cease-fire approaches have been spreading for days and the first such curfew was announced today. To no one's surprise, it was for Binh Dinh Province in the Coastal Highlands, which statistically has always been the least "pacified" of South Vietnam's 44 provinces.

VOLCANO BLOWS ITS TOP

War Efforts Tied To Pentagon Papers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Secret files removed by Daniel Ellsberg contained information about American spy operations that could have aided North Vietnam in changing its stragegy and tactics in the war, the jury was told Wednesday at the Pentagon Papers trial.

Brig. Gen. Paul Gorman said the documents gave an insight into operations of the Central Intelligence Agency, information on American strategic planning and a means for Hanoi to check on how effective its own counter intelligence agents had been. Some U.S. agents were identified by name, Gorman said.

Gorman said that although the Pentagon Papers dealt with the period only up to 1967, the information still could have been of value in 1969 when Ellsberg removed them from the offices of the Rand Corp., on contract with the Pentagon as a "think tank." The papers were not published in the press until 1971.

Before the one day recess, U.S. District Judge Matt Byrne sternly warned government attorney David R. Nissen that he expected to have before him today a reported formal study made by a task force into whether the Pentagon Papers had indeed endangered national security.

A government witness, Frank Bartimo, assistant general counsel to the Secretary of Defense, mentioned such a study and the judge ordered him to submit it to the court. Nissen failed to produce the report Wednesday and Byrne was obviously irritated.

Coincidentally, excerpts of the Pentagon Papers detailing how the United States got enmeshed in the Vietnam War were flashed on a huge screen before the jury as Washington officials were explaining how the nation is getting out.

Death Toll Lowered In Jet Crash

AMMAN (UPI) — Jordanian National ALIA Airlines today issued conflicting death toll figures in Monday's 707 jetliner crash that would make the accident no longer the worst aviation disaster on record.

When the plane crashed at Kano, Nigeria, aviation officials in the Nigerian capital of Lagos said 180 of the 202 persons aboard were killed. That would have made it history's worst airline accident.

But ALIA officials today said "not more than 156" persons were killed. That would be 20 less than the previous record of 176 who died in the Oct. 13 crash of a Soviet Aeroflot jetliner near Moscow Airport.

ALIA officials today cited faulty landing gear as the main cause of the crash.

Haitian Terrorists Ask Mexico Asylum

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Authorities said today they will consider asylum requests from three Haitians who won the release of 12 political prisoners and obtained $70,000 in ransom by releasing two U.S. diplomats they held in Port Au Prince.

The Haitian government paid the ransom to the three kidnapers, one of them a woman, in Port Au Price after they released on the steps of the aircraft U.S. Ambassador Clinton E. Knox, 64, one of the State Departments's highest ranking black career diplomats, and Consul Ward Christensen, 53. Neither man was harmed.

The kidnapers and the freed prisoners arrived in Mexico City late Wednesday.

The three held Knox and Christensen at gunpoint throughout the night Tuesday and demanded freedom for 31 political prisoners and $500,000 ransom in exchange for their release. They settled for 12 prisoners, $70,000 and transportation to Mexico.

On arrival Wednesday night, none of the 15 would say which members of the group were the kidnapers.

Tentative Pact

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Negotiators announced a tentative settlement early today in the Chicago teachers strike which has closed the city's public schools to more than 560,000 students since Jan. 10.

Formal talks between the 25,000-member Chicago Teachers Union and the school board had broken off Tuesday morning, but CTU President Robert Healey admitted the two sides had been meeting behind closed doors since Wednesday night.

The settlement must be approved by the full school board before going to the union for ratification, but Healey was optimistic and said classes could resume tomorrow.

Nixon Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will submit to Congress Monday a federal budget totaling between $268 and $269 billion for the 1974 fiscal year, administration officials said today.

The budget will be the first explicit affirmation of Nixon's reported intention to wipe out a number of the "Great Society" programs left over from the Johnson era, including the Office of Economic Opportunity which conducts the war on poverty.

Election Set

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The military officers ruling Argentina said yesterday the March presidential election will take place as scheduled, but that this does not mean a full return to civilian democracy.

President Alejandro Lanusse announced an extension of a state of siege which suspends many civil rights.

Boycott Asked

BELFAST (UPI) — All Roman Catholic political parties called last night for a boycott of a forthcoming British referendum on the future of Northern Ireland, calling it dangerous and a "futile exercise."

A bomb planted in a car in the town of Portadown early today exploded and wounded at least three persons, an army spokesman said.

The referendum is scheduled March 8.

Span Approach Crash Kills Two

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two persons were killed last night in a fiery three-car crash on the Golden Gate Bridge approach — a controversial stretch of road which 18 months ago claimed the lives of nine persons in a similar collision.

California Highway Patrol officers today identified one of the dead as Palmyra M. Deitz of Daly City, a passenger in an auto driven by her husband, Giles, 68, who remains in critical condition at Mission Emergency Hospital.

The second person killed was believed to be a male in his 30s, although the body was severely burned. The auto he was driving is registered to Arnt Hoyme Tjensvold of 4800 Paradise Drive, Tiburon.

According to officers, the unidentified man was driving north on Doyle Drive about 7:25 p.m. — approaching the bridge — when his small Datsun sedan veered across the southbound lanes and into the path of the Deitz auto.

After striking the Deitz vehicle, a small Renault, the Datsun burst into flames.

A third auto, driven by Robert George Henselyn of San Francisco, also traveling south, was struck by one of the first two autos, though officers aren't sure which. Henselyn was not injured.

The accident happened at nearly the identical location of the bridge's worst accident in history.

That accident, which took nine lives, occurred in July 1970 when a Porsche, traveling at a high rate of speed, crossed the center line and crashed into a carload of teen-agers.

Plans to widen the dangerous bridge access have been bogged down for more than a decade in a fight between the state Division of Highways and the City of San Francisco.

Bridge officials also have been involved in the squabble, rejecting state appeals to help fund the cost of the road improvements.

Until late last year, the state insisted the widening be part of a new freeway through the city, a freeway bitterly opposed by the city. State plans now call for widening the Doyle Drive approach in 1976-77.

Since 1966, there have been 16 head-on collisions on the drive, which has rubber tubes separating north and southbound traffic. A total of 15 persons have been killed during that period.

Pineapple Farm Will Be Closed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Because of rising costs, the Del Monte Corp. says it plans a phase-out of its Molokai, Hawaii, pineapple plantation over the next 2½ years.

"Rising costs of growing pineapple and transporting it from Molokai to the company's Honolulu cannery have made it uneconomical to continue operating the plantation," an announcement yesterday said.

The company added, "Operations of Del Monte's Oahu plantation and Honolulu cannery would not be significantly affected."

No further details of the phase-out, or possible plans for the affected workers, were given.

O'Toole Seeking Council Position

Thomas Raphael O'Toole, chairman of the San Rafael Planning Commission, today filed for election to the San Rafael City Council April 17.

O'Toole first was appointed to the planning commission in 1962. He was bypassed in favor of Lawrence E. Mulryan in 1970 for appointment to the council, when Fred C. Robbins Jr. resigned to become city attorney.

The 49-year-old O'Toole was defeated in a bid for election to the council in 1971, polling 3,341 votes to 3,527 for incumbent John A. Miskimen and 3,515 for incumbent Fred E. Jensen.

O'Toole failed to gain appointment to the council again last month, when city fathers deadlocked on filling the seat vacated by the death of Harry A. Barbier. O'Toole, however, was the frontrunner in the race for appointment to Barbier's seat, and received the support of Mayor C. Paul Bettini and Councilman Fred E. Jensen.

O'Toole, part owner of Milani's garage in San Rafael, has cited his widespread support in the city as a major asset in the race, and has declared he supports redevelopment and lighter tax loads.

O'Toole joins Jack G. Nixon, chairman of the Marin County Planning Commission, and Leo Tinkler, a San Rafael real estate agent, in filing nomination papers for the race. The terms of Mulryan and Barbier expire.

Richard C. Fox, a research chemist, has taken out nomination papers but has not yet filed. Carl J. (Red) Brown, athletic director of Sir Francis Drake High School, said today he will take out nomination papers tomorrow and file for the race next week.

Mulryan, who plans to seek a full term, will formally announce his candidacy at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Whistlestop in San Rafael.

Salt Lake City covers an area of 62 square miles.

Businessmen Attack Sales Tax Payments

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Two businessmen Wednesday told a state Board of Equalization hearing why they believe payment of all or part of the state sales tax is unconstitutional.

Francis Gillings, owner of a Tracy service station, said he has not collected or paid sales tax since Sept. 1. Bob Bennett, owner of a Lodi liquor store, said he has deducted a 3 per cent service charge from his tax receipt for the past seven months before turning them over to the state.

"I object to being burdened with 160-odd tax forms," Bennett said. "The burden of reporting government business should rest with the government. If the government wants me to be a tax collector, they should provide adequate compensation."

Bennett said Florida allows businessmen to deduct 3 per cent of tax receipts to compensate them for time and expense of collection.

He said his payment of the entire sales tax violates the 13th Amendment of the Constitution which prohibits involuntary servitude. He gave the legal definition of involuntary servitude as "one who is compelled by force, coercion or imprisonment and against his will to labor for another, whether he is paid for it or not."

Gillings said the tax violates a section of the Constitution which states: "No state shall make anything but gold or silver coin a tender and payment of debts."

"Since the paper money we use is not gold or silver and is not backed by gold or silver, it is bogus money," Gillings said. "Therefore, my business is not sales but barter —exchanging one type of merchandise for another."

John K. Wogan, Sacramento district administrator for the board, said the legal issues raised were "under consideration and referred to legal staff for opinion." A ruling is expected within 10 days, he said.

HAWKINS

support what he considered as qualified candidates, but if none appear he will "reevaluate" his board position next month — presumably meaning he'll quit if rivals to Corlett and Ladar do not emerge.

In his letter of resignation, Hawkins said: "It has become increasingly apparent over the last few weeks that my philosophy of board-superintendent relations and that of the majority of the board is conflicting and irreconcilable."

After the emotion-charged meeting, Ladar suggested that Ring and Miller's charges came from "a fairly vindictive desire toget at another trustee."

Asking Hawkins to resign was the most personally difficult decision he had to make, said Ladar, and stemmed from "much more" than the Tam furniture episode.

Running election campaigns on the issue of Hawkins's ouster would be "ill-advised, and put the majority of the district in a very unfortunate position," said Ladar, "but if these two guys are stupid enough to do it, then it will have to be done."

As the meeting ended Sally Rakow, Ross School District trustee, presented a statement to the board in which she deplored "the lack of stability in the direction of the board."

She said the superintendent was hired to effect change in the district," and a great deal of patience is necessary in a period of change."

"I feel the board should exert the leadership needed to carry the district through a period of instability and not add to the instability which is of such concern to the community," she added.

Hawkins had been said to have asked for $50,000 to buy up the remaining three years of his four-year contract with the district, but no mention of this sum was made by trustees last night. Ladar said there would be no such payment.

RESIGNS

year was named assistant superintendent for personnel and curriculum.

While in Temple City, he participated in developing a differentiated staffing program for which that district has received wide notice, which provides separate pay schedules for master teachers, staff teachers and associate teachers.

According to Kenneth C. Nielsen, assistant superintendent for business services and the only Temple City administrator still there who served with Hawkins, the man who later became Tam District superintendent "was in on the beginning" of the differentiated staffing plan and contributed much to it. Nielsen said Hawkins was very highly regarded in the district.

Also while in Temple City, Hawkins completed his doctorate in educational administration at University of Southern California. (He had received his B.S. from University of California at Santa Barbara and his M.S. from Long Beach State College, both also in educational administration.) His doctoral thesis was entitled, "Some Factors Which Contribute to Successful Educational Innovation."

In 1968, Hawkins moved to Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School District as assistant superintendent for instruction. He remained there two years. He "did an outstanding job" and "had no problem at all," according to Louis G. Zeyen, Norwalk-La Mirada superintendent with whom he served.

When Chester G. Carlisle, longtime Tam superintendent, was reassigned to other duties in August 1969, the Tam district board set out to find a replacement. It first appointed a panel called the "Next Step Committee" to prepare a brochure and procedures for recruiting a new superintendent.

Members of the committee were Harold Allison, Sir Francis Drake High School principal; Edward J. Neumeier, district public information officer; Walter S. Lee, school psychologist, and Duane F. Miller, a Drake High teacher.

The committee subsequently named a criteria committee composed of Lee, Miller, and Frank A. Cassou, district business manager Applications were then turned over to a screening board made up of Jerrold Ladar (who has since become a Tam district trustee), George Stone, Ellen Binckley, W. Reed Brockbank, Frances Compton, and student Chris Martin. It selected applicants to be interviewed and conducted the interviews.

Three members of the district board participated in the interviews: Bette Wallace (then chairman), Frank L. Miller, and Robert W. Corlett.

Among those interviewed, besides Hawkins, was Thomas F. Shaheen, subsequently hired and discharged as San Francisco superintendent.

Hawkins was hired on a four-year contract at $30,000 per year. The following year, his salary was raised to $31,500.

Mistakes Admitted By Witness

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The key prosectuion witness in the Ruchell Magee trial has admitted errors in his original account of the 1970 Marin County courthouse violence, yet Gary Thomas insisted that Judge Harold Haley was shot by the defendant.

Under cross examination from defense attorney Robert Carrow, Thomas said Wednesday he mistakenly told a grand jury that convict William Christmas did not usher him and hostages from Haley's courtroom to an elevator.

The attorney also asked Thomas, then an assistant district attorney, how Magee taped a shotgun to Haley if another convict, James McClain, was holding it when they entered the intended escape van.

"I know McClain had the shotgun in his hand pointed at Judge Haley when we got to the van," Thomas replied. "I know that after we got in the van, Magee had the shotgun and it was under Judge Haley's chin."

The defense for Magee, a San Quentin Prison convict accused of murder and kidnap in the August, 1970, gunfire, contends Haley was slain by bullets fired from outside the van.

However, Thomas testified the first shot came from inside the van and "the second shot was Ruchell Magee's with the shotgun under Judge Haley's chin."

The only other shots inside the van were the ones I fired," added Thomas, who testified earlier that he grabbed a gun, fatally shot Jonathan Jackson, Christmas and McClain and wounded Magee. Thomas was wounded and paralyzed from the waist down.

After being removed from the courtroom almost daily following outbursts, Magee asked for and was granted permission to be excused to a holding cell Wednesday.

Johnson ranch. The site is 100 yards from the house in which he was born 64 years ago and adjacent to the graves of his parents and grandparents.

Presiding at the simple services in Texas was to be Rev. Billy Graham, a counselor to Johnson as well as to President Nixon. The eulogy was to be given by John B. Connally, the former Texas governor and former treasury secretary under Nixon.

In Washington, the crowds were sparse —compared to tens of thousands who watched a cortege to the Capitol Wednesday —as the funeral motorcade traveled from the Capitol down Pennsylvania Avenue to the church at Thomas Circle.

Government offices were closed in respect to the dead former chief executive under an order by Nixon. Schools were closed in many areas.

During a cold evening, night and morning, 40,000 Americans of every creed, color and political advocacy went to the rotunda to pay their personal respects. Temperatures dipped into the 20s duringthe night.

Hundreds gathered outside the church prior to the service which drew representatives of scores of foreign governments and U.N. General Secretary Kurt Waldheim.

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, a Johnson political ally, was there. So was Mrs. Martin Luther King, and elder statesman W. Averell Harriman.

And there, too, was Robert G. (Bobby) Baker, who served Johnson first as a page boy, then as Senate Democratic Secretary before being imprisoned on federal charges of theft and income tax evasion.

Sargent Shriver and his wife, Eunice, represented the Kennedy family.

No Windfall For Marin In Tax Law

A county analysis of SB 90 — which some supporters have called a property tax relief measure — indicates it will offer no relief to Marin County renters and very little to homeowners.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell criticized the new state law as "not a meaningful tax relief measure, but rather a tax shift measure, and in no way fully answers the need for a greater effort to correct the increased property tax problem."

Mitchell said a family of four with an income of $15,000 per year can only expect a tax savings this year of $66 if it owns a home.

The same family renting a home will pay $9 more in taxes under the new law, all other things being equal, he said.

SB 90, signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan late last year, places a ceiling on local property taxes but increases state income and sales taxes.

Besides placing a ceiling on local property taxes, the new law increases the state homeowners' exemption from the present $750 to a new $1,750 which amounts to a $125 in savings, Mitchell said.

For renters, the new law provides for a $45 credit on state income tax, but in both cases the savings are eroded by increased sales and income taxes.

Mitchell's document was prepared at the request of Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, who is co-chairman of a committee of local residents seeking property tax reform.

"In my opinion, the minor tax decrease that will occur when next year's property tax bills are sent out will be substantially 'wiped out' within three years (sooner, if property is reappraised). . .," Mitchell concluded.

Show-Piece Cycle Reported Stolen

A 1931 Harley-Davidson motorcycle, constructed as a show piece and valued at $2,000 was taken Tuesday from the lot of American Motors at Third Street and Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, police reported.

Police said a man — about 25 years old, five feet, six inches tall, with brown hair and blue eyes — took the motorcycle out for a test run at 2:30 p.m. and failed to bring it back.

Film At College Still Scheduled

The films are "A Glimpse of De Kooning," "A Visit With Pablo Casals" and "Igor Stravinsky", and are the first in a series of four programs to be offered on Thursdays at the college.

Canada Objects To Control Unit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said today Canada has a serious objection about the supervisory machinery for the Vietnam peace, but said Canada would contribute to the control force at first. (See also Peace story, page 1).

He said however it was reserving the right to withdraw after 60 days.

Sharp said that if the Vietnam cease-fire agreement is signed as scheduled without reservation on Saturday, Canada will send a first contingent of observers to Vietnam this weekend.

Sharp made the comments before attending a lunch with Secretary of State William P. Rogers to discuss Canada's concern that international supervisory force in Vietnam might not be effective.

Sharp told reporters that Canada's prime concern was that the international team would have no continuing authority to report to until an international conference was convened 30 days after the Vietnam agreement took effect.

Sharp said Canada feels satisfactoryit would not be satisfactor for the four-nation team to report to the warning parties as initially called for under the agreements.

He said that whether Canada continued to participate after 60 days would depend "on whether we are effective." The Canadian official said his government's other questions seemed to have been settled. They were that the teams should have freedom of mobility, should be invited by the four warring parties in the Vietnam conflict and that all the four parties should be bound by the Vietnam agreement.

A CAMPAIGN DESIGNED TO SAVE WATER

CONCORD (UPI) — An eighth grade teacher and 20 of his pupils have organized "Operation Flush," a campaign to put a brick in every toilet in this city.

They plan to ask the city council on Feb. 5 to require placement of the bricks in the tanks and to buy 50,000 durable bricks for distribution by teen-agers, ecology clubs and conservation groups.

The crusaders estimated the bricks would save 100,000 gallons a day — or 36.5 million gallons a year — in water unnecessarily used for flushing.

Salary Hikes Being Restored

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Personnel Board has approved restoration of $4.1 million in state employe salary increases rejected last year by the Federal Pay Board.

The state board acted Wednesday shortly after Gov. Ronald Reagan recommended that the pay increases be reinstated. The increases will be reflected in the paychecks of state workers who had been docked one per cent of their raise by the federal agency.

President Nixon abolished the Pay Board Jan. 11 when he instituted Phase III of his wage and price program, enabling the state board to reconsider the salary increases.

Thieu Says Cease-Fire Control Group Useless

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today the international agency being formed to investigate cease-fire violations is a "useless and helpless organization" and that South Vietnam's best guarantee of peace is a strong army.

"The ICC is a useless and helpless organization," he said. "We have sent piles and piles of complaints after so many years but nothing has been done," Thieu told 830 South Vietnamese information officers.

"After the cease-fire we will have to protect our land, the security, the properties of the population, the institutions."

"We must give confidence to the population, give them joy and the confidence that the government still exists and the Viet Cong have lost." Thieu said the best guarantee that the Communists would not violate the provisions of the agreement to be signed Saturday in Paris is for South Vietnam to maintain its military strength and show political and economic unity.

The second best guarantee, Thieu said, was for the United States to react immediately if the Communists violate the agreement.

Thieu was referring to the International Control Commission (ICC), now known as the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

Tavern Will Serve Only Soft Drinks

OAKLAND (AP) — Alcoholics may soon be able to go to a tavern here, but instead of booze they will be served coffee, fruit juices, milk and soft drinks.

The idea is to make alcoholics feel at home in a familiar atmosphere where they can be helped rather than hurt, said David Odell, director of the Alameda County Health Care Services Agency.

Cease-Fire Document Extremely Unusual

PARIS (UPI) — The Vietnam cease-fire agreement to be signed in Paris Saturday may well be one of a kind, according to Western diplomatic experts.

It will be signed in two separate versions with significant differences in wording.

One version, to be signed by the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong, does not identify the parties by name.

It refers merely to "The parties participating in the Paris conference on Vietnam."

If you did not know who took part in the Paris peace talks, you would not know who were the parties until you reached the signatures at the end.

North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh was arriving today to sign for North Vietnam at Saturday's ceremonies.

U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers will sign for the United States and Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh for the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary government. She is its Foreign Minister and chief negotiator in Paris. Saigon Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam already has arrived in Paris.

The second version, to be signed separately by the United States and North Vietnam, has a different preamble.

It reads "The government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, with the agreement of the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam, and the government of the United States of America, with the agreement of the Republic of (South) Vietnam."

The two versions and the two separate signing ceremonies were part of an ingenious diplomatic ploy designed to make the agreement palatable to South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu.

A Bird Embargo May Be Lifted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An embargo imposed last August on imports of pet and "exotic" birds may soon be lifted, the Agriculture Department said today.

The embargo was ordered to protect the U.S. poultry industry against new outbreaks of Newcastle disease, which caused heavy damage in California last year.

Officials now have announced a proposed new regulation which would allow imports to resume under safeguards designed to prevent the entry of any bird carrying the Newcastle virus.

Design Is Approved For Service Station

The Larkspur Planning Commission has approved by a 3-2 vote the design for a Texaco service station that will have its back to the Magnolia Avenue and Doherty Drive intersection.

At its meeting Tuesday night, Commissioners Leonard S. Rubin, Otto Hoefler and Charles H. Curley voted in favor of the gas station design. Commissioners Earl J. O'Grady Jr. and Benton A. Sifford Jr., disagreed, reported Planning Director Arthur N. Stout.

Cause of the controversy is siting of the station in the new shopping center at one of Larkspur's busiest intersections. The facility was designed by Larkspur City Councilman Robert H. Lee, who is a service station architect in San Francisco.

The building will face the center's parking lot and not the road.

Stout said O'Grady and Sifford voiced concern that the station could create a blind corner, a danger increased by fences screening the pump area.

Design approval was subject to two conditions, said Stout: the building should be reduced in size and height, and the light intensity generated should be in the same range as that of the Lark Creek shopping complex several blocks away.

Lee said the Texaco station originally was designed in customary fashion to face Magnolia and Doherty, but a year ago the Larkspur Architectural Review Committee requested that it face the parking lot of the shopping center.

The city council and Texaco have tangled, meanwhile, over an entrance driveway to the station. The company had threatened legal action if station access, through a minipark installed by the city, were refused, since the city earlier had given its approval.

The council allowed the driveway, provided Texaco restored and maintained landscaping wiped out.

The Larkspur Planning Commission Also:

ORDINANCE — Recommended the city council approve an amendment to the city's environmental design review ordinance; extensive additions lay down guidelines for city staff and the planning commission in considering architectural design review applications — a function previously delegated to the now defunct architectural review committee.

PARKING — Granted Michael Goldstein a variance to permit off-street parking on Rice Lane behind the vacant shop at 464 Magnolia Avenue which he intends to turn into an "international cuisine" restaurant.

COFFEE SHOP — Indicated it would consider favorably a conditional use permit application if someone wants to open a coffee shop in the Sohner Plaza office complex near the Bank of America branch at Bon Air Road and Magnolia Avenue.

Antiwar Protester Sets End Of Vigil

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — John McInteer, 52, a draft counselor from Redding, announced Wednesday that he would end his 2 ½-month antiwar vigil at the federal building.

McInteer said his protest would end Saturday night when the Vietnam cease-fire goes into effect.

Former Aide Of Hughes Asks Suit Halt

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Robert Maheu has asked the Nevada Supreme Court to delay proceedings in Clark County District Court temporarily in his $50 million suit against Howard Hughes.

Maheu wants the Supreme Court to rule on several of his motions first before the lower court is allowed to continue its hearings and decisions. He said there is a conflict on what judges should actually hear the case in Las Vegas.

Maheu is seeking an order forcing Hughes to appear personally to give a deposition. If he fails, then Maheu wants the court to issue a default judgment against Hughes and the Hughes Tool Co.

Maheu was fired by Hughes in 1970 and then filed his suit.

Monument Wanted For Viet Veterans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kentucky Sen. Walter Dee Huddleston wants to build a monument in Washington to the Americans who served in the "tragic, frustrating and little understood" Vietnam War.

Huddleston, a freshman Democrat, said Wednesday he would introduce a bill to authorize a monument.

Environmental Plan For Petaluma Runs Into Snag

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Petaluma's environmental design plan was shelved for two months last night as the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors got caught in the legal question of private development rights versus growth control.

The plan, which limits community growth to 500 residential units a year, alternately was lauded as an innovative planning tool and lambasted as unfair to property owners who will not be able to develop when they like.

In nearly every instance, legal questions arose the board said advice was needed from County Counsel James P. Botz before it could consider adopting the plan.

Legal opinions and further arguments will be heard March 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the county administration building.

Petaluma officials asked for county acceptance of the plan, since attempts to control growth within city limits would go for naught, they said, if county officials permit development to flourish on the outskirts.

Board members assured Mayor Helen Putnam that no full scale subdivisions would be permitted, but questioned how the county should zone unincorporated land since annexation may not be considered for five to 15 years in some cases.

Landowners generally condemned the plan as inequitable since development rights would be indefinitely delayed while property taxes continued to rise.

William White of Land Investors Research in Larkspur said taxes on potential subdivision property average $45 to $50 per acre while current agricultural uses bring revenue of only $15 per acre.

"If the city wants the land, the only fair way is to buy the property or the development rights to it," he said.

White said property owners should also be reimbursed for rising taxes paid over the last 15 years.

Members of Petaluma homeowner organizations rose to defend the plan, saying property owners bought the land with development in mind rather than farming and should not expect the county to make up for losses due to speculation.

Dr. William Kortum of the Petaluma Board of Education said the plan would ease school crowding problems.

"It's a very unique plan and many towns all over are watching it," he said. "The board should cooperate and make it work."

Petaluma Planning Director William C. McGivern asked only that the county approve the concept of the plan. He said previous growth had been on a helter-skelter basis bringing many problems.

Also discussed was the need for sewer lines in the village of Penngrove, north of Petaluma. Although the plan does not envision further extension of sewer and water lines, supervisors said Petaluma would be expected to serve Penngrove through its treatment plant.

Sonoma Public Works Director Donald B. Head said Penngrove has many malfunctioning septic tanks which are creating a very seriqus health problem. The board agreed a land use master plan must be prepared for Penngrove before sewer lines can be planned.

Members also agreed that development in that community and the size of lines must be coordinated with the ability of the Petaluma sewer plant to handle additional effluent.

Bids To Be Asked On BART Station

OAKLAND (AP) — The $26 million Embarcadero station of the Bay Area Rapid Transit system should be put out to bid Tuesday, BART's engineering committee has recommended.

The committee recommended Tuesday that the full board approve the design of the station which is expected to be ready in late 1975. It will be located at the foot of Market Street.

Sea Snake Said The Deadliest

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) — It is official—the most deadly reptile in the world is the Hydrophis Belcheri.

The word came down Wednesday when scientists officially catalogued the sea snake, which abounds in Australia's northern waters, as the most deadly of all reptiles.

Dr. William Dunson, associate professor of biology at Pennsylvania State University, announced the listing in Townsville, 984 miles northwest of Brisbane. Dunson recently led a team of 11 American, Japanese and Australian scientists in a six-week expedition aboard the U.S. research ship Alpha Helix to capture and classify species of sea snakes in the Timor sea.

Choosing Of Fluoride Study Firm Delayed

Directors of the Marin Municipal Water District postponed yesterday choosing a firm to prepare an environmental impact study on fluoridation to enable five opponents of the program more time to find money for the kind of study they feel is necessary.

The board agreed to consider the matter further at its Feb. 14 meeting and promised it would make a decision on the question at that time.

After reviewing five proposals for a report, directors came close to selecting the firm of Jones and Stokes Associates Inc., which had agreed to do the job for $8,300.

But the board voted for the continuance after antifluoridationists argued the Jones and Stokes study would not tell the total amount of fluoride Marin residents are already ingesting in their diets.

Jones and Stokes proposed to prepare an impact statement which would:

1. Discuss options to water fluoridation.
2. Research literature on the subject and talk with local proponents and opponents.
3. Review public actions taken in regard to the program.
4. Study effects of fluoride on soils, plants, swimming pools, recycled water and ocean and fresh waters.
5. Summarize the claimed successes and failures of fluoridation, the current state of the practice and extent of public acceptance.
6. Analyze the district's program.

The report would take approximately 60 days to complete and mean that fluoridation, approved by the voters last November, would not go into effect in March, as planned, but would be delayed, probably until May or June.

Other proposals which the board reviewed ranged in cost from $1,000 to $28,000 but none would have measured total fluoride ingestion.

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

ELECTION — Set April 17 for an election to fill the board seat vacated by the recent resignation of director Eugene A. Miller. Filing deadline is Feb. 16.

RATES — Adopted an ordinance abolishing special water rates for school districts and other public agencies. The regulation says the districts, which now pay 14.5 cents per 100 cubic feet of water, will be assessed increased rates over a 10-year period to bring them in line with the 32-cent rate paid by the rest of the district's customers.

FUND — Agreed to contribute $750 to the American Water Works Association which is planning to build a national office in Denver.

MEETING — Set a special meeting for Feb. 20 to hear a progress report from a consulting firm which is preparing an environmental and land use study for the district.

BENEFITS — Agreed to expand medical coverage for district employees to include one dependent.

TANK — Postponed a decision on whether to go ahead with plans for a storage tank on Clorinda Avenue in San Rafael after several residents of the area protested the location. The board agreed to hold another hearing on the tank at its next meeting after the district staff has studied the matter further.

Freeze On New Water Users Eyed

A moratorium on new connections in the Marin Municipal Water District again became a distinct possibility yesterday when the district board agreed to consider a freeze at a special meeting Feb. 7.

At the same time, the board also decided to present some kind of water supply project to voters in November, but did not determine how large or what kind of project would be needed to alleviate district water supply woes.

It was the third time in recent months that a freeze on new connections has been proposed and it appeared that the measure might have enough support to pass this time.

Director John M. MacPhail Jr., who proposed the ban yesterday, has opposed curtailment of new connections in the past. Jack R. Felson and Ronald T. Stafford, two other directors on the four-man board (one seat is vacant), have favored a moratorium in the past.

MacPhail's suggestion that the district again look at a connection ban came in the face of two board decisions on water supply.

Yesterday, after considerable discussion, directors agreed that the amount of water the district can expect to obtain from its reservoirs — year in and year out — is only 26,000 acre feet. In the past the district has contended that its "net safe yield" was 30,000 acre feet annually, but the board changed its mind after a consulting firm which is studying district water supply came up with the lower figure.

Also influencing MacPhail's decision was a major setback last month to plans for a pipeline to bring 4,000 acre feet of water annually from the Russian River to Marin. At its last meeting, the board deadlocked and was unable to approve a contract for the North Marin Intertie, thus stalling the project for an indefinite period.

Demand for water in the district is currently 32,000 acre feet of water a year, or 6,000 more than the net safe yield agreed on yesterday.

Without the intertie, any new connections — particularly those for large developments — will only increase the water deficit and the probability the district may run out of water if the county experiences more than one dry year.

"Without the intertie and with this new safe yield figure, the district is way overcommitted," MacPhail said. "I think it is time to bring up the moratorium again," he added.

A connection ban had been proposed last May, but the board declined to pass, simply declaring that a threatened water shortage existed in the district. Director Jack R. Felson proposed a moratorium on all connections which would require more than an acre foot of water a year, but withdrew his recommendation until the consultants had completed their study of net safe yield.

The board did not make clear what kind of ban would be considered at the Feb. 7 meeting but indicated it again would consider a resolution declaring a threatened water shortage. The hearing is scheduled for 8 p.m. at a place to be announced.

Directors also will not decide what kind of project will be presented to voters for at least 60 days. At that time the consulting firm of Cornell, Howland, Hayes, Merryfield, Clair A. Hill and Associates will have completed its studies of options and presented recommendations on projects it believes most feasible

The board voted to pay the firm $17,500 to complete the study, which will also include a wastewater management plan for the district.

Directors did agree yesterday that future water supply should be based on population figures contained in the proposed countywide master plan, which projects that district population will be approximately 203,000 by 1980 and 224,400 by 1990.

The board made it clear it would not accept a project which provides for a population significantly larger than that proosed in the county plan.

20-Year-Old Bound Over On Pot Charge

Steven Wilson Hall, 20, of San Rafael, was bound over yesterday to Marin Superior Court on a felony charge of having marijuana and on two misdemeanor complaints.

Municipal Court Judge David R. Baty ordered him to appear Feb. 7.

The felony charge and counts of having pot smoking devices and hypodermic needles were filed in July after a raid on Hall's home, then located in Santa Venetia.

Sheriff's deputies went to the house after a California Highway Patrol officer investigating an accident reported seeing marijuana growing in planters.

Raiding deputies did not find the plants, but confiscated suspected pot and the equipment July 14.

Hall was arrested Nov. 27 on a warrant issued 10 days after the raid.

Merchants of Fine Wines, Spirits and Accessories

WINE NOTES #14

By golly, we did it! Our new store at the corner of Blackfield Drive and Tiburon Blvd. finally opened. What a struggle, and what an inconvenience we caused to the patrons and tenants of the Cove Shopping Center. We're sorry for that but intend for our presence in the new building to be a credit to the Center and, most importantly, to the people of Southern Marin. By the way, let me squelch a rumor. A bank is not going in next door. An announcement of our co-tenant or co-tenants will be made within the next two weeks. Anyway, we think we have a beautiful store. Our new Wine Manager, Alan Russell, is pulling together an excellent selection of imported wines to compliment our well known California Wine Selection (thanks, by the way, to KPIX, Channel 5, and KRON, Channel 4 for using our stores in their features on wine), and we have a friendly and knowledgeable group of people to serve you. Stop in, please - we need the business. Now that the rains have abated, we can complete the parking lot and landscaping and the traffic flow and parking will be much more convenient.

A special thanks to Mr. G.F. Thomas my good friend and mentor in matters real estate and political, for without his able aid and matchless patience the Tiburon store would still be a dream. Also thanks to Mr. Edward Cheu. A tough, even obstinate businessman, Mr. Cheu, but honorable and farsighted. The money he is investing in his Cove Shopping Center will certainly turn a neighborhood liability into an asset and I thank him.

Although we had hoped to have construction on our seventh store, in San Anselmo, well under way by now, the rain has held us up. We have to create a fairly large cavity on the site, (yes, a wine cellar), and to have excavated during the last two months would have created a swimming hole which is not our line of endeavor. So, we called Mr. Meinberger off until the ground drys a bit. No promises, but we hope to open around July. It will be an interesting store architecturally and we're anxious.

Book Review: DIARY OF A WINETASTER by Harry Waugh, the other famous English writer on wines. The book is a must for the dedicated or neophyte. Well written, comfortable to read, and chocked full of current tasting information on wine, with particular interest and positive response to California's finest. Available at all B.S.'s at $6.95; $5.95 if you present this verbiage to the B.S. Salesperson.

Try the Marquisat Beaujolais Primeur. We have the only 50 cases available in Marin and you'll miss a true treat if it gets gone before you get in. You probably know that the Beaujolais Primeur is a new wine to America, and wants to be drunk right quick as in France. Lovely, I assure you.

One last thing. We're very concerned that our customers get the best possible service from knowledgeable and courteous salespeople, consistently. If you aren't, haven't, or don't, please let me know. If you are, have, or do, I wouldn't mind knowing that either.

Thanks and a peaceful New Year to you all.

MORE LATER.

'Hideous Channel' Benefits Ross

It began Jan. 8, when a steady all-day rain totaled .65 of an inch in San Rafael. In the next 12 days, with scarcely any breaks, a total of 14.44 inches poured down on the city. And in some areas of Marin, the total was considerably more.

As the downpour continued, as earth became saturated and water courses overflowed, the troubles began. In Novato, residents of Nave Gardens were flooded out of the homes. At Corte Madera, a flood across the highway blocked commute traffic. In Mill Valley, in Bolinas, along Richardson Bay, in some of the lower areas of San Rafael, floodwaters surrounded homes, snarled traffic. Mud slides destroyed houses in Marin City, in Bolinas, and below the ridge separating Tennessee and Tamalpais valleys.

BUT IN ALL the flood stories, there was one area noticeably missing.

In past years, any heavy downpour in Marin would flood Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Ross Hospital.

This time, there was no flooding there. Traffic moved up and down Sir Francis Drake without hindrance. Yes, there was water in the street — but not enough to pose a problem.

Ross escaped in better shape than did many areas of Marin. So did San Anselmo and Fairfax, just upstream.

There has to be a reason. And the reason has to be the Corte Madera Creek flood control project — that "hideous concrete channel" against which so much complaint has been lodged.

The project ends at Ross — because Ross has blocked it from going farther. But Ross is benefiting from the channelization to which it has objected.

IT IS IRONIC that on Jan. 11, as damage from the storm was widespread and growing worse (though not in Ross), the Town of Ross was arguing in Marin Superior Court an attempt to force the county to pay $350,000 to alleviate Ross Common flooding. The town has refused to allow the Corte Madera Creek project to proceed unless the county will pay the extra cost to "flood-proof" that area.

It looks very much as though Ross is reaping the benefits of construction of "that hideous channel" downstream while blocking its extension.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson gave the town and the county 60 days to get together on what work must be done, how much it will cost, and who will pay for it. It is not, he noted, a problem that the court can settle. It requires engineers and bulldozer operators.

It also requires men of good will. We hope that Ross and Marin County officials will prove they are that, and will work out an equitable arrangement. And while they're doing it, Ross should not forget that the creek project already has benefited it.

Attacks On Judge Clark Politics At Its Dirtiest

By EARL G. WATERS

The cackling over the nomination of William P. Clark Jr. to the State Supreme Court is an example of dirty politics at its dirtiest. The partisan protesters are indulging in demagoguery in its worst form.

Clark is the second chance Governor Reagan has had to recast the State Supreme Court, whose philosophy has rankled him. In his campaign for governor six years ago Reagan pledged to alter the court's makeup from what he believed to be an unwarranted liberalism.

And that basically is what the objections to Clark are all about.

LACKING ANYTHING of substance, the hecklers have seized upon the insignificant fact that Clark received something less than top grades as a law student and did not graduate from law school.

First off, Clark did pass the state bar examination, something that a raft of lawyers in practice today did not do. Following World War II the legislature decreed that students who had graduated from law school and then gone to war would be admitted on motion without examination.

Subsequent legislation relaxed the requirement even more. In its final version anyone who had one year of law school and then went to war would be admitted on motion after completing law school. Under these provisions hundreds were admitted to practice. Some of these have filled or are now filling judicial positions.

IT IS PERMISSIBLE to take the bar examination without graduating, as in Clark's case. It is also permissible to take the bar examination without having attended law school.

Whether the examination as given by the bar is the best means of determining qualifications to practice may be debatable, but it is the method employed. Clark met that test.

Appointed to the superior court and subsequently to the district court of appeals, he has been twice screened and approved to sit as a judge. No charge has been levelled that he has not fulfilled these duties satisfactorily.

The chief justice, attorney general and presiding justice of the appeals court reviewed his qualifications when he was appointed to the appellate court.

These are the same people who will now review his qualifications for the supreme court. If there was anything disqualifying about Clark, it should have been found the first time around, otherwise the whole system is subject to grave doubt.

IT IS RIDICULOUS to wave someone's schoolboy grades around years after the fact. The world is full of eminently successful people who didn't graduate or whose scholastic efforts were short of the mark.

Many a student who excelled at book-learning has gone on to abject failure. As Governor Reagan aptly put it, if he based his appointments on school diplomas, "I can think of at least half dozen eminently qualified but we would have to wait for them to get out of jail."

No one knows or cares what Stephen J. Field's grades were, or if he even went to law school. He sat as California's chief justice before being appointed to the United States Supreme Court, where he served 34 years, the longest of any justice in history.

If law school is so important in the making of a high court justice, why is there no legal requirement that one be a lawyer to serve on the United States Supreme Court?

There is a school of thought which holds the country would be better off if the courts spent more time dispensing justice and less time reading nuances into the statutes.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

The incurability of the common cold is a problem that's not to be sneezed at.

Most folks don't mind taking aspirin, staying in bed and drinking juice. What bugs 'em is having to pay the doctor for telling them to do it.

This is like a lawyer advising you about a threatened divorce action to "take aspirin, stay in bed and drink plenty of martinis."

The bad part about staying in bed with a cold is having to watch television and its miracle cures.

Conditions At Lake Blamed On Visitors

I would like to answer the senior citizens group that wrote the letter to the editor about more fish wanted in the district lakes. They mentioned about the unsafe conditions, going up the steps, and need a handrail. They also mentioned the deep ruts and holes in the roads, etc.

I am retired and fish this lake on the average of five days a week, and love it. Regardless of planting of fish or not, I do this because it is healthy, and have some pleasure. In recent months I have not fished up there because of inclement weather. I know all about the ruts in the roads, I also know about the litter bugging of gargabe that is strewn all over the shores of the lakes by people who do not care. I also know about the people who take their dogs up to the lakes and let them roam around the lakes without a leash and litter swim in the drinking water. I also know about the toilet facilities, they are sometimes in a horrible mess, and the water district personnel are continuously cleaning them up. I also know about the people that ride the horses around the paths they sometimes ride the horses off the paths and in the lake shores. . .

As far as Mr. Seeger is concerned it is not his job to be checking the lakes for these conditions, he has an excellent group of men doing this, and they are as far as I am concerned doing an excellent job. But these people that don't care about conditions and rules are not cooperating. If this continues it will be another Kent Lake problem, close it down. Remember what happened to Kent Lake, I do.

Finding Lost Dog Brings Frustrations

What would you do if you discovered a lost dog at 8:30 p.m.?

We called the Humane Society, the number listed under "lost animals." A recorded voice (very hard to understand) told us where to mail or bring monetary contributions and then gave quite a list of dogs and cats, but no phone number or even a clue of how to get the dog to the owner that night.

The Humane Society also has a night emergency listing —so we called that. It was an answering service and she could only suggest that we call in the morning.

This was a beautiful purebred licensed dog, but our two dogs were terribly upset and would not accept it in our house.

We decided to call a police department. The man suggested we use a big stick to drive the dog off or if the dog was too much for us they might pick it up and put it in a cell overnight. I couldn't believe it!

I called Mrs. Hildreth from Marinwood who has a foster home for pets and she picked up the dog assuring us that this dog was tagged and she could keep it until the owner was located. I had read about this nice lady in the Independent-Journal over a year ago. Thank heavens for people like her!

Just what does the Humane Society do? Are dogs supposed to get lost during the day only? That long list of pets that the Humane Society taped should have included phone numbers —and please ask that the person who makes the recording speak clearly and slowly enough for people to understand.

Fluoridating Water Establishing Religion?

Re fluoride, may I submit one more opinion? Superstitution is defined as "a belief founded on irrational notions, and marked by credulity; also any practice inspired by such belief."

Fluoride is inert matter. If it had the power to do something to the body, then it would do something whenever it was inserted in the body regardless as to whether the latter was alive or devoid of life.

But since the body has to be alive for it to act, it is obvious that belief in its potency is the controlling factor, so it is just another religious superstition and consequently the election result should be declared null and void by the courts because clearly the state is compelling the people of Marin to submit to a religious belief, something that is unconstitutional.

'Love Is' Artist Chortling To Bank

Re "Love Is": Peg Orr's letter and comments made my day! When she said I must be too young to remember the kewpie doll! How well I remember my frustrations even then because I could not put pants on mine, so I probably stuck pins in it and ran over the thing with my Kiddie Kar.

Clothes may not make the man or woman but I'm sure dressing these adorable creatures of the artist's imagination would in no way detract from their charm.

For many years I have been a free-lance writer, working with photographer illustrators, then I had several children's books published. They were delightfully illustrated by professional artists in the countries in which we were stationed with the Army. Native costumes enhanced the stories and characters. Right now I'd be delighted to find an artist (with a publisher in tow) to illustrate my current books and I'm sure the one who does "Love Is" could do a great job, but I can imagine she is too busy driving her Mercedes Benz erratically all the way to the bank because she is laughing so hysterically because we are giving her all this publicity, which makes her publisher happy. And she does have a publisher! (That speaks volumes as they are in a position to know what pleases the majority.)

Chamber Board Endorses Editorial Stand

The executive board of the Greater San Rafael Chamber of Commerce extends sincerest compliments on your recent stand on City of San Rafael redevelopment and your informational editorial on the restrictive power of the county board of supervisors.

The latter editorial was particularly well-timed as it has become overly apparent in the past few months that the board of supervisors has designated itself as "super-government" of Marin. Your editorial, as a primer lesson in local government, should be required reading for all future board candidates. . .

Dismantling Of Arms Control Seems Part of New Nixonism

WASHINGTON — To return to this capital from even a brief absence is to feel like Rip Van Winkle confronting a world utterly changed. Questioning those who have lived through the Nixon upheaval is of little help.

Why has so much of the government been turned upside down? We don't know. Only the secretive man in the White House, now entered on his second four-year term, knows the answer. And, in a voice dropped to a whisper, we're not sure he knows.

THE MOST DISMAYING change, in many ways the most mysterious, is the dismantling of the disarmament and arms-control apparatus. Inaugural rhetoric cannot conceal the damage done to the effort that for a decade has made increasing progress toward controlling, and to some degree scaling back, the vast mountain of nuclear armaments with the judgment of life and death over all mankind.

What makes this more mysterious is that one of the great achievements of the Nixon first term was the nuclear arms agreement, culminating in the President's mission to Moscow. With a limit on defensive missiles and a five-year agreement to restrain further building of offensive weapons, it was a small beginning hailed around the world.

A dedicated public servant, Gerard C. Smith, with 20 years experience in the nuclear jungle, worked tirelessly for four years as chief American negotiator in the SALT talks at Vienna and Helsinki. When he went back at the start of SALT II he was without any clear position approved by the White House. On returning from Geneva, the new site of the talks, Smith resigned.

In his place the president appointed U. Alexis Johnson, undersecretary of state for political affairs. Johnson is a career diplomat with no experience in nuclear matters. Grievously overworked, suffering from ill health, he is within a year of retirement age. The private word is that his will be a temporary appointment.

BUT THIS CAN MEAN that the momentum growing out of the modest success of last year will be lost. It can also mean that the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who have reluctantly gone along with arms limitation, will have the dominant voice. Arms-control specialists with long knowledge of the tortuous process of arriving at agreement with the Soviet Union are dismayed by the Johnson appointment. They say that he has been in the lap of the JCS for 10 years.

A further handicap is that Johnson will not be head, as was Smith of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. The semi-autonomous agency, created in 1961, has played an important part in developing programs and conducting research on the techniques of control and the verification of limitation agreements. A recent agency study showed that, in 120 countries surveyed, $207 billion was spent for military purposes as against only $168 billion for education and $80 billion for health care.

The arms control agency now seems in process of being dismantled. A budget slash of 30 per cent will cut the agency back to $6.7 million. Division heads, all with long experience in disarmament, were asked to submit their resignations. Happening throughout government, this is a sure-fire prescription for demoralization.

MEMBERS OF the General Advisory Commission on Disarmament were also asked to submit their resignations. The commission includes distinguished men concerned over the years with the growing nuclear burden, one of them being William C. Foster, who for seven years was head of the arms control agency. Chairman of the commission is John J. McCloy, a Republican with long-time credentials in public life. McCloy has been trying in vain for several weeks to see the President and present the commission's view.

The President has made plain his intention of paring down one domestic program after another — education, poverty, welfare. But these cheese parings will not bring the budget into balance. The only real economies can come out of defense, with a total somewhere above $80 billion, including all the costly new toys for the three services. The only way out is verifiable agreement with the Soviet Union to scale back this appalling burden.

Israel's 'Free Ride' Is Ended As Attention Turns To Mid-East

Two events now combine to push the Middle East to the forefront of Washington thinking and diplomatic effort.

The war in Vietnam is at long last winding down and is already recessive in American thinking and doing.

A serious and dangerous shortage of fuel in the colder parts of the United States has made Congress and the White House more aware of the rising American need for fuel imports. This, in turn, means rising thought about the state of American relations with the Arab countries of the Middle East, which control the world's greatest known remaining reserves of oil.

THE NEED FOR TURNING attention back to the Middle East was recognized by President Nixon before the current fuel crisis developed. In the Jack Horner interview just before election day, Mr. Nixon said:

"The Middle East will have a very high priority because while the Middle East has been, over the past couple of years, in a period of uneasy truce or armistice or whatever you want to call it, it can explode at any time."

A few days ago Sec. of State William Rogers in effect warned the Jewish community in the United States that Washington interest in a Middle East settlement, dormant during the recent political campaign, would become lively in the months ahead.

He called 1973 "a favorable time for negotiations." These should be aimed at an "interim settlement" which would provide for a reopening of the Suez Canal, to be balanced by a partial withdrawal from territories occupied by Israel in the 1967 war. He added that the interim settlement should be only a first step aimed toward implementation of the UN resolution of 1967 which calls for Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories.

This intervention by the Secretary of State was the first revival in a year of the official American position on the subject of how to approach peace in the Middle East.

DURING THE PAST year, Israel has been left in possession of the disputed territories without chivvying from Washington. Indeed, instead of chivvying the Israelis towards compromise and settlement, Washington first gave Israel every piece of military hardware on the Israeli shopping list and left her free to consolidate her positions in the occupied territories at will.

One difference is going to be that Washington will be leaning on Israel to start thinking in terms of a compromise settlement with the Arab neighbors.

Another difference will be that Washington is going to be reaching actively for a true reconciliation with the Arab governments, which is more and more needed if Russia is not to obtain effective control over much of the oil of the Persian Gulf and, indeed, of the whole Middle East.

NONE OF THIS MEANS that Washington will in any way withdraw its guarantee of Israel's military security. The Israeli armed forces are backed by the American Sixth Fleet. Both are under the American nuclear umbrella. And Washington will continue to provide Israel with enough weapons to keep up its presently dominant position in its area.

But for a year Israel has had all this for free. No price has been asked or expected in terms of coming forward with a viable negotiation position. Israel has had a year to consolidate and digest its conquests and enjoy the highest level of military security it has ever known, indeed one of the highest levels of security enjoyed by any country.

Mr. Nixon was rewarded by the largest share of the Zionist vote any Republican candidate has had since Harry S. Truman backed Israel in the 1948 presidential campaign.

But now the Israeli ambassador, Yitzhak Rabin, who negotiated the Israeli-Nixon-Republican "entente cordiale," is going home. His work has been completed. The contract has been fulfilled. The time for getting back to negotiation has come.

Ambassador Rabin's successor will have to negotiate a new agreement with a Richard Nixon who is now interested more in a Middle East settlement than in votes at the next election.

"Ask Not Of Your Government (Unless You Need A Big Loan)

WASHINGTON — I was sitting with Helmut Strudel, president of Strudel Industries, at President Nixon's inauguration last Saturday. Strudel had donated $1 million to the Committee for the Re-Election of the President and had flown all the way into Washington in his private plane to see what he had gotten for his money.

As the President spoke about international affairs, Strudel applauded loudly. But when Mr. Nixon started to talk about domestic matters my friend became quite upset. The President said:

"Let each of us remember that America was built not by government, but by people — not by welfare, but by work — not by shirking responsibility, but by seeking responsibility."

STRUDEL BEGAN to perspire. "It sounds like he's not going to bail my company out of bankruptcy," he said worriedly.

"Don't be silly," I told Strudel. "When he speaks of people on welfare, the President's talking about the little guy who's freeloading on the government. He is not talking about companies that get large government subsidies."

The president said, "In the challenges we face together, let each of us ask not just how government can help, but how can I help?"

"You know, of course," Strudel whispered to me, "that my company has a contract to build 4,000 gazebos for the U.S. Air Force at $8 million each. Well, since we got the order, gazebos have gone up to $10 million, and unless the government helps us we won't be able to deliver them."

"Of course the government will help you," I assured Strudel. "When the President said 'Ask not what the government will do for me but what can I do for myself,' he was talking about teachers and farmers and old people on Social Security who are always at the government trough. Contractors are not in that category."

"I hope not," Strudel said, "because I bought a $1,000 box at the inauguration ball tonight, and I'd hate for it to be empty."

THE PRESIDENT seemed to look at us as he said, "I pledge to you that where this government should act, we will act boldly and lead boldly. But just as important is the role that each and every one of us must play as an individual and member of the community."

Strudel said, "They promised me when I made my political contribution that the White House would personally pay for the overruns on my gazebos. But now the President seems to be hedging on it."

"That's just for the public," I assured Strudel. "Everyone knows big business is dependent on Washington, and no administration is going to turn its back on you just because you're losing money on your gazebos."

The President read on, "Let us pledge together to make these next four years the best four years in America's history, so that on its 200th birthday, America will be as young and vital as when it began, and as bright a beacon of hope for all the world."

STRUDEL APPLAUDED as the President finished. Then he recognized Klaus Engelfinger of the National Milk Producers League. "What did you think of it?" Strudel asked him.

"I think he could have exempted dairymen when he was talking about people doing more for themselves," Engelfinger said.

"And Grumman Aircraft," the man behind us yelled.

"And Penn Central," a man in a homburg shouted.

"Why leave out Lockheed?" another distinguished guest yelled.

"Or Litton Industries," a guest chimed in.

Strudel seemed to feel better. "See all you guys at the ball."

Regional Government Plan Flickers Anew

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A major new legislative drive to create a powerful regional government in the Bay Area will be launched this session by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond.

Similar proposals by Knox have foundered annually since 1968, but he predicted passage this time because of a new twist to the measure and because for the first time the session will run two years, giving more time to work for passage.

New to the bill will be a compromise by Knox to have the regional agency's governing board composed almost entirely of city councilmen and county supervisors. This would parallel the system at the Association of Bay Area Governments, which opposed Knox's earlier efforts to have a directly elected board.

The bill, however, would allow citizens to petition for direct election of the governing board after several years. How many years has not been set, but Knox said it will have to be long enough "to give a reasonable chance to get started and a reasonable chance for judgement on its performance."

He said he also may provide for representation on the board from the general public and special districts.

The assemblyman said the new agency eventually would absorb every regional governmental entity in the Bay Area, including the Golden Gate Bridge District. To propose absorption of that agency in the bill, however, would create too many enemies to pass it, he added.

Initially, Knox said, the new government structure would include only the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, Metropolitan Transportation Commission and Bay Area Sewage Services Agency. He termed it "a small step toward consolidation."

The boundaries of the new agency may coincide with those of the air pollution control district, he said, which would exclude northern Sonoma and Northeastern Solano County.

He acknowledged that a new complication facing the bill may result from last session's bill (SB 90) that overhauled state financing. It also required the Legislature to appropriate funds for any local program it orders, thus requiring a two-thirds approval in both houses instead of a majority vote.

Knox said he probably would fund the new agency by an additional tax on the transfer of real property, as he did in an earlier bill. The buyer would pay the tax, but only on the equity.

Using a rate of 40 cents per $1,000, as in his earlier bill, a buyer of a $32,000 home who paid one-quarter down in cash would pay a tax of $3.20.

The new agency's real teeth would be its power to veto local general planning and ordinances inconsistent with a regional plan.

A Vote Against Viet Resolution

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Sen. Joe Neal, D-Las Vegas, the only black in the Nevada Senate, cast the lone dissenting vote Wednesday on a resolution commending President Nixon for bringing an end to the Vietnam War.

Neal said, "this resolution was conceived in haste and should come up near the end of the (legislative) session when we can better understand what the cease-fire is all about. I'm going to vote 'no,' but I want you to understand that doesn't mean I'm for the war."

Neal had also voted against a resolution commending Nixon and Vice President Spiro Agnew on their inauguration.

Bill Would Lower Age For Criminals

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill making 18-year-olds adults in criminal matters has been introduced by Republican Sen. Dennis E. Carpenter of Newport Beach.

Carpenter, an opponent of lowering the voting age to 18, said his bill (SB94) would make 18-year-olds "responsible as adults to the judicial system" as they are now in the social, civic and political areas.

Group Sets Service Need Study

In an effort to find out the service needs of Corte Madera residents, a public hearing will be held by a town study group at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in town hall.

The meeting is sponsored by the community services subcommittee of the Corte Madera General Plan Study Committee — a group of citizens appointed by the mayor, Holmes S. (Pete) Norville, to provide community advice to general plan revision.

Sue Allan, chairman of the subcommittee, said the types of services and facilities to be considered include fire, police, public works, traffic, sanitary, recreation, library, emergency and flood control services, plus undergrounding utilities and cable television.

The role of her subcommittee, one of five such sections working on the general plan revision, is rather "amorphous," said Mrs. Allan, since its subject is hard to define.

"We want the opportunity for anybody to see we really need more of this, or less of that," explained Mrs. Allan, "and want interested citizens to express their views concerning needed services and facilities, both public and private."

End To Job Ban Sought In Suit By Homosexuals

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A class-action suit has been filed in U.S. District Court to overturn a decision that would bar federal employment to all homosexuals.

The Society for Individual Rights, a homosexual organization, and Donald W. Hickerson, 25, a former supply clerk for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, sued the government in behalf of all federal workers who claim they have been fired solely on the basis of being homosexual.

Hickerson said Wednesday he was fired in 1971 from his $5,280-a-year job after a routine check showed he had been discharged from the Army for admitting he was gay.

Judge Calls Bugging Defense 'Ridiculous'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — His deep-set, dark eyes flashing, Federal Judge John J. Sirica told lawyers for defendants in the Watergate political espionage trial they were "ridiculous" when they argued their clients broke into Democratic national headquarters to protect President Nixon.

Sirica dressed down the attorneys Wednesday while rejecting the request of Watergate defendant James W. McCord Jr. that he be allowed to build his defense around the argument that he spied on the Democrats to guard Nixon and other Republican officials from harm.

McCord, the former chief of security for Nixon's re-election committee, and G. Gordon Liddy, a former White House aide, are being tried on charges of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping growing out of a break-in at the Democratic National Committee offices last June. Five other defendants have pleaded guilty.

The three-week-old trial was in recess today during the national day of mourning for former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

At the close of Wednesday's proceedings, Sirica ordered the jury from the District of Columbia courtroom and called the lawyers before the bench. The black robed judge launched into a lecture, saying it was his opinion that McCord, a former CIA and FBI operative, should have notified the proper authorities if he feared for the safety of Republican officials.

"But no, he elected to take the law into his own hands and said 'I'm going to go into Democratic headquarters, I'm going to tap those phones, I'm going to bug it,'" the judge said.

"The Republican National Committee is just another organization... It doesn't have all the rights in the world. What would they be saying if the Democrats did it to them? They wouldn't like it a bit. There would be a great hue and cry."

Then Sirica concluded, "I happen to be a Republican but any decent American—Republican or Democrat—deplores this kind of conduct and you know it as well as anybody else. I try never to let the jury know how I feel but after all we judges are human ... It doesn't take a whole lot of common sense to come to the conclusion if this kind of defense were presented to the jury—well, I just think it would be ridiculous, frankly—speaking bluntly."

Teacher Strikes

Since public schools opened in the fall, the nation has been peppered with teacher strikes and threats of strikes. Teachers have not always been successful in getting what they strike for. Many school systems, especially those in the big cities are in dire financial straits. There is an oversupply of teachers. Only 17 states permit collective bargaining contracts with teachers. Pennsylvania and Hawaii are the only states in which teachers can legally strike.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the main tax used to finance most U.S. public schools?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — "Forty-Niners."

SURE THING?

South won the first trick with the ace of diamonds and saw that he could ruff one spade in dummy and discard another on the king of diamonds. This seemed like a pretty sure thing, so South led a spade at once.

East won with the ace of spades and returned a trump to declarer's ace. South led a spade to dummy, discarded a spade on the king of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. Then he ruffed his last spade with dummy's ten of trumps.

TRIFLING MATTER

There remained only the trifling matter of getting back to his own hand to draw the rest of the trumps. Unfortunately, dummy had nothing but clubs.

Declarer had to cash the ace of clubs and then lead the king of clubs in the hope that both would get by. Disaster struck at the ninth trick, when West ruffed the king of clubs.

It is very unlikely that South can make the slam with a 5-0 club break. But South can surely make the hand against a 4-1 break.

SECOND TRICK

At the second trick, South should lead a club to dummy's ace. He discards a club on the king of diamonds and ruffs a club. He gets back to dummy with the ten of trumps and ruffs another club. Then he draws trumps.

By this time the clubs are set up, and South can lead a spade to force entry to the dummy. He eventually gets back to dummy with another spade to run the good clubs and fulfill the slam contract.

Veneman May Return To State

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —John Veneman, undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare, has indicated he may soon leave his federal post to return to California and possibly run for lieutenant governor.

"It's fair to say that I'm looking at that option," Veneman said when asked whether he plans to run for the No. 2 office in state government.

Veneman, a former California assemblyman, told a news conference Wednesday that if he decides to seek a statewide office it probably will be the lieutenant governorship "because that's where my best qualifications are."

WAVE PROJECT'S AIM

Do-It-Yourself Divorces

By PAT PERRY

The room has a blue ceiling, gold walls and red rocking chairs. Ferns and potted plants line the window sills and a teapot sends up wisps of fragrant steam. The view from the window shows rooftops and utility wires of downtown San Rafael.

This cheerful room on the second floor of the Cheda Building is Marin's Do Your Own Divorce Center, and what goes on inside it has pleased some people, surprised others, and just plain angered a lot of attorneys.

In charge is Martha Hoffman, a 38-year-old former social worker, who lives in Sausalito and reckons being a divorce counselor is "a good feeling . . . something direct of good service to someone . . ."

The center, at 1209 Fourth Street, opened last month, and already has attracted customers from as far away as Red Bluff. The brainchild of Berkeley attorney Charles E. Sherman, it has counterparts in seven other California cities, and goes under the name "The Wave Project."

For a fee of $55, Miss Hoffman helps on paperwork for someone who has reached agreement on an uncontested divorce with his or her spouse.

The whole idea, of course, is to avoid paying attorney's fees, which average around $400 for an uncontested case.

In the bright little office, Miss Hoffman first tries to get potential clients to buy Sherman's book, "How To Do Your Own Divorce In California," for $4.95.

"I encourage people to do their own divorce completely using the book," said Miss Hoffman. "And over half the people I've seen so far have gone ahead that way."

But if the man or woman wants some help, she will give it. For the fee.

Once she's convinced that a spouse really is certain that the divorce won't be contested, "then I go over everything with them . . . questions like property and have they thought about what they'll want to do with it, child custody and support . . ."

"I make it clear that I am not an attorney, that they are representing themselves. I don't tell anyone what to do, I ask questions and they make their own decisions."

One thing she does perform is type out numerous forms needed to obtain a divorce. The person seeking the divorce (the petitioner) has to file personally the completed forms at the Marin County clerk's office, and has to arrange service of the summons on the spouse (the respondent).

The center's fee of $55 doesn't include the cost of the forms (in Marin the whole filing package costs 25 cents at the county clerk's office) and it doesn't include the filing fee of $37.50.

Miss Hoffman, originally from Portland, Ore., did her graduate work in social welfare at Berkeley, and has worked in a child guidance clinic in Children's Hospital in San Francisco, and in a psychiatric day care center in San Francisco.

She describes people using her service as "pretty well put together in that they know what they want and don't want to screw the other person. They simply want to get out of a situation they think isn't good, but they don't want to pay huge amounts of money to do it."

COUNSELING — In the informal surroundings of San Rafael's Do Your Own Divorce Center, Martha Hoffman explains to a client some of the paperwork that will be entailed when she files for dissolution of her marriage.

"The more I am doing, the more I am feeling $55 is a reasonable fee — it isn't just a matter of sitting down and typing the forms, it's a matter of relating to other people, being supportive and giving good service."

One woman she attempted to encourage to file for divorce using only the book answered: "Look, I just want to come in here and lay it on you."

If there are any conflicts in the proposed divorce, said Miss Hoffman, she will refer people to an attorney. She's assembled a list of local attorneys whose fees are considered reasonable, and has succeeded in securing "partial" consultations for couples.

"And if they're really in turmoil I refer them to consulting agencies, like family services and mental health services — this is another reason I wanted to work in Marin, there are such excellent services here."

Miss Hoffman — who's never been married or divorced — says she hasn't personally met much opposition from attorneys or other agencies.

But the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco considers that since "there is no judicial discretion involved in filling out the forms," petitioners might just as well type them themselves.

"Many petitioners find they are unable to dissolve their marriage themselves and must still engage the services of an attorney," said public relations representative Gail Harmon.

"California law prohibits any unlicensed person from practicing law. So if you do need a lawyer, why shell out the $55 to the 'expert' in the first place?"

Charles E. Sherman, who wrote the bible of the do-it-yourself divorce, said he never really wanted to get into the service. "To tell you the truth, I would just as soon someone else would do it," he said. "I'd like to see legalized divorce counselors."

The reason he opened California's seven "Wave Project" centers, said Sherman, was because several ill-organized centers sprang up offering second-rate counseling in the wake of his book.

"There is a need for some other alternative than going to lawyers and paying $400," emphasized Sherman. "The lawyers have had a monopoly over divorce for a long time and have abused it . . . The majority of cases are uncontested, but people still have to pay at least $400."

Sherman said he considers a hassle with the State Bar Association inevitable, "but I would like to work with the bar and create some constructive and productive alternative."

The State Bar Association is indeed looking into the operation of Sherman's centers.

Andrew Ritchey, chief counsel of the bar's unauthorized practice section, said the lawyers have been looking into the centers statewide "primarily from the possibility of harm that has been done to the public."

Divorce, said Ritchey, isn't nearly as simple as it appears from looking at the forms.

"Unless you see the legal problems that might be there you may waive valuable rights."

Often the problems won't surface until years after the divorce, said Ritchey, "and you'll wind up paying attorneys more in the long run."

Nevertheless, for a couple who have agreed on an amicable split, paying out several hundred dollars to make the dissolution legal is hard to take.

A San Rafael mother of two who is currently using the "Wave" center, said:

"I couldn't afford it the other way, yet my husband and I have been agreed on everything for a year now. I've been divorced before and the last time it cost me close to $1,000 — I had to pay his attorney fees, too. I'd just as soon do it myself."

Privately, many attorneys agree that some form of official divorce counseling for uncontested cases is certain to appear in California before too long. In California in 1970 at least $63 million was paid to attorneys to handle dissolution of marriage actions, and the divorce rate is going up, not down.

Service Board Probe By Grand Jury Asked

By PAT ANGLE

A group of Marin City homeowners called last night for a grand jury investigation of the Marin City Community Services District, charging that the district board "is not serving the community."

About 30 members of the Marin City Homeowners and Improvement Association, who met specially to discuss the district, also said it would ask the county administrator's office to take over district operations until the probe is completed, according to Jesse E. Berry, a vice president of the association. A letter will be sent to the board of supervisors this week, he said.

(County Administrator John F. Barrows said today he did not think the county had a legal right to take over the district's administration, since the agency derives its power from the state, not the county)

The residents complained that the district's $75,000 budget is not being spent for the benefit of the community, Berry said.

"One of the district's main functions is to provide the community with supervised, planned recreational programs," he said. "This doesn't mean simply unlocking the doors (to the Manzanita Center) to let the kids jump around a little and that's what we have now."

Frank J. Phillips Sr., chairman of the services district board, dismissed the homeowners actions as the work of only a very small group of Marin City residents, "10 or 15 families, not even 10 per cent of the community.

"Our board would welcome a grand jury investigation because we have nothing to hide," Phillips said.

He went on to say that the district's executive director, Daniel Winters, has responsibility for setting up and administering recreational programs.

"We have been complaining for months that he (Winters) hasn't been doing his job," the chairman said, adding that was why the district has taken steps to fire Winters. (The board will consider his dismissal at its Feb. 15 meeting.)

Phillips also suggested the homeowners initiate a recall of the board members "if they think we're not doing our job. That's the democratic process, so I can't see why they don't do that and not waste time with an investigation."

He said the services district board will hold a special meeting next week —at a date and place to be announced —to "answer any charges any citizen in the community wants to bring against us."

Van Brings Help To Taxpayers

For Marin and Sonoma residents annually puzzled by their income tax forms, the Internal Revenue Service will offer mobile help for the first time in February and March.

During those months, the IRS said it will offer a complete range of help in Marin and Sonoma from traveling vans.

Aboard each vehicle will be all commonly used forms and tax experts to help fill out returns and accept completed returns.

Marin and Southern Sonoma stops for the vans, which will be open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays, will be:

Feb. 5 and 6 at the Petaluma Plaza, 100 North McDowell Boulevard, Petaluma.

Feb. 21 and March 1 at the Corte Madera Shopping Center in Corte Madera.

Feb. 22 at the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Feb. 23 and Mar. 2 at the Town and Country Shopping Center in Strawberry.

Feb. 24 and 26 at the Novato Fair Shopping Center.

Feb. 27 at the Ignacio Shopping Center.

Feb. 28 in the Parkade in Fairfax.

March 3 on Park Street in Sausalito.

Man Arrested For Failing To Show In Court

A 24-year-old Novato man, wanted by San Rafael police on suspicion of car theft and by county authorities for failing to show for trail, was arrested Tuesday in Northeast, Md.

Danny Ray Pyles of 1318 Leafwood Drive was returned to Marin County early today by San Rafael police. He was booked into county jail to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

He was arrested on a superior court warrant charging robbery and conspiracy which was issued when he failed to appear Oct. 24 for trial on suspicion of participating in the robbery of Ralph D. Hoy, 79-year-old television repairman. No bail was set on the warrant.

A second warrant which carries a $5,000 bail was issued when he was suspected of taking a rented car when he fled east.

A Further Probe Into Coed Slaying

I-J Special Report

SANTA CRUZ — Homicide investigators were to confer today with pathologists from Monterey County to determine whether pieces of a dismembered body found on beaches in the two counties are those of the same person, 18-year-old Cynthia Ann Schall of San Rafael.

Santa Cruz police are positive that a pelvis, torso and one hand are those of the Schall girl, of 175 Clinton Court. Investigators speculate that legs, feet and two arms severed at the wrist and shoulder found on a shoreline cliff in Monterey County also are those of the murdered Cabrillo College coed, according to Santa Cruz Police Lt. Charles Sheer. Final word on a possible link was expected today.

Miss Schall had been reported missing Jan. 8 after leaving a home where she was a live-in babysitter to hitchhike six miles to class.

Insurance Eyed For Care In Doctor's Office

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, has introduced legislation to insure that health insurance premiums are paid for treatment in a doctor's office as well as at a hospital.

Moscone said under some health insurance plans a patient must be hospitalized in order to receive coverage for treatment that could be performed elsewhere.

He said his bill (SB107), introduced Wednesday, would take "insurance companies out of the position of dictating to medical practitioners where their patients should be treated" in order to receive payment coverage.

To Be Keynoter

All Students Benefitted In Cross-Age Tutoring

A pilot program last spring at Lucas Valley School in which fourth graders tutored second graders in reading skills improved the reading abilities of all students involved, the Dixie School District board learned last night.

Tests given before and after the program — which involved 45 pupils in each grade — show that both groups of students made more progress than would have resulted had they been enrolled in traditional reading programs, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

Though supervised cross-age tutoring has been used in the district before, the three-month program which ended last May marked the first time fourth and second graders had been involved, said Lucas Valley School principal Patricia Barnes, who headed the effort.

Fourth grade tutors and their second grade pupils —some of whom appeared at the board meeting last night —enjoyed the program and reported the project had their approval, Campbell said.

Some cross-age tutoring is continuing at Lucas Valley School and may be used on a wider scale in the future, Mrs. Barnes said today.

The Dixie School District board also:

FRINGE BENEFITS — Discussed fringe benefits for employees but took no action.

ELECTION — Passed a resolution consolidating the school district trustee election — at which time three trustee seats expire — with the San Rafael City election on April 17.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Feb. 14.

Mass Transit Plans Outlined

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Mass transit and clean air programs in California could be financed by gas tax money under a constitutional amendment introduced in the Assembly.

Currently the state collects about $1 billion a year in gas tax revenue and spends it all on highway-related purposes.

Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, would change that situation with his measure, which Sierra Club lobbyist John Zierold endorsed strongly in an interview Wednesday.

How To Stop Smoking February 11 at 3:00

On Sunday afternoon, Feb. 11, a group of men and women will arrive — one by one — at the St. Helena Health Center. Most will not know each other. But all will have a common purpose — to stop smoking. Join this group and you will work with our team of experts (physicians — including a pulmonary specialist — physical therapists, a dietician and clinical counselors) for five days. You will learn how to overcome the physical addiction to tobacco, how to restore lost breathing capacity, how to cope with the tensions that "call for a cigarette," and how to keep your weight in line. By Friday, Feb. 16, you should be able to return home free of nicotine and in better health than you've been for a long time. (The fresh mountain air, attractive private rooms and good food make the St. Helena experience a real rest cure.) Send the coupon now for more details, or telephone for our brochure.

If you cannot attend our February 11 session, plan to join us March 4 or March 11.

Minority Hiring Goals Questioned By Weissich

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Trustees of the California State University and Colleges are worried that the federally-ordered program to increase hiring of female and minority-race faculty members will cause "reverse discrimination" against better qualified white males.

"It's pretty obvious that a great many of our campuses, in order to meet the so-called goals, are hiring people who otherwise would not be hired," said trustee William O. Weissich of San Rafael yesterday.

"I fear the quality of the faculty over the years will be eroded."

At Weissich's urging, the trustees at their meeting established a committee to consider whether the 19-campus system should go along with the federal "affirmative action" guidelines issued last fall.

The guidelines were put out by the Department of Health Education and Welfare's civil rights office, urging goals and timetables for increasing the percentage of women, blacks, Chicanos and other minority faculty members on college and university staffs.

The results that college presidents, Weissich said, "are in the position of having the federal government hold a pistol to your head ... to accomplish these goals you're going to have to discriminate against white males.

"We're getting involved in much the same thing as Nazi Germany did under Hitler. Then, they were asking how much Jewish blood do you have? Now, we're asking how much Negro or Indian blood do you have? I hate to see the United States involved in this kind of thing."

Weissich said there have already been "quite a few abuses" in the state university and college system.

A department chairman at one school told a faculty candidate that only those who could meet the "affirmative action" guidelines would be considered for a vacant post, Weissich said. An administrator on another campus ruled that three of 35 new faculty positions would be filled by blacks or Chicanos or else left vacant, he said.

The trustees appointed a committee of students, faculty members, administrators and trustees to study the problem and report to the full board in July with a recommendation for a systemwide policy on the federal guidelines.

Dr. C. Mansel Keene, vice chancellor for faculty and staff affairs, said his office had received seven complaints of reverse discrimination and none was considered valid.

He said that in 1971, 90 per cent of faculty members hired were whites and approximately 80 per cent of the total were males. "Allegations by Caucasion males of discrimination in faculty appointments must be weighed against these employment facts," Keene said.

Board Shifts Meeting Site

The Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District board will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the district plant at 300 Smith Ranch Road, instead of at the Civic Center as previously, announced, according to district secretary Lelia O'Kane.

She said the board changed the location of the meeting since the Civic Center is closed today in memory of former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The board will discuss a timetable for expansion of the Smith Ranch sanitary plant at the meeting, she said.

Workshop On Peace Scheduled

A peace workshop will go on as scheduled at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at the College of Marin Student Building, according to it's sponsor, the Christmas Eve Peace Committee.

Chairman Alan Barnett of Mill Valley said that even though a cease-fire will go into effect Saturday, "we will not have achieved peace until U.S. planes stop patrolling the borders of Vietnam, U.S. military advisors are no longer present and defense funds are diverted to domestic programs."

Speakers will be Ira Sandperl, director of the Institute for Nonviolence in Palo Alto and Mandy Carter of the San Francisco War Resistors League. They are expected to discuss war tax resistance.

Other possible topics are boycotting of manufacturers of war materials, GI centers and lobbying for peace. The workshop will conclude at 12:30 p.m.

Judicial Group To Consider Clark For Court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The controversial nomination of William P. Clark Jr. to the state Supreme Court will be considered at an open session of the Commission on Judicial Appointments March 2.

Chief Justice Donald Wright, head of the three-member commission, announced the hearing date Tuesday shortly before Gov. Ronald Reagan defended the nomination against criticism that Clark failed to obtain a law degree.

Reagan, in Los Angeles, termed the issue "phony," and added: "there have been 14 California Supreme Court justices who haven't had degrees and 10 U.S. Supreme Court justices who haven't had degrees."

Horsemen Readying For Big Sunny Hills Benefit Show

By PAT BALMES

Horsemen of all ages will jump fences, negotiate difficult trail obstacles, compete in equitation classes and exhibit their pleasure and stock horses at the Sunny Hills Junior Auxiliary Benefit Horse Show at Circle V Stables in Fairfax on Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 27 and 28.

English riders will show on Jan. 27 and Western on Jan. 28. Beginning at 8:30 a.m. riders will compete in 18 classes daily.

Proceeds from sponsors, entries and lunches will be used for scholarships for the Sunny Hills day treatment program. Spectators will be admitted free.

In traditional fox hunt garb Francie Gross, 23, of Larkspur will be waiting at the riding ring's gate on the first day for her turn over the hurdles. It will be her four-year-old thoroughbred's first show over fences, but Miss Gross is a hunt field veteran.

She studied hunting, dressage and stadium jumping at the Buff Camp in Burlington, Vt. A native of Grand Rapids, Mich., she rode with the Battle Creek Hunt.

Over a year ago she took time off from her University of Michigan studies to come here. She took advanced jumping lessons from Bitsy Shields at Circle V Stables and when Mrs. Shields invited her to become her student instructor, Miss Gross decided to become a professional horsewoman.

She strives to teach children not just good hunt seat equitation but the ability to handle their horses. Each "fascinatingly different" student has different problems with his horse. Some horses need pushing, some are too bold so you have to quiet them down, she explained.

She works privately with a timid young child, keeping the horse circling her on a lunge line while Miss Gross talks constantly to the child to take his mind off his fear.

When the child relaxes he is happy and has "a beautiful natural ability," she said.

DEPENDING ON the child, Miss Gross is strict and insistent that he does what she tells him. She does not allow him to jump until he has gained experience, she said.

After a fall, unless he has fallen on his head or neck, she tells the child to walk the horse for five minutes and then get back on. "I don't let them think about it long," she said.

"A horse show is like a final exam; you know what to work on. It can be fun. You do not just go to win," she said, cautioning parents not to become competitive and pressure the child. "Be there, but not near."

On the second day, Mrs. John Koepke of Mill Valley and her daughters Kathy, 10, and Karen, 8, will trailer their Western horses to the show.

They will show their mounts in pleasure and equitation classes judged as to seat and hands of rider, performance of horse, appointments of horse and rider and horse's suitability to his rider.

In pleasure classes judging emphasizes the horse's performance. In equitation competition judging emphasizes the rider's ability.

"The Sunny Hills show is especially nice for us since it has classes for 12-year-old and under junior riders. In many shows junior classes are for 17 year olds and under; the competition is a little too keen for a 10 and an 8-year-old," said Mrs. Koepke, wife of a management consulting firm vice president.

Since her daughters' horses are older and more experienced than their riders, the girls must learn from the horses for some time before they can graduate to younger horses and possibly do some training, said their mother.

When Peggy Koepke was growing up in Nebraska, her father, a physician, went into the Arabian horse breeding business as a hobby. She helped select horses for his breeding program and exhibited his horses on the Arabian show circuit.

HER SHOW horse Chazar was a sire for her father's breeding program. His grandsire, Witez II, was a famous Arabian stallion who was brought to the United States from Poland as spoils of war and became a leading foundation sire in this country, she said.

Now she rides Chazar on Marin water district trails where she once spotted a young wildcat and, another time, a mountain lion. Her favorite kind of riding is on trails with a good friend and a saddlebag lunch.

Asked to advise uninitiated parents whose children love horses, Mrs. Koepke made suggestions: first find a good riding instructor. Most have their own horses which they use just for teaching. Start a child Western or English at about 8, unless a child is around horses routinely. Lesson money is better spent on a child who is large enough to do more than just hang on. His legs should be long enough to give adequate signals to his horse and he should be old enough to make good use of what he is learning.

She said that when the child has a good basic foundation in horsemanship is the time to consider buying a horse. Make inquiries, check classified ads, take your time and bring along an experienced horseman. Before purchasing any horse get a signed statement from a veterinarian that the horse is in good health.

SHE BELIEVES an ideal mount for a beginner is a horse, rather than a pony, and a gelding rather than a mare, in good health with a good disposition and a fair amount of training. He should be 10 to 14 years old, although some older horses are excellent for beginning riders.

"I can't think of a nicer way to rear children than with the help of a well-trained and well-mannered horse. Owning and showing a horse, besides being fun, gives a child self-confidence, a sense of responsibility and the ability to win or lose with grace," she said.

Flattering

Dark skinned women can be exquisitely flattered by champagne tones of cultured pearls.

Simplicity Key In Bohan Designs

Pared down simplicity in an easy style is characteristic of Marc Bohan's designs for the Dior collection for spring and summer.

The soft shirtdress is one example, reports Women's Wear Daily, but the simple look runs in variations of the collections from sportwear to evening clothes. Most hemlines are knee or mid-calf.

New Guild President Is Chosen

Newly elected president of the Redwood Guild of Sunny Hills is Mrs. Eugene E. Crawford of Mill Valley.

Mrs. Crawford, who has been a member of the Guild for nine years, is a former vice president, secretary, membership chairman, and Ways and Means chairman.

The purpose of the organization, according to Mrs. Crawford, is "To assist Sunny Hills in enlarging the number of its supporters and in raising funds for its support."

Women who are interested in supporting the Sunny Hills program are invited to membership. The group now has 35 active members.

The guild's major fund-raising event will be sponsoring a production of the Ross Valley Players in May. Their main product for sale at the Grape Festival in October is Colonel Wellington's Chutney, made by the members.

Susan Crawford is the wife of Eugene E. Crawford, an architect and a principal of the firm Crawford and Banning, Architects, in San Rafael. The family has lived in Marin county for 26 years. They have two children, Bruce Crawford and Mrs. John Badger.

A native of Illinois, Mrs. Crawford attended Mills College in Oakland. She enjoys tennis, painting, sewing, gardening and travel.

Installed with Mrs. Crawford at a luncheon last week at the home of Mrs. Fred Drexler in Mill Valley, were members of the incoming board, Mmes. Earl F. Reinke, vice president; Jorgen With-Seidelin, recording secreatry; Van R. Peterson, corresponding secretary, and J. Ralph Martindale, treasurer.

The Soft Look

The caftan sleeved coat is one of Roman designer Valentino's new looks for summer, as shown in the Rome collections last week. It features the soft, uncluttered look, one model in white cashmere teamed with a white silk princess dress.

Engagement Of Couple Is Revealed

The engagement of Marta Von Loewenfedt and Philip Malcolm Homer is being announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Von Loewenfeldt of San Rafael. Philip's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Homer of San Anselmo.

The future bride is the sister of Capt. Carl Von Loewenfeldt, Mrs. Takashi Haruna and Maria Paula and Madelon Von Loewenfeldt. Her grandparents are Mrs. Ida Von Loewenfeldt and W.G. Von Loewenfeldt, both of San Francisco. She attended Marin Catholic High School, Sir Francis Drake High School and College of Marin and is in her sophomore year at the University of California at Berkeley. She is employed by Schwabecher-Fry in San Francisco.

Philip is the brother of Mrs. Monty Martin and Patricia, Joseph, Thomas, James, Ann and Stella Homer. Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Phillips of Torrance are his grandparents. He was graduated from Drake High School.

The couple will be married when the future bridegroom completes a tour of duty with the Navy in the late summer.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Sometimes The Apron String Is Held Too Tightly, Give A Little

SUE AND HELEN:

Since you're a mother-daughter team I decided to write to you instead of another columnist, because I can't communicate very well with my parents, even though I love them a lot. I really do!

See, I'm 14 and like a college guy who is 19. We have a lot in common and can talk for hours without getting bored. At first it was just talk, but after four months it's started turning to something more. I mean he kisses me occasionally, nothing else. I'm a relatively good Catholic and I would never break the rules.

My Dad and Mom (mainly Dad) said I was seeing too much of Chris, and have now forbidden me to even talk to him on the phone. Because he's not a Catholic and besides he's "too old for me."

Just before I wrote this I had another talk with Dad. He told me I was upsetting Mom to the point where she cries, and also upsetting him greatly. He thinks he has failed but, Helen and Sue, he hasn't! They're the greatest parents, just slightly on the old-fashioned side. Like he thinks Chris has taken his and Mom's place as far as my love is concerned. I tell him just because I care for Chris doesn't mean I don't love my parents, but he can't see that.

Well, you can guess, I still try to see Chris sometimes. We've decided we can wait to really date until I'm older, but what's the harm in talking with him? I hate "sneaking," but I don't think it's "sinning" to sort of love a guy just because he's five years older and a Protestant. Honest, my Dad has nothing else against him.

Please help if you can! — TORN AND HEARTBROKEN T AND HB:

Your letter shows a lot of maturity: you can see your parents' side as well as your own. When you talk to your Dad does this come through? Or do you both get uptight and say things you don't really mean?

Maybe you could say it better in another letter. . .that tells your parents how you and Chris feel and why they don't have to worry about his kind of love. Try it — and good luck! — SUE

DEAR TORN'S PARENTS:

When you give a little you usually gain a lot — especially when your daughter displays the kind of thoughtfulness and maturity that means she won't misuse your trust.

Yes, it's frightening when your teen-ager likes an "older man." But sometimes he is more protective than those in the high school crowd. Why not check Chris out and let him come to visit? — HELEN

RAP:

I'm a 15-year-old girl and my friends are around the same age. A couple of nights ago we were all in the parking lot and a cop car came around the corner. Well, they took us in and we got a small record for it.

I'm not saying we didn't deserve it as we have been chased from corners before — not for doing wrong, just for being there in a crowd.

This doesn't bother me as much as the question, "Where can about 25 kids go and not have the police called?" I guess we look like a "mob" even if we're just talking and laughing.

The cops said we should stay in and study, but can't we ever get together outside —or someplace? Do any other kids have the answer? — THE CEDAR LANERS

CEDAR LANERS:

Other kids often have teenage gathering places — either in someone's home or at school, church, skating rink or community center. With 25 of you looking, surely you can find a place to meet —but first you must find an adult group to sponsor you. Good luck. — HELEN AND SUE

PARENT AND CHILD

Grandparents Must Play A Role, Too

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Somehow grandparents and great-grandparents need to strike a happy medium between living their own lives and being dependent on their children.

Sociologists in the United States tell us that the gap between the generations — particularly for the older generation — is growing, not receding. For example, families which used to include parents and grandparents in their own homes now provide them with separate accommodations.

And with this separation, comes a certain degree of isolation, particularly for grandparents. This means that young children who are much in need of wise counsel often seek advice from those outside their intimate family.

The loving concern of a wise grandfather, meeting the needs of a troubled grandson just entering his teens, can't be dupllicated by a half-hour talk from an "expert" in the school gymnasium.

YET, TOO often, this is all a young boy gets in the way of sex education. Mother leaves it to dad, who neglects it for his job. And granddad, who could slip it into several conversations in a way which wouldn't confuse or embarass doesn't because he's not part of the family.

But this need not be. Just because grandparents are able to have their own living accommodations, and are able to spend the majority of their time with those of their own generation, it does not mean that there shouldn't be an active family relationship.

Parents may think that they don't need the grandparents around to help them raise their own children. They may even have come to this decision after considerable friction caused by too-close living arrangements. But being cut off completely from the loving concern and wise guidance of older adults is unfair to the young.

The problem of the multiple generations gap does not seem to be one-sided.

For their part, grandparents who can afford it may actually appear to prefer to live away from their families and to stay clear of responsibility for the rearing of the second and third generations.

AND MANY young parents may reinforce this appearance of aloofness by making trips to or with grandparents a rare occasion. Some even teach their children, by example, to discredit what grandmother or grandfather has to say.

Generally this type of generation isolation does not take place in farm families. The children, grandchildren, and even great-grandchildren know that "gramps" is a good source of information about how to train a horse which always shies to the left, or how to get old Bessie to relax at milking time, or how to know when a ewe is ready to lamb.

Farm children know that grammy can show them the best berry patches and how to bake a cake. While farm grandparents may live in their own homes, they generally are not so far away that they can't be called on when needed. A visit to the grandparents is not a dress-up affair. It is a natural happening, a mutual sharing of affections and concerns.

But urban life appears to create a false barrier between the generations. The argument runs that horse-and-buggy grandparents can't relate to space-age grandchildren. This need not be so.

What may be necessary, though, is for you grandparents to close the gap from your end. You must make sure that your grandchildren see more of their grandparents.

MURAL OF ambitious dimensions on far wall is called "Signal One" and is included in the wall-covering collection of Wilson's design associates in San Francisco.

WITH NEW FOIL PAPER

San Francisco Designer Puts A Shine On Walls

By MARILYN HOFFMAN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

David Winfield Wilson is the West Coast designer who first put shine on the walls.

He saw in aluminum foil a built-in reflectivity and recognized its potential for light and bold color combinations. He remembers that he actually disciplined the polished surface into an "acquiescent ground for printing."

To do so, he first had to develop new techniques of printing, even new machinery. And in 1954, he introduced a line of wallcoverings for his San Francisco-based company, Winfield Design Associates, Inc., that added a glamorous new diminsion to the traditional wallpaper field.

To assure that the approximately 25,000 paperhangers around the country would encounter no trouble in attaching the new foil paper to walls, Wilson found a suitable backing to laminate to the foil. Today one can even buy "strippable" foil paper at wallpaper stores and departments which is easily removed from walls.

HE DISCOVERED that foil, as he uses it, could greatly increase the effectiveness of a room's lighting. It could literally push back walls and create the illusion of more space. It could add verve and excitement to a dull room.

The designer's probing and experimenting never stops. A few years ago it took him into supergraphics — those extremely large designs that he made first for hotels, restaurants, and office buildings and later for homes. For these he adapted billboard printing techniques to produce his large-scale, nonrepeating patterns.

"Bold design on the wall," he says, "can accomplish two major things. It can take away the boxiness of most modern structures, and add a strong architectural feeling to a room. And since the eye has a way of looking past the wall surface into the background, it can thus make a room appear much larger." The bolder the design, he says, the greater the sense of additional space.

Dramatic design on the walls, he says, not only gives architectural strength, but takes care of a tremendous amount of interior decoration. You don't need painting nor much furniture in a room with a supergraphic on the walls, though some people have successfully used patterned foils of more subtle design as background for lots of paintings.

DAVID WILSON'S first supergraphic murals, called "the spectaculars" featured blowups — highly magnified specimens of gems, rocks, natural growths and art forms. "I entered a whole new world of seeing and encountering," the designer says, "when I turned the microscope onto a slice of Mexican agate, the heart of fire opal, the facets of a diamond, a fragment of a damask pattern."

Next came geometric graphics, called "the grand scale" and now the nine designs of "the iridescents" which are made in Kyoto, Japan, and revive the ancient art of gold leafing. They utilize as well silver, copper, and pewter leaf colors applied by Japanese craftsmen to gleaming foil backgrounds. Designs include stylized flowers, a bamboo forest, and a flame stitch called "ankara." This group, says Wilson, initiates a modern era for metal leafing, but the exquisite results are expensive — upwards of $80 per roll.

Prices for the foil printed in San Francisco and sold across the United States, as well as in Europe, Hong Kong, Australia, South Africa, and South America, are much less, ranging from $13.50 to $29.75 per roll.

Will foil fade one day in popularity? Several leading designers join Wilson in saying "No. Silver is fast becoming a standard color that always will be with us."

Meanwhile, Wilson looks ahead: "It is our responsibility to keep developing new concepts."

AT A RECENT conference of the National Society of Interior Designers, he indicated he was already thinking five years ahead. "One area that I strongly feel will soon be used as a practical wall decoration," he said, "is that of projected or electrical design for the walls."

He feels in the near future a ceiling-mounted projector will be perfected, with a high intensity light source to override general room lighting. It will have special lenses to compensate for the sharp projection angle. "It must be free of involved installation problems and reasonable in price," he feels "so that it is within a realistic budget for the general public."

With such a projector, he predicts, people will be able, wtih the touch of a button, to project scenics, patterns, supercharged colors, restful seascapes, or whatever else they prefer, onto their walls.

Another technique will "wrap" walls in action-filled color, providing visual impact along with musical background. He also sees in our future wall-to-wall television screens, which will work on an entirely new principle and on which can be projected your favorite television program, or your own program of "visuals."

The designer thinks a wallcoverings manufacturer such as he may one day be involved in programming new patterns and colors for such projectors or television screens.

THE MAN who first put the metallic gleam of foil on the wall, gave supergraphic wall designs a boost, and is now giving people the opportunity to enjoy Japanese metal-leafing, has no intention of standing still.

"I think of the creative process," says David Wilson, "as a state of joyful but constant labor pains. I constantly watch what is developing in furniture, fabrics, in new materials and new methods of construction. I try to listen for what people most want and need. Then I move into action."

New Cosmetic Special Scent

A New Year's present for young ladies who can give an haute couture look to faded jeans or turn a rained-out ski weekend into the season's best: cologne spray mist and perfume in a new scent.

The manufacturer of this cosmetic that comes in a burnished silver perfume flacon and a twist bottle has put the two in a handsome silver box tied with a plush red velvet ribbon.

The new fragrance, according to the manufacturer, blends with a person's special chemistry to produce "her own very special scent."

Crop Of Pearls Gets Smaller

There's a practical reason for buying cultured pearls now.

Water pollution and labor shortages in Japan are creating problems for the pearl growing industry there.

Since Japan produces all the world's cultured pearls, these problems are getting rather serious.

The crop of pearls that will be gathered next spring will be the smallest in a decade, with the percentage of fine, gem quality pearls even smaller.

Twin Sweaters

Twin sweater sets for girls are popular with buyers who are readying collections for summer wear. The sets and halters for children and juniors will be a strong trend for late spring and summer, according to Women's Wear Daily.

Deceptive Store Practices Outlined In Buyer's Guide

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The other day one of the supermarket chain outlets in my neighborhood marked avocados at 49 cents each. Next day, back to pick up a few items, I noted the price had gone to 59 cents.

The store had not even bothered to put up a new sign— just marked out the old price, marked in the new.

Stores lose by such erratic pricing, but they make it up in other ways, as staples for instance keep inching up despite those Nixon Administration pricing regulations.

Certainly not all stores are out to "take us". But there is plenty of deception going on in the areas not only of food but of furniture and appliances.

THE METROPOLITAN New York's Better Business Bureau (BBB) says so—and outlines some of the deceptive practices, and what to do about them, in its latest "Wise-buying Guide" series.

Jean Drissell of the BBB staff compiled the new booklet from thousands of complaints coming into the bureau's offices and from researchers in the field.

"Deceptive sales practices particularly apply to low income areas," she said in an interview. "And I'm not talking just about New York. They affect every metropolitan area in the country."

Consider the matter of food alone: the purchases take a major part of our income, whether we're low, middle or high bracket.

Miss Drissell considers first the advertised specials. "They are a great boon—if they're there," she says. "Unfortunately some stores run out of specials without giving 'rain checks' ... or perhaps never stocked enough of the item in the first place.

"When you go into a store in answer to a special, take the ad along with you.

"And most important of all, watch the checker as she rings up the sale. It's possible, in fact, probable, that she's ringing up the regular price..."

MISS DRISSELL advocates something else I've never had the nerve to do (There's that line of other customers behind me). "Ask the checker to wait until you've emptied your shopping cart before she starts to ring up the items...(so) you can watch the figures she rings up."

I have seen some brave customers ask the checker to re-total every item and I know several clever women who carry mini adding machines and tote up the total as they fill the cart. If there's a difference between their total and the checker's, they have a case.

IMPULSE BUYING is the largest consumer trap. Don't buy anything expensive on impulse. Do comparison shopping in other stores.

—Know how much you want to spend—"it's amazing how quickly you can be switched from a $99 couch to a $500 living room set."

—Avoid stores that seem to have a perpetual "last few days of sale" signs.

—In case of a discount offer, compare prices with other stores.

Air Board Probe Unit Eliminated

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A legislative investigation of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District has been aborted by elimination of the committee conducting the probe.

The Assembly Environmental Quality Committee began its investigation of the district months ago, and last month held two days of hearings on district affairs. A third hearing was expected late this month to take testimony from the chairman of the district, but cannot be held now because the committee was abolished last week by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood.

The chairman of the district board, San Mateo County Supervisor Robert B. St. Clair, defied a subpoena to testify before the committee last month. The committee's chairman, Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-Oakland, had promised to subpoena St. Clair herself if necessary to get him to testify.

(The Independent-Journal reported incorrectly last week that the committee would continue in a reduced role as a special committee.)

A committee spokesman said Mrs. Fong nevertheless will introduce a package of bills to "reform" the structure of the district's board of directors, enforcement practices and release of information to the public. Details of the bill still were uncertain, he said.

Waste Treatment Proposal Introduced

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California would pump $250 million into construction of waste treatment facilities under a bond issue proposed in the Assembly.

Assemblyman Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco, said his measure must go to the voters in 1974 if the Legislature approves it.

Peace, Freedom Party To Eye Election Plans

Election plans for 1973 will be highlighted at a meeting of the Sonoma County Peace and Freedom Party at 7:30 p.m. today in the switchboard office at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Featured speaker will be Andy Truskier, antiwar activist and commentator on KPFA Radio in Berkeley.

Also speaking will be Charles T. Weber of Long Beach, state party chairman, and George Couch, Sonoma County chairman. Members will discuss possible candidates for 1973 elections, including city council and school board races.

Objections To Piers Are Sought

Persons opposed to construction of numerous piers and floats in Corte Madera Creek in Greenbrae may object in writing to the Army Corps of Engineers, 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco.

The corps requests the information to aid in its decision on whether to extend a joint construction permit to the Greenbrae Marina Co. and the Laguna Improvement Co.

The decision will be based on an evaluation of the impact of the proposed work on the public interest. Factors that may affect the public interest include navigation, fish and wildlife, recreation, water supply, flood damage prevention and anything else that may interfere with the needs and welfare of the people, according to a corps spokesman.

The proposed pier construction is in the Riviera Circle — Lucky Drive area of the creek.

Ermeler Duo Will Perform

The Ermeler Duo will perform works for piano and flute at 8 p.m. Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church, 72 Kensington Road, San Anselmo.

The duo of Rolf Ermeler, flutist, and Maria Ermeler-Lortzing, pianist, will play pieces by Scriabin, Debussy, Bach and a solo by Mrs. Ermeler of "Beethoven's 32 Variations in C Minor."

Ermeler is also expected to perform "Lauda," a contemporary piece written for him by German composer Siegfried Borris.

The German artists are on their second U.S. tour. He is flutist with a German ensemble that presents concerts of early Baroque music each summer in the St. Annen-Museums in Germany.

Art Display

Paintings by Al Clymer and pots by Blythedale Pottery are being featured at Gallery Three, 1026 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, through January. Hours are from 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Orchestra Piccola To Play In Italy

The Orchestra Piccola of Marin, a 27-member chamber ensemble of the Marin Youth Orchestra, has been invited to attend the 1973 Spoleto Festival of Italy, the first time an amateur group has been asked to the event.

The young musicians, between the ages of 15 and 19, also are scheduled for concerts in Rome and Florence when the festival convenes June 30 through July 6.

In preparation for its Italian tour, the orchestra plans several concerts in the Bay Area, including an engagement Feb. 28 at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building in conjunction with choirs from Tamalpais, Redwood, Sir Francis Drake, San Domenico, San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools.

Other concerts will be March 25 at the Spaghetti Factory in San Francisco and April 4 at St. Steven's Church in Belvedere.

A final performance is set April 29 at the College of Marin to commemorate the late superintendent of Kentfield schools, Anthony G. Bacich.

During the festival, the orchestra plans a marathon concert of Mozart and Haydn and a specially commissioned work by American composer Richard Cumming. The young instrumentalists also will play "La Petite Symphonie Concertante for Strings, Harp, Piano and Harpsichord" by French composer Frank Martin and "Five Pieces for Strings" by Paul Hindemith.

The ensemble is conducted by Hugo Rinaldi, director of music for San Rafael schools and founder of the Marin Youth Orchestra. Contributions may be sent to the Orchestra Piccola of Marin, 475 Montecito Drive, Corte Madera.

FROM EXECUTIVE TO WRITER — Jack Gaines (right) who turned his back on his successful corporate career in Manhattan to become a struggling writer, teaches a seminar on "Changing Life Styles" at the Marin Jewish Community Center. He said he was surprised that few of his students were retirement age persons.

A Former 'Doer' Sharing His Life Style Pattern

By JEFF GREER

Jack Gaines of Stinson Beach abruptly chopped off a 25-year career as chief executive and owner of a New York corporation to live the life of a hermit and novelist at Big Sur.

But Gaines discovered the isolation was not for him, and moved to Marin County. Now he is teaching an evening seminar in "Changing Life Styles" at the Marin Jewish Community Center.

He said Monday he doesn't urge people to change their life style as drastically as he did.

"I simply point out the process" by which he changed his own life style, Gaines said. "I have the people question themselves about what they want to do."

Gaines, 54, said he had expected more of the students to be middle-aged or older, preparing for possible dislocations arising from retirement. Instead, most of the class members are in their 30s, deeply involved in professions or business life.

"I don't have one in the class who is a drifter . . . who never has really been into any field of endeavor," Gaines said.

His own story and drastic changes in life style are foundations for a novel on which Gaines has been toiling three years since he turned his back on Manhattan. His personal experience combined with what he calls a compulsion to be "a do-gooder" also figure largely in what he tells the class.

Gaines said he was "known in New York . . ." as a doer, building up a manufacturing and import business and putting paroled convicts and other supposed unemployables into productive, responsible jobs. He was divorced, then founded an organization called "Fathers At Large" to meet the need of children from broken families for contacts with men in understanding, parental roles.

"I found that I was spending more time with Fathers at Large than with my business," Gaines recalled. "That was when I first began to wonder about my life."

The crisis grew when Gaines was told he had cancer — and weeks later was told that the doctor had erred. The "reprieve" spurred the New Yorker to change his life, but the two years following were "a very painful period."

Selling his business was like "giving up my baby" and "I had to lose the identify I had" as a Manhattan executive.

"In my day, stick-to-itivness was the adage. I was a sticker — I only had three jobs my whole life — and for a long time I didn't have a boss I could resent."

Now, "change is very fashionable, and if anything it can be a trap," Gaines warned.

"I was scared of the unknown" and "comfortable with familiar discomforts," Gaines related. "I told myself, 'when I change, I'll change everything'. I seemed to see myself as a do-gooder, and I wasn't going to help others any more."

The decision led to a lonely life in Big Sur where Gaines found only "survival without esteem." He lacked the contact with people he found necessary to fire up his typewriter.

"I've got to have an input, I'm not a perpetual motion machine. I enjoy helping others. It's a selfish thing for me," Gaines said. The Big Sur episode was "the most miserable part of my life."

Back among people, in Marin, Gaines divides his time between writing and conducting "what's really a dialogue" with the class at the Jewish Community Center. The Tuesday night sessions started Jan. 9 they originally were slated for five weeks, "but I suspect they'll go on for a while," Gaines said.

He voiced hope the seminar would help show others the personal introspection and decision making required to change life styles.

"You can't just jump onto the mountain," he said.

Novatans Hail Hamilton Stand

By FRANK FARRARA

Novato residents yesterday hailed Tuesday's decision by the Marin County Board of Supervisors to reject use of commercial aviation at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Several tempered their happiness with the belief that the battle against commercial use would have to be fought again.

"I think it is great," said Mayor F. Wayne Sartain. "I think they (supervisors) read not only Novato but countywide feelings. If it went to a referendum, it would have been defeated.

"Now that this is out of the way, we can get back to working on Gnoss Field and work aviation to our advantage."

Sartain said he also was appreciative of the supervisors' change in the makeup of the county aviation commission, under which the city will recommend one member.

With one commissioner appointed by the North Marin supervisor, one recommended by the city and one at large from the Novato area, the North Marin area "will have a substantial voice," he said.

Joseph Seminario of Black Point, head of Marin Alert, one of the leading opponents of joint military-civilian use at Hamilton, said: "I'm happy, but I'm not overjoyed. With the amount of money Howard Hughes has, that Hughes Air West has, it will probably come up again in a year or less and there isn't any real way to kill it off as long as some believe heavy industry and a big airport is good for Marin."

(Hughes Air West had proposed flying short-hop jets from Hamilton.)

City Planning Commission chairman Richard L. O'Connell said: "I'm real pleased and I think it reflects what the people of Novato want."

Planning Commissioner Gail Wilhelm said: "I'm really glad the board of supervisors understood the feelings of the people of North Marin and it's nice to know government responds to local interest."

Phillip Coady, president of the Novato Chamber of Commerce, who had favored limited joint use, said the public reaction relayed to the supervisors was based on "emotional reasons."

Supervisors heard those "who are vocal and have time to attend hearings" and who were against joint use, he said.

Coady said the majority of those opposed to joint use "don't know the facts and were just emotionally against the idea of airplanes."

Richard M. Boak, president of the Bel Marin Keys Homeowners Association, said he was "very happy to hear about it," and that the association's "number one priority is to stay on top of this thing."

Guthrie R. Greene, president of the North Marin Federation of Homeowner Associations, said the decision "is heartily applauded by officers and directors of the federation," and all 12 member associations were united in opposition to joint use.

Members were opposed because joint use would create unacceptable noise and air pollution, impose additional surface traffic "to the currently overloaded highway system" and "become the principal factor in the ultimate destruction of the esthetic tranquility and rural community way of life."

In the San Rafael area, the reaction of two businessmen differed sharply from the reaction in Novato.

William Hoey of San Rafael, a real estate broker interested in development at Hamilton Industrial Park, said, "It's a shame for the county over the long haul.

"I think transportation is the biggest single roadblock in attracting both industry and companies to Marin County," he said. "I think all we really needed was access to Los Angeles. It would have made a tremendous difference."

Sam Standard, innkeeper at the Holiday Inn, San Rafael, said the motel already has lost some conventions because of lack of an airport.

Bill Would Cut Sonoma County Out Of Planning

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Another bill to transfer Sonoma County out of Bay Area regional planning has been introduced by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

The bill, SB 36, was the third annual effort by Collier to transfer ABAG to an undefined North Coast regional planning group. Such a transfer was approved several years ago by Sonoma voters when they pulled out of the Association of Bay Area Governments.

The latest version allows two or more contiguous counties to form a new regional planning district as required to received state and federal funds for a host of local uses.

Driver Reported In Satisfactory Condition

The California Highway Patrol said the accident occurred at 12:05 a.m. today when the eastbound truck skidded on a curve, hit a utility pole and overturned.

Knox To Talk To North Bay Group Saturday

New state legislation will be a main topic Saturday in Rohnert Park at the quarterly meeting of the Redwood Empire Division of the League of California Cities.

City officials from Northern California will hear Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, as guest speaker at 7:30 p.m. at the Rohnert Park Community Center. His topic will be "Current Laws Affecting Cities."

Speaking at the 3 p.m. session at city hall will be Thomas Cooke of Sedway-Cooke Planning Consultants on "Current requirements in Planning and How to Cope With Them.

The meeting also will include a tour of Sonoma State College and golf at the Rohnert Park Municipal Golf Course.

Wife Of Water Chairman Files For Dissolution

The wife of Jordan L. Martinelli Jr., chairman of the Marin Municipal Water District board, filed yesterday to dissolve their marriage of 22 years.

Louisa J. Martinelli claimed irreconcilable differences and said in the petition filed in Marin Superior Court that the couple separated last April 1. They were married July 8, 1950, in San Francisco.

Mrs. Martinelli asked custody of the couple's child, Peter, 9, and support for him.

In addition to the water district position, Martinelli has served as a city councilman in both San Anselmo and Ross.

Martinelli, 48, is vice president of Bell Savings and Loan Association of San Rafael.

Bill Toughens Initiative Vote

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Initiative measures would need to obtain a two-thirds majority to amend the State Constitution if legislation introduced in the Assembly becomes law.

Assemblyman Leroy F. Greene, D-Sacramento, proposed an amendment to the State Constitution Wednesday in the wake of a November ballot that included nine voter initiatives. Under Greene's plan, four of the nine would have required two-thirds approval rather than a simple majority because they were constitutional amendments.

Initiatives which amend the State Constitution should be "harder" to approve, Greene said.

Today is Thursday, Jan. 25, the 25th day of 1973 with 340 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

Scottish poet Robert Burns was born Jan. 25, 1759.

In 1890, daring young New York reporter Nelly Bly returned from a trip around the world in the astounding time of 72 days, six hours and 11 minutes.

In 1915, transcontinental telephone service was inaugurated in a hookup between New Yrk and San Francisco.

In 1971, Charles Manson and three women were found guilty in the murders of actress Sharon Tate and six others.

In 1972, President Nixon said North Vietnam had ignored a peace bid which included withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Vietnam in six months.

A thought for the day: Herbert Hoover, 31st president of the United States, said, "Older men declare war. But it is youth that must fight and die."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Vitamin E Has Limited Value Despite What You Hear Of It

Word-of-mouth advertising has no equal. A case in point involves vitamin E. Some estimate that 30 million Americans are taking vitamin E and, as a result, it has exceeded vitamin C in popularity.

Oddly, less is known about vitamin E than any other vitamin, yet enthusiasts claim it is more beneficial. Reports of its therapeutic value are published mainly in health store books and over television and radio. Seldom are these studies found in scientific journals.

PROPONENTS of vitamin E believe it prevents heart attacks, retards the aging process, speeds the healing of wounds and burns, and lessens scar tissue. Vitamin E is also said to cure sterility and impotency and help diabetics and hypertensives. And, it may even alleviate leg cramps. One must admit that this is a big order for any compound to fill.

The Medical Letter, an independent publication that evaluates clinical research for some 50,000 subscribing physicians had a more guarded evaluation. It concluded that, with one exception, vitamin E has no established value in preventing or treating any common disease. The exception is a bleeding disorder that developes in some premature infants.

VITAMIN E has one advantage — it is harmless, even when used in large doses over a long period of time. My wife and I have taken from 800 to 1000 (I.U.) units daily for more than a year. I feel no different, but she thinks it makes her skin softer and not so dry.

Much of the hoopla stems from misinterpretation of experimental studies conducted on animals. For example, animals fed a diet lacking in vitamin E developed anemia, heart failure, nerve damage, muscular abnormalities, and sterility. These disorders were cured following vitamin E replacement. Enthusiasts took this to mean that anyone with these symptoms or diseases must be deficient in E. Actually, these symptoms and diseases are most commonly caused by other things.

Furthermore, vitamin E is found in so many foods that it is almost impossible for humans to develop a vitamin E deficiency.

PLANING BLOTCHES

REPLY

Residual blothces may persist for years, but they are preferred to the original acne pits and scars. Your friend should be able to camouflage the discoloration with cosmetics.

COUGHS AT NIGHT

C. M. writes: More than two years ago I quit smoking, but I still cough at night after I retire. What can I do for relief?

REPLY

Couth medicines will help temporarily, but you need a thorough examination of the heart and lungs, along with X-rays of the chest.

GOITER IN CHEST

G. C. writes: Can a chest goiter be removed without surgery?

REPLY

No. However, radioactive iodine or other antithyroid drugs will control symptoms if the enlarged gland is overactive. Surgery may be needed if pressure is causing discomfort.

Recycling Depot Now In Black

The Belvedere-Tiburon Committee for the Environment has learned that the recycling depot it has operated for the past two years is now self-supporting.

Pieter S. Myers, committee chairman, said revenue from sale of cans, bottles, paper and aluminum collected at the depot is now sufficient to pay the cost of operating expenses.

The report on the depot's success was presented to the committee by Robert L. Kleinert, Tiburon assistant city manager.

"The fact we are self-supporting is very mportant, since so many similar operations are not making it and are even going under," Myers said.

The depot was established two years ago with a $1,000 grant from the cities of Belvedere and Tiburon and has been operating chiefly on that money ever since.

Located adjacent to the Tiburon Sanitary District's treatment plant, the depot is open Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Myers said.

He said the committee now plans to expand the operation to businesses in the two communities and hopes eventually to provide pickup for the businesses' recyclable items.

Burglary Try Denied By Man

A Connecticut resident, arrested Monday after a San Rafael woman reported seeing a man in her yard, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of attempted burglary.

Ordered to appear Tuesday for preliminary hearing was George Smith, 23, of North Stonington.

Police arrested Smith; David Beaulieu, 23, of Westerly R.I., and John Woodrow Franklin, 25, of Hope Valley, R.I., on a nearby street after Virginia E. Buckley of 4 Aqua Vista Drive reported a man scaled her backyard fence and pulled a window open.

No charge has been filed against the two Rhode Island men because evidence is lacking, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino.

Syrian Is Killed By Bomb Explosion

NICOSIA (UPI) — Bomb explosions early today killed a Syrian in his hotel room and heavily damaged a car parked outside a gambling club, police said.

There was no indication the blasts were linked with recent clashes between government supporters and advocates of Cypriot union with Greece.

Girl Claims Memory Lapse

A San Rafael girl hitchhiker, who claimed she was suffering from a memory lapse, was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael Friday night for scratches and bruises, Corte Madera police said yesterday.

The girl told police she hitched a ride at Second and Hetherton streets in San Rafael on Friday evening in a 1963 Ford Falcon driven by a 30 to 35-year-old man.

As they drove south on Highway 101 the man asked "personal" questions, said the girl. She said she could remember nothing else until she found herself walking on Corte Madera Avenue at 8 p.m.

She walked to a nearby home and telephoned a friend, police said.

Alcoa To Build Magnesium Plant In Washington

COLVILLE, Wash. (UPI) — The Aluminum Company of America has announced plans to build a $50 million magnesium plant here, which will produce upwards of 40,000 tons of magnesium annually when in full production.

S. A. Jones, president of Alcoa subsidiary, Northwest Alloys, Inc., said the plant will be built at Addy, about 14 miles south of Colville, and will employ possibly 300 to 400 persons when production begins in the spring of 1975.

He said the firm has acquired about 1,200 acres of land in the area where dolomite and other raw materials are available, and said the plant itself will be built on about 240 acres of land.

The magnesium plant has been in the proposal stages for the economically depressed community since 1967.

Bodovitz Named Executive Director Of Coast Panel

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO AIRPORT — Two pioneer leaders of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission yesterday took the top spots with the new statewide commission formed by voters to preserve the coast.

Melvin B. Lane of Atherton, chairman for more than seven years of the bay commission, and Joseph E. Bodovitz of Mill Valley, executive director of the bay commission under Lane, took the same slots at the first meeting here of the California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission.

The commission was created at the polls in November with passage of Proposition 20.

Ellen Stern Harris of Beverly Hills, consumer advocate columnist for the Los Angeles Times, was elected as vice chairman.

The three were selected unanimously and without opposition in the first 24 minutes of the meeting. "Democracy wins again," Lane said of the smoothly prearranged actions.

Lane and Bodovitz had guided the bay commission since its creation in 1965, Lane resigning last month to take the governor's appointment to the new coast commission. Bodovitz said he will change jobs as soon as possible.

Proposition 20 did not specify where the state commission's headquarters must be, but San Francisco appeared the likely choice with the selection of Lane and Bodovitz. Lane is publisher of Sunset Magazine.

The commission did not fix a salary for Bodovitz, but asked Lane to seek more than the $28,836 maximum suggested by State Finance Director Verne Orr. Bodovitz makes $25,000 a year as head of the bay commission.

Orr also suggested a salary range of $20,496 to $23,912 for the executive directors of the six regional coast commissions.

Lane, in a brief acceptance speech, said it no longer mattered that some of the 12 members of the commission opposed Proposition 20. "It passed, it's the law, and it's our job to carry it out," he declared.

The commission's "first job is planning; permits are second," he said. The commission has three years to draft a master plan for the conservation of the coast. All development in the coastal zone during the three years will require a permit from a regional commission.

The commission spent most of its all-day session considering interim regulations, application forms, fees, commission funding and the need for offices and staff.

Bodovitz suggested a minimum $25 fee to apply for a minor permit, but this and other details were postponed to the commission's next meeting on Feb. 7 at Los Angeles International Airport.

Using the $5 million allocated it by Proposition 20, the commission also agreed to interim allotments of up to $10,000 for each of the six regional commissions to begin operations and set its regular monthly meeting on the first Wednesday of each month. It will meet more frequently for some time, the commission agreed.

Other members of the state commission are San Francisco Supervisor Robert H. Mendelsohn; Santa Cruz County Supervisor Robert W. Harry; Humboldt County rancher Dwight May; Mendocino County rancher Richard A. Wilson, former president of the Planning and Conservation League; former state Sen. Fred Farr of Carmel; Roger T. Osenbaugh of Alhambra, owner of an insurance firm; Bernard J. Ridder Jr. of Long Beach, a newspaper executive; Ira E. Laufer of Tarzana, owner of a radio station; Los Angeles County Supervisor James Hayes, and Jeffrey Dean Frautschy of La Jolla, assistant director of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography.

Student Aid At Sonoma State Eyed

An unknown number of Sonoma State College students have received loans and grants without proving actual need, according to a team of state auditors.

A spot check in December at the college financial aids office — ordered by college president Thomas H. McGrath — showed it has failed to verify actual need in many grant applications, it was reported.

Specifically, the report showed that federal Economic Opportunity grants ranging from $200 to $800 were handed out to 241 students without proper documentation of need as required by the government.

McGrath labeled reports that funds handed out totaled nearly $100,000 as "ridiculous." He said the problem involved faulty administration of the office and was a matter of incomplete files rather than an attempt to defraud the government.

"Significant efforts have already been made to regularize these procedures to make sure this does not happen again," McGrath said.

He said neither financial aids director William E. Frenaye nor students involved would be penalized. "Students who are scheduled to receive EOC funds for the spring semester will do so only when their individual files have been brought up to date and verified where needed," McGrath said.

A spot check of 64 grant files showed in some cases students received funds although their father's salary was more than $10,000 per year. Auditors found that 41 of the 64 students listed themselves as financially independent of their parents, but not a single income tax return was found to prove they had not been claimed as dependents.

"For the 64 files examined, we could not find a single form which itemized all the elements of income and expenses into a computation to determine the student's financial need," the auditors reported.

One of the cases showed a student received $13,392 in aid over a four-year period, although his wife was fully employed at the time. An investigation reportedly showed the student used part of the money to make a $5,000 down payment on an $18,000 house.

The report showed files also lacked documentation showing students were actually pursuing a degree. In one case a student on aid was found to have earned 38 units of work in a five-year period rather than the minimum 60 units required by federal law.

McGrath said he expects many cases will be cleared up when appropriate documents are prepared.

He said a complete audit of the office was ordered after a spot check disclosed the irregularities.

Meeting Reset

The February meeting of the Ross School District board, which tentatively had been rescheduled for Feb. 5, has now been set for Feb. 20 at 7:45 p.m. at Ross School.

Sausalito Art Center To Seek New Home

The Sausasalito Art Center board decided last night to begin looking for a new site for the center, preferably south of Napa Street on the city's waterfront.

The facility is currently located in the Sausalito School District's Old Bayside School, but may have to vacate within a year since the district has other plans for the building, according to Shelagh Considine, center director.

Miss Considine said the center is hoping to obtain about 10,000 square feet of land as a tax deductible gift, but admitted the group has not yet found a donor. Funds for construction of a new building will come from private donations, she said.

The board appointed members Donald K. Olsen, Jason Cristoble and Samm Hawley to a committee to seek a new site.

At last night's meeting, Miss Considine also told the board she is willing to stay on in the post of director, although she had considered resigning earlier this month because of "tension and apathy" at the center.

The director said she changed her mind on "a new public spirit around the center which makes me want to stay."

At a general meeting Saturday, members of the center elected a 12-member governing board for the coming year.

Chosen were Jack Beckerman, Carol Teten, Michael Healy, William Stevens, Nathan Jones, Judy Fraser, Lyman Emerson, Brion Fellerman, Roger Robinson, Olsen, Cristoble and Hawley.

Beckerman was selected chairman. Stevens will serve as secretary and Fellerman will be treasurer.

Reported Rock Tosser Cornered, Arrested

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A San Francisco man, who is said to have plagued Marin commuters and highway patrol officers for years with the deadly accuracy of his rock-throwing arm, was caught yesterday.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Jerald D. Calicoat, 35, who also uses 11 aliases, was caught at 4:30 p.m. after hurling a rock at a patrol car.

Sgt. James Dukes of the patrol's Corte Madera office told the Independent-Journal that Calicoat has been lobbing rocks at cars for more than two years but efforts to catch him had failed because "he's a pretty fast runner."

Dukes said Calicoat would hide in a wooded knoll at the 19th Avenue turnoff and catch unsuspecting motorists along Doyle Drive in San Francisco.

No one is known to have been injured by the rock throwing incidents, Dukes said, but windshields were broken and paint chipped.

Over the years, military police from the Presidio of San Francisco joined in the chase of Calicoat but were always outdistanced by his swiftness of foot, the CHP said.

Yesterday, CHP officers used a different strategy and cornered Calicoat in an area from which he couldn't escape. He later denied throwing rocks at cars, but several officers identified him from past clobberings.

Calicoat was booked into San Francisco County Jail on suspicion of throwing objects at vehicles with intent to injure.

Evaluation Of Elliott Due

The San Anselmo School District board will discuss evaluation procedures for Supt. Frank R. Elliott when it meets at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Red Hill School Library.

The meeting, originally scheduled for today, was postponed in memory of former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Elliott will present the board with written forms providing for his evaluation by both the board and district employees.

The superintendent has met individually with board members to discuss his performance, but trustees have issued no statement on the matter.

The board also will study procedures for reducing the district's teaching staff due to an enrollment decrease projected for next year.

Milk Prices Going Up

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Retail milk prices will rise 1 cent a quart next week in supermarkets throughout California, the state Department of Agriculture announced yesterday.

The increase was authorized "to offset the sharply rising costs to producers for dairy feeds and roughage," according to the department.

Marin market employees reached today said they had heard about the price hike, but had not received confirmation.

On Feb. 1, a quart of milk will cost Marin and Sonoma county shoppers a minimum of 29.5 cents a quart and 57 cents per half-gallon, according to the state agency.

Advisory Transit Session Delayed

Tonight's meeting of citizens groups to form an advisory panel to the long-range transit study in the Golden Gate corridor has been postponed one week because of the day of mourning for former President Johnson.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. next Thursday in the auditorium of Marina Junior High School, San Francisco.

Edison In Inventors Fame Hall

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (UPI) — Thomas Edison's daughter sat at the desk in her father's library and pressed a switch. A replica of the original incandescent light burned brightly.

Edison invented the incandescent light, the phonograph record, the motion picture camera and had patents on 1,090 other inventions.

Wednesday, he became the first member of the Inventors Hall of Fame, and President Nixon has signed a resolution establishing Feb. 11, Edison's birthday, as National Inventors Day.

Ten people gathered Wednesday in the spacious room that was Edison's library for a short, low-keyed ceremony.

Madeline Edison Sloane, 84, daughter of the inventor, walked to the ceremony from her home five blocks away in Llewellyn Park.

On the library desk was a book entitled "Who's Who in Engineering—1925." On the wall behind her was a sample demonstration phonograph record, dated Dec. 12, 1925, to be played on the machine he invented.

The library is part of a complex of buildings that served as Edison's laboratory from 1887 until his death in 1931.

She read a hand-written statement in appreciation of the honor.

Public Housing Budget At $441,310

A $441,310 budget for 1973 for Marin City and senior citizens' public housing has been approved by the Marin County Housing Authority board.

Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd, said the spending program — approximately half of the agency's total budget — was approved by the board at its Tuesday meeting.

The budget includes $81,993 for administration; $169,632 for operation, including labor, maintenance and contract costs, and $77,290 for general expenses such as insurance and in-lieu tax payments.

The spending plan includes revenues of $186,306 from the federal government and $251,000 from rents, according to Shepherd.

The authority's $58,1,313 budget for its leased housing program was approved by the board in December, bringing the total authority budget for 1973 to $1,022,623, the executive director said.

The leased-housing program budget includes $432,513 in federal money and $145,800 from rents.

Shepherd said remaining revenue to finance authority programs and housing projects comes from sources like interest on rent payments and payment for utilities.

Astronomers See Star Being Born

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Three astronomers have discovered what appears to be a nursery field of stars in the process of being born, dominated by a monstrous "cold star" bigger than the solar system.

New stars appear to be condensing out of a cloud of dust and gas, known as W3, located 10,000 light years away, according to the scientists from California Institute of Technology.

Astronomers believe stars emerge from clouds of gas that condense, whirling inward and shrinking to the point where interior heat induces nuclear reactions—which power the star's energy giving rays.

Some believe planets, such as the Earth, are built from the accretion of gas, dust and other debris left over after the star begins to burn.

The discovery of "what is probably a group of embryo stars" was revealed Wednesday by Doctors Gareth Wyn-Williams, Eric Becklin and Gerry Neugebauer.

"One of the newly-discovered objects," they reported, "emits 30,000 times more energy than the sun, and is larger than the whole solar system. Its temperature however is only 170 degrees Fahrenheit, which is extremely low compared to the 5,000 degrees or more for a normal star."

The enormous "cold star" may be collapsing upon itself, compacting under the pull of its own gravity, as part of the process of becoming a normal star—smaller and much hotter, the scientists said.

Crampton's Heavy Stress In Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Bruce Crampton, the good natured Aussie who found his putting touch at Phoenix and Tucson, doesn't give himself much of a chance of making it three in a row starting today in the Crosby National Pro-Am, but he'll be out there battling three tough courses and the weather along with 171 others.

"The pressure is tremendous when you've won two tournaments," Crampton said before his teeoff at Pebble Beach, "and I honestly don't think I can win again, but I'll be trying."

What makes it difficult is that the Crosby is one of those tournaments where the weather, along with the naturally tough courses, makes it difficult to score well.

"I've always played Pebble Beach well," Crampton said, "but that doesn't mean I've always scored well. Last year in the U.S. Open here I played about as well as I can but I finished three strokes behind Jack."

Jack, of course, is Nicklaus, who won the Open with a two-over par 290. Six months earlier, Nicklaus won the Crosby in a sudden death playoff with young John Miller, so he plays the Crosby seaside courses about as well as anyone around.

While Crampton starts off at Pebble Beach, Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper, making his 1973 debut, are at Cypress Point. Rod Funseth, winner of the Los Angeles Open to launch the $8 million 1973 PGA tour, opens on Spyglass Hill.

In the Crosby format, each pro plays a round on all three courses before the cut is made to the low 70 and ties for the final round on Pebble Beach. The top prize in the $180,000 tourney is $36,000. Second is worth $20,500 and third is $12,300.

There are 172 amateurs, many of them from the various entertainment fields, in the competition, too. Each pro is paired off with an amateur and the cut from that field is to the low 33 teams and ties. The ProAm purse comes to $25,000, making the total Crosby pot $205,000.

Nicklaus, who won more than $300,000 last year, is the favorite, as might be expected. Jack made a rare start in the Los Angeles Open four weeks ago and won $4,975. He went home to rest the last two weeks while Crampton, the top money winner thus far this year with $60,030, went on to take the Phoenix and Tucson opens.

Palmer, always a popular player in the Crosby, played in the Los Angeles and passed up Phoenix and Tucson. He's picked up only $1,129 thus far this year and is without a tourney title in more than a year.

Casper, like Palmer, didn't have a good year in 1972, winning only $52,105. He's been idle for a few months now with a sore muscle in his back, but like Nicklaus and Palmer, hates to miss the Crosby.

Heavy January rains have left the three Crosby courses quite wet and soggy, especially Cypress Point, which has the most exposed (seaside) holes. Thus, winter rules are in effect, meaning players can pick up, wipe and clean and replace balls inside the fairway markers.

A PRIZE-WINNING CAR

$9,000 Worth Of Model 'A' Ford

By RON LENT

An F. Scott Fitzgerald maxim states: "In America, there are no second acts." Apparently, the great American writer was not considering the Bay Area auto show exploits of San Anselmo's Marco (Mark) Mennucci.

The 28-year-old Marinite bought a 1928 Ford Model "A" in 1964 for $250, invested nine years of work and $9,000 in converting the stock car into a hot rod, and dominated recent auto shows with his finished product. He took top honors in the San Francisco and San Mateo auto shows plus the San Jose Autorama.

When he purchased the car, Mennucci admits, "I knew it was going to take a lot of time and money." And it did.

Mennucci labored long hours at night in his home garage rebuilding the car. Among other things, he redid the body and reworked the frame. "I put in $2,000 worth of chrome plating. I designed the setup and suspension." He did everything but build the motor — a 327 cubic inch Chevrolet engine.

A mechanic at Barsotti's Body and Fender Service, Inc. of San Rafael, Mennucci considers his car "a modern day Model 'A' ". His vehicle has directional signals, hazard flashers, seat belts, and a four-speed transmission — all contemporary model vintage.

Additionally, the dark green car with a walnut brown-color interior has a 400 horsepower motor, a Corvette rear independent suspension and a Corvair front independent suspension, he said during an interview at Barsotti's.

"I didn't plan on spending so much money; I just went overboard. I spent a lot of long hours in the garage, but my wife (Patricia) was very understanding ... she knows I've always liked cars."

"As a kid," he recalls, "I was interested in custom cars. And I guess that is how I got into this. I was never really interested in racing, though I did watch it."

Enamored of building cars, Mennucci fulfilled a long-time desire by acquiring the Model "A". "I got it with the idea of entering it in car shows. It was worth the time I put into it."

As a test, he brought the car to the Strawberry Auto Show last August in the Strawberry Shopping center. "It won the award as the best car in the show," he smiled.

From that point on, Mennucci knew he had a winner — and so did the show judges. He won several awards in the San Francisco Auto, Boat and Cycle Show, Nov. 17-19 at the Cow Palace, including best street rod sedan, best hot rod interior, most outstanding closed car, and best workmanship.

His car's showings in the San Mateo Auto Show Jan. 5-7 and San Jose Autorama Jan. 12-14 were equally impressive. In the San Mateo show, he took the sweepstakes trophy, emblematic of the best car in the competition. He also won the best overall car award in the San Jose show.

Off his excellent showings thus far, the International Show Car Association member is seeking a finish in the top 10 ratings of ISCA on the West Coast. "That is my goal," he agrees, "and I have a chance of reaching it if I do well in the Sacramento Autorama and the Winternationals." The Sacramento show is Jan. 31-Feb. 4; the date for the Winternationals in Los Angeles have not been determined. He will be driving the car to both shows.

The Marin Catholic High School graduate sees building show cars as a fine hobby. "I wish more young people would get into it. It keeps you busy, and you can learn as you go along."

Apparently, Mennucci still possesses the desire to learn, because he recently obtained a 1926 Model "T" for "my wife ... It will take about three years to fix it up right, but, after that, I may enter it in shows if things work out well."

Judging by his Model "A", Patricia's car will be a real winner.

A 16-Foot Try At Indoor Meet

While most of the attention around the pole vaulting pit at tomorrow night's 10th annual San Francisco Examiner Games, will be centered around the seven 17-foot vaulters entered, there will be one particular lad aiming for the 16-foot plateau.

It will be Mark Jones, former Terra Linda High School ace and holder of the Marin County Athletic League pole vaulting record of 14 feet, 1 inch. He's now a junior at Chico State University and will be competing in the College Division pole vault, opening event of the indoor track and field meet at the Cow Palace, at 6 p.m.

Mark, co-captain of the Chico State track team, vaulted 15-4 as a freshman to set a school record, but last year, hampered by a groin injury, only managed to get an even 15 feet off the ground.

"This year he is healthy and is a determined believer that he can reach the once magic plateau of 16 feet," said his former track coach at Terra Linda High, Barry Amsden.

Amsden also passed on some news about Dan Trondsen, like Jones a 1970 Terra Linda H.S. grad and currently a junior at Chico State. He was a three-letter star (football, basketball, track) for the Trojans and will be running the intermediate hurdles and mile relay for the Chico State track team in the spring. When at Terra Linda, Trondsen ran on the school's record relay teams in the 440 and mile and was the Marin County champ in low hurdles as a junior.

MARIN AMATEUR HOCKEY Club has seen the light. Starting Saturday and continuing until Feb. 10, the kids in the hockey club will be selling light bulbs, door to door, through Marin County. They'll be selling six bulbs for $2, which will go to help buy equipment for the players and pay for rental of an ice skating rink. Why light bulbs? "It's practical," said the club's Cliff Cameron. "Everybody needs light bulbs." (Even Mark Spitz?)

KNBR'S FRANK DILL, who lives in the Peacock Gap section of San Rafael, made his second Super Bowl wager with that radio station's stock market expert, Bob Stephens, who lives in the neighboring Glenwood area. Dill lost his 1972 bet, $2, and so they decided to double it this time. Dill lost the $4 but hasn't yet paid. At this rate, figures Stephens with money slide rule in hand, by Super Bowl XXVI Dill will owe him more than $2 million.

IF YOU MISS College of Marin's big basketball game against West Valley of Campbell Saturday night in Kentfield, you can get a second chance to see it Sunday, 7 p.m., on KFTY, Channel 50, if you have the right cable TV hookup. The Santa Rosa television station will tape the Friday 8 o'clock game for its delayed broadcast the next day.

WHAT DOES MARIN tennis pro John Zwieg do in the winter? He goes to the snow to give lessons — in tennis, not skiing. The first Bear Valley Wintertime Tennis Week is scheduled for Jan. 28 through Feb. 2, and then three days later the place where you ski Bear will offer a combination ski and tennis package, and Zwieg will be providing the lessons for the tennis segment. Heading the tennis program where the courts are covered by a big plastic bubble is Barry MacKay of Ross.

THERE'S A GOOD-SIZED article by Pat Frizzell about Allan B. Murray of Kentfield and his loving group called Giants Boosters of Northern California in the Jan. 27 issue of Sporting News. But alas, as happens so often in stories about Big Al, the name comes out Allen, not Allan.

Boxing Champ Ohba Dies In Car Accident

TOKYO (UPI) — Japanese boxing fans were shocked today by the death of World Boxing Association flyweight champion Masao Ohba, 23, in a traffic accident this morning on an expressway in Tokyo.

Police said Ohba, who had succeeded in his fifth title defense on Jan. 2 in Tokyo with a 12th round knockout of WBA No. 2 contender Chartchai Chionoi of Thailand, died instantly when the car which he was driving crashed headon into a large truck in the opposite lane on the expressway.

The accident occurred near the Edogawa bridge when Ohba, traveling at high speed, went out of control making a turn, crossed the center line and crashed into a large truck in the opposite lane in a headon collision, police said.

Former WBA junior lightweight champion Hiroshi Kobayashi, who has the record for a Japanese boxer of having made six successful world title defenses, said "I cannot believe that Ohba is dead. I was a television commentator when he succeeded in his fifth title defense on Jan. 2 by knocking out Chartchai at the Nihon University Auditorium. He was a good friend of mine."

Ohba was anxious to fight Thailand's Venice Borkorsor, who wrested the World Boxing Council's flyweight crown from Betulio Gonzalez of Venezuela with a 10th round technical knockout last September in Bangkok, to set up only one world champion in the flyweight division.

Ohba, a bachelor, made his debut as a professional boxer in November, 1966 and had a record of 35 wins, including 15 knockouts, two losses and a draw in 38 bouts.

Browns Peddle Center Hoaglin For Draft Pick

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Browns today traded veteran center Fred Hoaglin to the Baltimore Colts in exchange for a high draft choice in next week's pro football draft.

Hoaglin, a seven-year veteran with the Browns, took over the starting job in 1966 and played in 69 consecutive games before an injury forced him out in the middle of the 1971 season. Jim Copeland then became the regular center and Hoaglin was unable to regain the starting job.

Copeland held the starting center's position in 1972 until an injury early in the season put him out for the year. Hoaglin reclaimed the No. 1 job briefly until the Browns obtained Bob DeMarco from the Miami Dolphins.

In Baltimore, the Colts announced they had acquired a third round draft pick in next week's college draft for Hoaglin.

Seals, St. Louis To Play Tomorrow

ATLANTA (UPI) — It wasn't exactly reminiscent of Gen. Sherman's march through Georgia but Fred Glover won't argue.

Glover was in the coach's box as usual last night as the California Golden Seals whipped the expansion Atlanta Flames 5-2. That snapped a string of two straight losses on the road and brought the Seals only their ninth win of the National Hockey League season.

Five different players scored for California, including rookies Morris Mott, Stan Weir and Hilliard Graves and veterans Reggie Leach and Ivan Boldirev.

Gilles Meloche was in the nets for the Seals as each team unloaded 32 shots on goal.

Mott, playing on left wing in place of the injured Gary Croteau and Joey Johnston, opened the scoring with a 30-foot drive past Atlanta goalie Phil Myre. But Flames Capt. Keith McCreary tied it with a power play goal later in the period.

Weir and Boldirev scored early in the second period and the Flames could not make up the deficit. In the final period, Leach scored with a slapshot and Graves notched his 17th goal of the campaign on a rebound with only 22 seconds remaining.

The Seals come home for a game tomorrow night at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena with the St. Louis Blues.

QB QUESTION

Rams' Rosenbloom, Gabriel May Meet

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Responding to reports that the Los Angeles Rams, who now have a new coach, are also in the market for a new quarterback, Rams' signalcaller Roman Gabriel says he might have to have a talk with owner Carroll Rosenbloom.

After Rosenbloom called San Diego veteran quarterback John Hadl "one of our top prospects" during the same news conference at which he introduced the new Los Angeles coach, Chuck Knox, Gabriel said:

"The only way I see it is if the Rams get a Hadl or some other established quarterback, the guy coming here won't want to unless he is going to start. And if that is the case, I've got to sit down and talk with the people upstairs."

Gabriel, who said he hasn't talked to Rosenbloom since the Rams' 6-7-1 1972 season ended, has a no-cut, no-trade clause in his contract with the Rams.

"If it comes to the point where the Rams want to trade me," Gabriel said, "I've got a voice as to how much time I have before I leave and where I want to go," he said.

Gabriel's performance last season was hampered by tendonitis in his right elbow, which he said was "getting better."

Merlo Gets Trophy

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Linebacker Jim Merlo of Sanger, Calif., Wednesday night received the Dr. Irving S. Zeimer Memorial trophy as the outstanding Stanford football player of 1972.

MARIN PREP CONTESTS POSTPONED

All Marin County Athletic events scheduled for today have been postponed because of the day of mourning for former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Redwood High School's basketball games against Drake High have been rescheduled for tomorrow (Friday) evening, with junior varsity at 6:30 and varsity at 8 o'clock. Tamalpais' games at San Marin will be played Tuesday, junior varsity at 5:30 p.m. and varsity at 7.

All three MCAL wrestling matches also have been rescheduled. Redwood will visit Terra Linda in a showdown for first place at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow (Friday), San Rafael will be at San Marin at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow (Friday), and Drake will be at Novato at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Anderson Gets 18 In Rec Cage Win

Steve Anderson scored 18 points to lead Mac Arthur's to a 54-21 triumph over McPhail's last night in San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department adult basketball league play.

In other games, Ritters Critters whipped the Sharks, 45-30, while Mazza Fuller Paints trounced BVCC, 55-31.

Kings, Warriors In Oakland Game

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — The Golden State Warriors will be uncertain until just before tipoff tonight whether they'll have coach Al Attles and superstar Rick Barry on hand for their National Basketball Association game against the Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

Unless Attles' lung inflammation has healed sufficiently — and Attles thinks he's ready to return —center Nate Thurmond will continue as interim coach player. The Warriors are 2-2 under Thurmond's direction since Attles was stricken.

Barry's left ankle was badly bruised in Sunday's game at Milwaukee and missed the All-Star game. The word is that if he's not ready for tonight, he will be for the all-important back-to-back games with the Los Angeles Lakers there Friday and here Saturday night. The Lakers lead the NBA's Pacific Division by five games over Golden State.

Barry is disappointed about the timing of his injury. "It comes at such a bad time. We've got seven games in eight nights and we play the Lakers back-to-back. And I was happy with the way I'd been playing. I was out of shape at the start of the season and that affected my whole game. I've lost about 15 pounds since the start of the season, and I feel a lot quicker and faster."

The Warriors beat Kansas City the first two times this year but lost Jan. 11 by 109-108.

The Kings' Nate Archibald is the NBA's leading scorer with a 33.5-point-a-game average. Barry tops the Warriors with 23.1.

"The Los Angeles series will be our most important so far," said Attles, "but we also have to keep in mind we have a game against a team (Kansas City-Omaha) which beat us last time we played."

Stanford Event: McKay To Speak

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Cease-fires must be in the air.

Stanford Wednesday invited USC football Coach John McKay to speak at its annual senior athletes banquet March 13 and he accepted.

After the Trojans defeated the Cardinals 30-21 in the closest game of their national championship season, McKay startled reporters with a blast at the losers.

"I wanted to beat them by 2,000 points. They're the worst winners in the world. They've got no class."

THE SKI SCENE

Cars Unwanted At Sugar Bowl

By CHARLIE COANE

The first chairlift on the Pacific Coast was constructed in 1938 and named after Walt Disney, first person to sink a few dollars into Sugar Bowl. Back then, skiers never complained about the facilities. In fact, they used to march through water and deep snow to reach those first lifts. That's a far cry from being driven to the bottom of a chairlift by an automobile — commonplace at most areas now.

YET SUGAR BOWL still maintains a feeling of isolation. It remains one of the few ski areas in the United States shut off from automobiles during the winter. It wasn't until 1953 that the Magic Carpet gondola was built, linking the main highway with Sugar Bowl's skiing facilities. This still presented a problem of access to and from, and long waits were not uncommon. That problem was solved in 1970 when a parallel double chairlift was built. Skiers can now park their cars in the new 500 car underground garage near the main highway and zip into the main ski area via one of the two lifts.

Sugar Bowl is located one mile west of Donner Summit on U.S. 40 — leaving Interstate 80 at the Soda Springs/Norden exit. Time-wise, it's one of the closest resorts to the Bay Area.

The basics include seven chairlifts, a gondola, T-bar, and rope tow. There are fine overnight facilities located at the bottom of the slopes. The skiing terrain runs the gamut from rank beginner to the Silver Belt racing course — one of the steepest in North America.

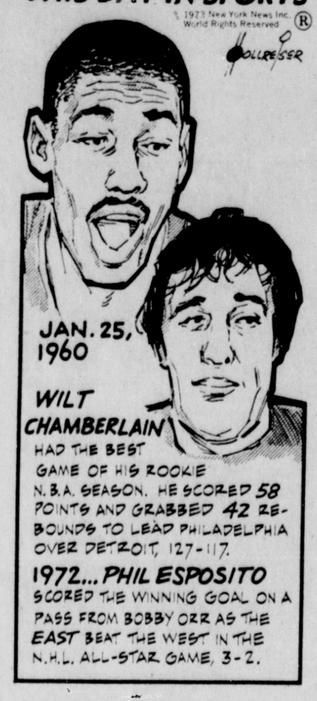
Being located next to Donner Summit, Sugar Bowl claims an annual average snowfall of nearly 40 feet.

"JUST BECAUSE we have a lot of snow," says Sugar Bowl boss Don Schwartz, "doesn't guarantee good skiing. You have to know what to do with the snow after it falls on your slopes. And grooming is what we do best. We have $300,000 invested in equipment to groom the snow and a full-time staff of experts to operate the gear day and night, fair or foul weather. We can convert poor snow into good packed powder within 24 hours."

In California, snow grooming has become quite a science because the Sierra has snow conditions uncommon in Utah, Colorado and Idaho — areas away from the warm wind and rain which may sweep in from the Pacific every once in awhile — such as it did in late December.

Sugar Bowl's ticket tab runs $8 and night skiing is available Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. Half-price rates exist during weekdays on the $8 ticket, and a number of package plans are available.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS



IN ROHNERT PARK

Rancho Cotate Vs. Cardinal Newman

Rancho Cotate High School's fading hopes for its first Sonoma County League basketball championship could be revitalized with a win over Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Rohnert Park.

In other local prep cage action tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, Petaluma hosts league leader Vallejo in a North Bay League game and St. Vincent hosts North Central League II rival Tomales at Kenilworth Junior High in Petaluma.

After winning its first two league games, Rancho Cotate has dropped two straight (the second a 66-46 rout by Analy of Sebastopol) and has fallen two games behind the first place Cardinals, who are 4-0.

The defending league champion Cardinals are a running team led by guards Ed Grogans and Pat Fitzgerald, who are two of the quickest in the league, outside shooter Mike Lininger and 6-foot-3 center Jerry Robinson. Lininger is the scoring leader with a 12.7 point per game average.

Vallejo (5-0) in league play) is a big, fast and high scoring team led by 6-5 Venson Washington, 6-4 Herb McEachin and guard Rick Beavers. Washington is the scoring leader with a 17.1 point per game average, followed closely by Beavers at 16.4 and McEachin, at 13.1. Petaluma is tied with Napa, Santa Rosa and Hogan of Vallejo in third place at 2-3.

St. Vincent and Tomales renew their long rivalry, but this year things may be a little different as the Mustangs appear to be legitimate contenders for the crown that Kelseyville has worn for the past two years, while Tomales is tied for fourth with Calistoga at 0-2.

Coast Play: Santa Clara Impressive

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Maybe it's time for the pundits who do the national ratings to take note of the Santa Clara Broncos.

They ran their season's record to 12-3 last night by winning at one of the toughest spots in the nation.

They beat Pacific 82-76 at Stockton where UOP had a 45-game home win string snapped last time out by nationally fifth-ranked Long Beach State.

The Broncs looked as sharp as the 49ers as they fired 60 per cent from the floor in the first half and still led by 13 points with 2:19 to go and then held off a closing charge by the Tigers.

Jim McCargo and John Errecart had 26 and 23 for the losers while big Mike Stewart of the winners took scoring honors with 27.

There are some big battles tonight involving Coast quintets. The UCLA Bruins seek to tie USF's record of 60 consecutive wins when they play at Loyola of Illinois. If they win, they'll go for the record Saturday afternoon at Notre Dame.

The nation's two top scorers are on hand at the Cal State Los Angeles tourney. Pepperdine, whose Bird Averitt is firing at a 32.6 ppg clip, faces Grambling and Los Angeles State, with super soph Raymond Lewis at 31.2, hosts Texas Southern.

Washington hosts Seattle tonight while Fresno State is at Portland.

In Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference play Thursday, Whittier downed Pomona 68-63 to leave both teams tied for the lead with 5-1 marks. Pomona's Lamotta Jackson had 20 while Jack Smoot of the winners had 16 and Fred Hicks 14.

Other scores: Portland State 83 Humboldt State 71, la Verne 57 Claremont 48, Occidental 96 Caltech 49, Central Washington 57 Seattle Pacific 53, Central Washington 57 Seattle Pacific 53.

Cardinals, Jets In Benefit Game

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals announced today the New York Jets will be the opposition for the 1973 Cardinal Glennon Hospital benefit game on Saturday, Aug. 25, at Busch Memorial Stadium.

The only other time the Jets have appeared in the annual game the Cardinals won, 13-6, before a record crowd of 50,372 in 1969.

The benefit game has raised almost $2 million for the hospital in the 18 years it has been played.

Most Innings

CHICAGO (UPI) —The 377 innings pitched by Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox in 1972 were the most by a major league pitcher since 1912.

McKenzie, Philadelphia Are Blazing

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Johnny McKenzie and the Philadelphia Blazers are finally beginning to make an impression on the World Hockey Association.

After a good deal of fanfare when they signed such former National League stars as McKenzie, Derek Sanderson and Bernie Parent, the Blazers fell flat on their face once the season started, quickly falling to the bottom of the Eastern Division.

But the Blazers seem to have caught on now, and by whipping the Quebec Nordiques, 6-4, last night they climbed to within three points of fifth place Ottawa. In addition, Philadelphia is now only six points behind the fourth place Nordiques, putting them in position to challenge for a playoff berth.

McKenzie, who also got off to a slow start due to his dual role as player and coach and because of injury, led the Philadelphia victory with a hat trick, lifting his goal total to 16. His first goal in the opening period gave the Blazers a 3-1 lead, then, after Quebec drew even, he scored twice more within a three-minute span of the final period to provide the margin.

In the only other game played Wednesday night, the New England Whalers moved into a tie for first place with Cleveland in the East by routing the West Division leaders from Winnipeg, 6-1.

ABA ROUNDUP

Denver Ends A Jinx On Kentucky Court

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Denver Rockets' Kentucky jinx finally ended Wednesday night after four years.

The Rockets had been unable to win a game at Kentucky since the American Basketball Association was founded, but they changed all that last night as Warren Jabali led a last-quarter surge that carried Denver to a 98-87 victory over the Colonels.

Kentucky, trailing by 10 points at the half, outscored the Rockets 25-16 in the third quarter to trail by only one point. But Jabali hit 10 of his 26 points in the final period and Denver outscored the Colonels 27-17 to secure the victory.

Byron Beck added 21 points for the Rockets while Dan Issel had 24 and Artis Gilmore 23 for the Colonels.

In the only other ABA game, Willie Wise hit a pair of layups with less than six minutes to play to lift the Utah Stars to a 111-103 triumph over Dallas.

Dallas, with Rich Jones and Larry Jones leading the way, had cut the Stars' lead to just two points when Wise hit a layup and 20 seconds later, he stole a pass and drove for another basket that broke the back of the Chaps' rally.

Ron Boone had 25 points for the Stars and Wise and Zelmo Beaty finished with 20 each. Rich Jones was high man for Dallas with 34 and Larry Jones hit 19.

The 2 Goals Of Giants' 3rd Baseman Kingman

Dave Kingman made his major league debut July 30, 1971, in Candlestick Park and within 72 hours of his arrival on baseball's big time scene he hit three homers, including his first grand slam.

Kingman started the 1972 season just as sensationally. At the Astrodome in the second game of the season, the 6-foot-6 slugger homered, tripled, doubled, singled and drove in six runs to make Sam McDowell a winner in Sudden Sam's National League pitching debut for the Giants.

Kingman finished his rookie season of 1971 with a respectable .278 batting average. He finished his first full season in the majors last year with a not so respectable .225 and 140 strikeouts although his homer total of 29 was quite impressive for a 24-year-old larruper who had been in pro ball only 2½ years.

This year Kingman has two goals. First, he is determined to become a good third baseman. Second, he is determined to trim his strikeouts substantially, under the 100 mark, by shortening his big home run swing.

HANK SAUER, batting coach of the Giants, is working with Kingman on the strikeout problem in the pro-spring drills now under way in Candlestick.

Jim Davenport, the Golden Glove third baseman of the Giants for more than a decade, is working with Kingman and giving him tips of how to remain cool on the hot corner.

"I want to play third," Kingman said simply when he reported for the early bird drills. "My ankle is sound again."

Kingman severely sprained his right ankle in midseason last year. He was out of action for 15 days. Even after he returned to duty it was obvious the ankle still bothered him. It affected not only his lateral moves in the field but his swing at bat.

KINGMAN UNCONSCIOUSLY began to favor the ankle while batting. Instead of keeping his right leg firmly planted he began flexing his right knee to such a degree that he began uppercutting the ball. His strikeouts increased.

In an Aug. 6 doubleheader at Candlestick between the Astros and Giants, Kingman tied a National League doubleheader strikeout mark when he whiffed six times. In his last time at bat that day he hit a homer.

Charlie Fox is convinced that a shorter swing will not interfere with Kingman's home run production.

"DAVE HITS THEM into the 39th row," said the manager. "If he cuts down on his swing he still will hit them into the first or second row. That's all it takes."

To help him shorten his swing this year Kingman is going to try a 36 ounce bat instead of the 34 ounce he had been using.

Canadian Grid Team Signs Coach Levy

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League today signed Marv Levy of the Washington Redskins as their new head coach.

Levy was a specialist coach under George Allen for the 1972 National Football Conference Champions in the National Football League. He replaces Sam Etcheverry who resigned in November.

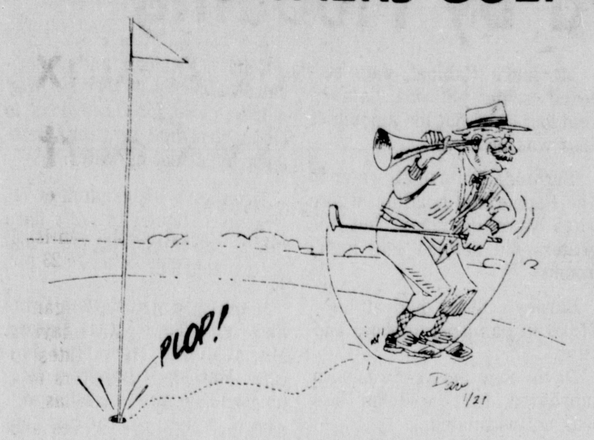
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Hit And Listen

By LEE TREVINO

After you stroke a putt, that baby's long gone. There's nothing you can do about it, so why look up? Hit it and listen.

What we're really doing is traveling 18 holes, about four miles, trying to hit a target 4-¼ inches wide. A lot of golfers get eight feet from the hole, then they try to see where the putt's going before they hit it.

Listen for it to hit the bottom of the cup. I know a guy named Punk Patton in West Texas who actually closes his eyes to putt. He said it was the only way he could quit looking up. He hits and listens.

The average player looks up to watch his ball — and pushes it. Any slight head movement changes the position of your hands. You may get away with a little move on a long putt, but it'll ruin you on a shortie.

Get in the habit of listening for that sweet little "plop" when it hits the cup. Stroke the ball, keep your head down, and listen. I guarantee you'll putt better.

Minnesota Goalie Worsley Retiring

Combined AP & UPI

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — "The North Stars have treated me well and hockey has treated me well," goalie Gump Worsley said, as he retired from the Stars yesterday.

Worsley, 43, professional hockey player for 23 years, played two full seasons and parts of two other seasons for the Minnesota North Stars. He played only two games since Nov. 22 when he suffered a hamstring injury.

Wren Blair, North Stars' general manager, said he accepted Worsley's decision "very reluctantly." He called Worsley a great goaltender and said, "I am leaving the door open — maybe I can change his mind."

When announcing his retirement, Worsley said he "felt there was no use in me going in there not feeling that I can do the job."

Worsley has played 831 regular season games — more than any other active goalie. He won the National Hockey League's Vezina Trophy as the outstanding goalie in the league in 1965-66 and 1967-68 with Montreal.

Skiing

INNSBRUCK, Austria — Helmut Schmalzl led an Italian sweep of the first three places in the International Ski Federation giant slalom for men with runs of one minute, 56.30 seconds and 1:51.64.

Figure Skating

Football

BALTIMORE — Veteran Baltimore Colt running back Tom Matte was traded yesterday to the NFL San Diego Chargers for an eighth-round draft choice.

Baseball

BOSTON — Pitcher Mike Nagy was traded yesterday by the Boston Red Sox to the St. Louis Cardinals for a player to be named later.

NEW YORK — A five-man committee from the Baseball Writers Association of America will meet here Saturday to discuss the possibility of voting Roberto Clemente into the Hall of Fame this year.

Clemente, the Pittsburgh Pirates star who was killed in a plane crash New Year's Eve near San Juan, was made eligible without the usual five-year waiting period by a special Hall of Fame ruling.

A spokesman for the baseball writers said the purpose of the Saturday meeting would be to find a method of electing Clemente, since his name was not on the ballot on which Warren Spahn was elected yesterday. The spokesman said it was possible the BBWAA might decide to put Clemente's name on next year's ballot, rather than to hold a special election for him in 1973.

Boxing

PHILADELPHIA — Muhammad Ali says he has suspended trainer Drew Bundini Brown following an alleged incident in George Foreman's dressing room after his victory over Joe Frazier in Jamaica.

According to Ali, Brown forced his way into the new heavyweight champion's dressing room and shouted, "When you gonna fight the real champ!"

"He was kicked out like a dog," Ali said yesterday, explaining he heard about the incident via news reports. "I'm disgraced and ashamed. He went to Jamaica without my authorization."

PREP SCORING

Lowey, Wright Run 1-2

Mark Lowey of Terra Linda High School and Hoza Wright of San Marin, who watched each other throw in 28 points in a head-on clash Tuesday night, have moved into the first and second spots in the Marin County Athletic League basketball scoring race.

Lowey has scored 105 points in six games for a 17.5 average, and leads the league with 46 field goals, according to statistics compiled by the Independent-Journal. Wright is a point behind and is averaging 17.3.

San Rafael's Byron Stewart, the leader after three games, plunged to sixth place with a 15.2 average. Moving up past him were John Channell of Drake (16.8), Willie Barnes of Novato (16.2) and Mike Connor of Redwood (16.0).

Connor wasn't even in the top 10 last week, nor was Terra Linda's Scott Logan, now 10th at 11.8.

San Marin remains the only team with three players in the top 10 — Wright, John Tait eighth at 13.2, and Fred Doar ninth at 12.7. Doar leads in free throws made with 28, seven ahead of his nearest rival.

Drake continues to lead in team scoring with a 66.5 average, and in average margin of victory with a 13.0 bulge. Marin Catholic, playing a time-consuming offense which cuts down the scores of games, leads in team defense with a 46.7 average. The Wildcats are the only team with a defensive average under 50, and have twice held foes under 40.

It Rained On Parade: Less Marches To Foul Line

By LEW CODDINGTON

It rained on the parade.

The so-called "parade to the foul line," anathema to most basketball fans, has been sharply reduced under the new "common foul rule," if certain statistics from Marin County Athletic League play are to be believed.

In the first six MCAL games last year, the various teams sank 569 free throws. This year, over the same time span, they have hit only 415 — a shocking reduction of 27 per cent. Assuming the players have not suddenly forgotten how to shoot, this suggests a corresponding drop in the number of shots attempted. Assuming further that the officials have not suddenly forgotten how to call fouls, one is left with a conclusion: players just aren't going to the line as much.

A "common foul" is just what the term implies — a normal foul made under normal circumstances. The term excludes intentional fouls, flagrant fouls, fouls committed against the shooter, fouls committed by a player of the team controlling the ball ("player control fouls"), and double or multiple fouls. A backcourt foul is a common foul.

In the past, a free throw was shot after every foul except a player control foul. This year, they are not shot until the bonus ("one-on-one") situation is reached. In other words, the first four are free — or the first seven in college.

The offensive team retains possession of the ball, which is often more important than getting the chance to shoot one free throw. Bob Fitzhenry, the North Bay Officials Association coordinator, who is supposed to know about such things, estimates that possession is worth 1.3 points. (If a team made every shot, possession would be worth 2.0, the value of a basket. Most teams make slightly less than half their shots, but put in the rebound once in a while.) A single free throw, by contrast, is probably worth 0.5 or 0.6, since most teams hit around 50 or 60 per cent from the line.

Whether the rule has succeeded in its other chief goal — reducing the length of high-school games by an estimated three to four minutes — is debatable. Nobody went around timing games, last year or this. It seems to me it has, but Fitzhenry says he doubts it.

REMINDER — MCAL sports events scheduled for today have been postponed because today is a day of mourning for the late President Lyndon B. Johnson. A list of changes appears on page 29.

SUPERIOR — A "superior decision," in wrestling, is one achieved by 10 points or better. It is worth four points to the grappler's team, instead of the three a normal decision is worth.

Bob Crotogini, Redwood's 122-pounder, demonstrated what the term meant Tuesday when he decisioned his Tamalpais opponent, 25-0. I wonder if there's a category for a super-superior decision.

NOT INFERIOR — One of the revelations to come out of the Section IV girls gymnastics meet at Terra Linda High last weekend, meet director Lyn Avila reported, is that schools from the Redwood Empire are now more competitive, and their gymnasts turned in good performances. Formerly, Marin was dominant.

PINNACLE — When Novato's basketball team climbed into first place Friday, it was the first time the Hornets ever rested there alone. The 1964 co-champions trailed San Rafael all year long until catching the Bulldogs at the end.

RETENTION — Since that year, the MCAL basketball title always has remained within the Tamalpais Union High School District, bouncing back and forth among Drake, Redwood and Tam.

WHO? — Tam and Redwood were the chief contenders last year, but they are hardly recognizable now. With center Darrell Elder injured, the Giants have exactly one player (Mike Connor) on the varsity now who also was on it last year. And Tam's starting lineup in the league opener Jan. 5 contained five different people than the one coach Bernie Schneider used in the Drake Summer League five months before.

Byasee Dental Laboratories Plans Third, Fourth Branches

Byasee Dental Laboratories of Novato, established a little over three years ago, is doing so well it will open its third and fourth branches this year.

Owners and operators of the dental appliances manufacturing firm are Wylie R. Byassee of Petaluma, his wife, Mary J., and their son, Bradley Byassee.

Byassee, who has been in the business for 32 years, opened his Novato store at 1305 Grant Avenue in August of 1969 when he bought out Coolen Ceramics. A year ago, he opened his second shop at 8 West El Rose Drive in Petaluma.

He will open his third store on Merchant Street in Vacaville in a couple of weeks, and his fourth in Sacramento within three or four months.

The firm provides dental work to dentists in Marin, Sonoma and the Bay Area. "I have always stressed quality and service, and that has paid off," said Byassee.

MARIN NEON CO. at 24 Woodland Avenue in San Rafael is expanding its sign-making services by adding engravings and wood carvings.

Owner Robert Bohanna, who has operated the firm for 21 years, said he has added new equipment this year to offer engravings on modern plastics and metals, and wood carvings to meet the needs of the times. He said engraved plastic signs, which come in 33 color combinations, can be used for nameplates, doorplates, deskplates, counters, directional signs, directories, badges, bulletins and plaques. The engravings are permanent because no paint is used, and there is nothing to chip or peel, Bohanna explained.

Marin Neon has provided all types of electrical advertising since 1952.

JOHN F. BROWNof Woodacre, assistant manager of Crocker Bank's Corte Madera office, has been named assistant manager of the bank's Kentfield branch.

A native of Oakland, Brown joined Crocker Bank in 1966 and has served as assistant manager of the bank's Castro Valley and Corte Madera offices. He replaces Fred R. Merrill, who was named assistant manager of the bank's 20th and Geary branch in San Francisco.

Those positions include vice president and assistant general manager of the firm's Philippine Packing Corporation and regional director of international operations.

DALI FEENJON, San Rafael's new mid-East delicatessen-restaurant-night club, opened today at the corner of Third and B Streets.

Dr. and Mr. Gar C. May, owners of Dali Feenjon, remodeled the former Timmer real estate building with extensive use of redwood, shrubs, and plants. The interior has hanging plants and Tiffany lamps overhead.

The delicatessen-restaurant will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 2 a.m., with entertainment about four nights a week, Wednesday through Saturday.

MORRIS BATZ, former fire commissioner in the Tamalpais Fire Protection District, has been named vice president for marketing at Growth Diversified Inc. of Reno, Nev. Batz will also serve as general manager for a GDI subsidiary, American Portraits International.

DEVAN'S JEWELERS at 1115 Fourth Street in San Rafael is conducting a clearance sale of its entire stock, and the place is up for lease, according to a large sign in the display window.

However, shop manager Stan Cabot cautioned that the jewelry store is not necessarily closing, explaining that the owner can change his mind or lease just half the store and retain the other half.

Benno Lewy of Hayward, owner of Devan's Jewelers, has been operating the San Rafael store since June of 1971 when he took over the former Gorb's Jewelers. Lewy also has jewelry concessions in Hayward and in Fresno.

He has been ailing since last March.

Businesses Hit Hard By Flooding

By WAT TAKESHITA

Storm runoff and high tides sent flood waters pouring through San Rafael business establishments along Francisco Boulevard last week, causing damages estimated at $100,000 or more.

Damages ranged from 'mental anguish and time lost" to as much as $10,000 in television and stereo shops where salt water caused permanent damage.

Only a percentage of the total loss is believed covered by insurance. For many of the established businessmen, this was the third major flood in six years and the worst they have experienced.

Of some 50 businesses along Francisco Boulevard and its side streets, very few escaped unscathed from the two days of flooding, on Tuesday and Thursday of last week.

An informal poll of some of the businessmen showed the following damages:

Floorcraft at 509 Francisco Boulevard reported a loss of $6,000 in floor covering when the entire store was covered with a foot to two feet of water. "This was the third flood in six years and this was the worst," said Manager Tony La Ruffa of Petaluma.

Klein TV, next door, reported losing a dozen new television sets and about 20 used sets, plus other equipment for a total loss estimated at $8,000 to $10,000. The firm has flood insurance.

Economy Imports in the same area suffered some $2,000 to $3,000 damage in parts and accessories. "The weight of the water broke the front window, and some of the accessories just floated out with the tide," said Manager Roger Newman.

Annex Motors at 535 Francisco Boulevard had about six inches of water in the garages, and some of the parts were damaged. Owner George Dexter said his two other agencies, Annex British Cars and Dexter Toyota, suffered no water damage. However, business and man hours lost were considerable.

In the same block, Brookside-Mills Winery reported damage that could easily run to a thousand dollars. Supervisor Tina Koziol said 122 bottles were condemned by health authorities, as several of the cases disintegrated from immersion in water, and rugs were destroyed.

Disco Department Store reported $3,800 worth of damage from waters that covered the store about six to eight inches. Manager Michael Gordon said his store has insurance.

At Leon C. Felton Volkswagen, employees reported water up to the knee inside the shop. Rugs had to be replaced but cars were undamaged. Employees estimated loss at $5,000.

Midas Muffler dealer Gene Ford said his overall loss was $1,500 to $2,000 in damages and time lost. Water was a foot and a half deep in back and 14 inches in front.

Walker Lyons of Lyons Ryan Ford reported little or no damage to cars but about $3,000 damage to rugs and parts.

Aamco Automatic Transmission, covered with about a foot of water, suffered more than $2,000 damage. The company has insurance coverage.

Mariani's Cabinet shop suffered some plywood damage and lost time, but the amount of loss was unknown.

Bermuda Palms had water in the Pepperland building, where rugs were damaged, but the waters did not get into motel rooms.

Barney's Shoes had at least $1,000 in damages to shoes and rugs.

Davis Saw Service was also inundated, but the dollar loss was not estimated.

A-1 Rentals at 807-A Francisco Boulevard had three or four inches of water inside and up to two feet in the yard. "Our planter boxes just floated away," said one employee.

At Pacific Stereo, Manager Howard Squires said his rough estimate is $10,000 in loss of business and equipment. Many of the stereo parts were soaked and must be sold at discount or sent back to the factory, he pointed out. The wall-to-wall carpeting had to be cleaned and replaced.

Celia's Mexican and American Restaurant at 1 Vivian Way had to close for three days to clean rugs and furniture damaged by a foot of water.

Trombetta Distributors at 715 Francisco Boulevard was hard hit, as cases disintegrated and bottles toppled.

Not as badly hurt were firms like Cycle Town, RAB Motors, Marin Mazda, Marin Bay Lincoln Mercury, Imported Motors, and Dominic's Restaurant, where waters threatened but did not actually invade the interior. However, these firms also suffered in time and business lost and the cost of cleaning up.

There is no accurate measure of toal loss, but if 50 businesses suffered an average of $2,000 damage, the total would hit $100,000.

Most of the victims took the losses with no show of bitterness. "It's one of those things," shrugged one shop owner. "They say dredging the canal would help, but I understand that would cost a million."

PG&E Reports Earnings Gain

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pacific Gas & Electric Co. has reported that net earnings available for common stock rose to $184,235,000 in 1972.

The figure for 1971 was $167,715,000.

Revenues last year reached $1,350,613,000 compared to $1,260,345,000 in the prior year. The increase, PG&E said Wednesday, resulted from higher electric sales and higher gas and electric rates.

The board of directors declared a cash dividend for the first quarter of the fiscal year of 44 ½ cents per share of common stock.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Simmons Good Over Long Haul

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold shares of Simmons Company (NYSE) which I bought on a monthly investment plan. Why hasn't this stock gone up in price with the market? What would you recommend I do with my shares?—A.M.

A. Although shares have not exhibited very robust market action in recent months, patience should prove worthwhile. Since 1969, earnings have moved sideways, a factor reflected in share price action. Earnings recovery, begun in the final 1971 quarter and reestablished in the second and third periods of 1972, should foster a market reappraisal this year. Assuming that the recent spurt in consumer spending continues to develop and that the rate of new construction remains firm, Simmons could reap the benefits.

Sales in the first nine months of 1972 rose 9 per cent, a rate which should carry over into the current year. With consumers buying the higher priced product line, profit margins should widen this year. Thus, a tentative earnings projection of $2 to $2.10 a share appears reasonable. This estimate also assumes expansion in Simmons' institutional sales and consumer acceptance of the recently introduced Polycel foam mattress. Gradual earnings growth on a modestly upgraded price-earnings multiple should be forthcoming in the next several quarters. Shares should be held.

Q. I have been investing monthly in a mutual fund since the beginning of 1970. The price of the fund has increased 70 per cent over that period. What do you think?—J.W.

A. You have made a very fortunate choice of funds. Over the three years, your fund has averaged 23 per cent appreciation annually. By comparison the Standard & Poor 500 Stock Average appreciated 13 per cent annually over the same period as did a speculative fund average.

As you can see your investment choice has achieved an above-average performance record since 1970.

Keep in mind, however, that performance leadership is constantly shifting and you might well hedge your position by diversification.

Final Tribute To Johnson

Nixon At Services In Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The City of Washington said its final farewell today to Lyndon Baines Johnson. The body of the former President —eulogized as the "tall man with giant character" —was then taken home for burial in the Pedernales River country of Texas he loved.

Thousands of everyday Americans paid their respects to the dead 36th President as he lay in state at the Capitol rotunda. Hundreds of dignitaries and friends —and former foes —led by President Nixon then attended funeral services in the capital city's final tribute to the 36th President.

As funeral speaker, W. Marvin Watson, a longtime adviser to Johnson, said of his lifelong friend: "History will record that in the seventh decade of the 20th century, America had Lyndon Johnson when he was needed,"

At the conclusion of the one-hour funeral, Johnson's body was taken through quiet city streets filled with bright sunshine and cold shadow to Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland for return to Texas aboard the same plane on which he took the presidential oath Nov. 22, 1963.

At the rites at the National City Christian Church, the pastor, Dr. George R. Davis, said in invocation: "We have come here to celebrate sunrise. Often we have walked to the mournful sound of muffled drums. We come here to celebrate to the glorious trumpets of God."

Davis took as the theme for the sermon to his former parishioner the Old Testament words: "When after the death of Moses, the Lord, God, called forth Joshua to lead the nation."

He said the former President had many of the qualities of Moses —"the hardness of discipline ... sitting on top of a volcano you didn't create, trying to control it."

Watson, whose voice broke at the end of his eulogy, said: "He was a tall man of giant character and when he committed himself, he committed himself totally. And he asked his countrymen to do the same.

"In victory, he taught us to be magnanimous. In defeat, he taught us to be without hate — to learn, to rally, to accept the challenge and to try again."

Johnson's widow, Lady Bird, sat erect and unfaltering in a pew across the aisle from Nixon and his family as black opera star Leontyne Price sang "Take My Hand, Precious Lord" and "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Police said 40,000 Americans passed by Johnson's flagdraped coffin as he lay in state in the vaulted rotunda of the Capitol where he began his political career in the 1930's as a protege of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

At least 3,000 more gathered outside the church as government dignitaries, a group of foreign representatives and scores of personal and political friends arrived for the funeral.

Joining President and Mrs. Nixon at the funeral was Mamie Eisenhower, widow of another President.

Johnson's final resting place is a plot under a huge, live oak in the family cemetery at the

Hawkins Resigns Position

By PAT PERRY

Wilber D. Hawkins, superintendent of the Tamalpais High School District resigned last night.

The 42-year-old administrator will continue as a "consultant" to trustees at his full salary of $33,000 a year until June 30, with his former duties assumed by Asst. Supt. Robert D. Torrey, according to Robert W. Corlett, district board president.

Three of the five board members — Corlett, Bette Wallace and Jerrold M. Ladar — had requested Hawkins to resign in a series of recent closed meetings. Trustees Frank L. Miller and David D. Ring vigorously opposed the firing.

Immediately after Hawkins announced his resignation at a special session, Miller and Ring launched into an angry diatribe against fellow trustees, claiming Hawkins's ouster resulted from "intrigue and maneuvering behind the scenes."

Ring, white with fury, read a long statement to the audience predicting that lack of district leadership would help two teachers' unions gain control of the district.

Hawkins's unpopularity with the unions was due to his efforts to hold salary increases down, said Ring.

Miller declared himself "outraged" at the "star chamber activity" of Mrs. Wallace, Corlett and Ladar in forcing the superintendent to quit.

"He is being fired for essentially minor and petty reasons," said Miller, "each of them personal to one of the three trustees involved."

One of the principal reasons for Hawkins's ouster reportedly was his recent action in approving $5,000 in district reserve funds to remodel and furnish the office of Lawrence Sheppard, Tamalpais High School educational leader, without board approval. Trustees later ordered the room stripped and as much of the furniture returned as possible.

Ring conceded that "the Tam furniture affair was a fiasco," but said "in a system like this it would be surprising indeed if nothing ever went wrong."

And Miller said the episode's importance had to be compared to the district's multimillion dollar operation.

Whether Hawkins's resignation is final was open to question today, depending perhaps on the outcome of the April 17 school board elections.

Ring, Corlett and Ladar are up for reelection, and it is certain that campaigns will be conducted on the issue.

Ring and Miller last night called for candidates to replace all three of the incumbents whose terms are expiring, Ring adding that he'll run again if only two "able" candidates surface.

Miller, whose term doesn't expire until 1975, said he will

Marin To Get Disaster Aid

Reagan Orders Help In Recent Flooding

By JEFF GREER

Gov. Ronald Reagan proclaimed Marin and San Luis Obispo counties to be emergency areas yesterday as a result of flood damage suffered last week.

The proclamation had been requested by boards of supervisors in the counties.

Reagan's action means that Marin County property owners will be able to apply for property tax relief for flood damage to homes or businesses. The Bolinas Public Utility District also will be able to seek special legislation for rebuilding its storm-damaged water system under the state Emergency Flood Relief Act.

Flood damage victims in Marin — and particularly Novato — may learn tonight what tax relief and financial help will be available under the governor's action and under federal programs.

A public question and answer session will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Olive School, 629 Plum Street, Novato.

The session will be sponsored by the Novato Flood Control Zone Advisory Board and the City of Novato, according to Charles E. Murphy, county flood control engineer.

Although today has been declared a national day of mourning, Murphy said he had asked local, state and federal disaster and assistance officials to attend the meeting to answer public questions.

Spokesmen for the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, Small Business Administration, Farm and Home Administration, state Office of Emergency Services and the county disaster office were invited, Murphy said.

Meanwhile, final estimates of damage to public facilities and roads in Marin County were reported by Frank E. Kirby, county emergency services coordinator.

He said the Marin total was $907,910, not including private property and residential damage. The public damage total was compiled by state and local engineers and other experts, Kirby said.

A week after the storm troubles, figures still were sketchy on damage to private property, Kirby reported. He said only Novato had provided any firm figures.

Novato City Mgr. Charles A. Brown reported to Kirby that homes in Novato suffered about $113,500 damage, and business property about $29,500 damage.

Kirby appealed to property owners in other cities to work with their city officials in compiling private property damage estimates. He said that the Marin Chapter of the American National Red Cross had found damage to 329 homes and businesses countywide, mostly in Novato.

Homeowners or businessmen should obtain private contractors' cost estimates on mudslide removal, replacement of warped floors or repair of any other damage, and give the information to their city's administrators, Kirby urged. He said he will check daily with all cities to obtain new damage reports, and forward them to state and federal agencies that may offer assistance.

Lawrence Weinstein of Mill Valley, a volunteer who has been assisting Kirby and state officials in estimating storm damage, added yesterday that property owners who suffered damage also should send repair estimates by certified mail to the Small Business Administration, attention of the disaster Program Manager, Room 15451, 450 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco 94102. The information should include the damage victim's telephone number and address.

Weinstein said a copy of the damage estimate and aid request also should go to the property owner's city or the county emergency services office.

Weinstein warned that President Richard M. Nixon has not yet acted to authorize SBA assistance to Marin County property owners, so the office technically cannot act yet.

The state Office of Emergency Services has loaned two water purification units and pumps, plus four 3,000-gallon storage tanks to the Bolinas Public Utility District, according to an announcement from H. R. Temple Jr., state director of OES. The loan of the equipment for up to 90 days will enable the district to complete repairs expected to cost $116,200, to the community's water system.

Cambodia To Join Peace Efforts

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Cambodian Prime Minister Hang Tun Hak said today all offensive operations would be halted against Communist forces in Cambodia following implementation of the Vietnam cease-fire. (See other stories, page 5.)

As the world awaited the silencing of the guns when the cease-fire begins in Vietnam Saturday at 7 p.m. EST, President Nguyen Van Thieu said South Vietnam might hold "one-man, one-vote" elections within six months if the agreement proves effective.

Thieu did not specify what offices would be at stake.

Hak did not set a specific date for cessation of offensive operations, and he said defensive actions would continue.

Hak's statements in Phnom Penh to UPI and Thieu's in Saigon to a meeting of police officers came as the United States took the first steps to end its long, costly role in Indochina. Looking ahead to the cease-fire, the United States stopped virtually all troop shipments to Vietnam, ordered the clearing of North Vietnam's mined harbors and made plans to aid returning American prisoners of war.

Hak told UPI the halt in his government's offensive operations was intended "to prove our good will and to allow the North Vietnamese to withdraw in peace." In the meantime, he said, "We will of course continue defensive operations."

U.S. military intelligence sources estimate that the Cambodian government has no control over about 75 per cent of Cambodian territory and less than 40 per cent of the population.

Under terms of the Vietnam peace agreement, all foreign troops are to be withdrawn from both Laos and Cambodia and neither nation is to be used as a base for moving troops or munitions into Vietnam.

In Paris, North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh arrived today for Saturday's signing of the cease-fire pact and was mobbed by hundreds of Vietnamese carrying flowers and chanting "Vietnam has triumphed."

He told an airport news conference that his government and the Viet Cong would abide fully by the terms of the accord and hoped the other parties to it would do the same. In the 60 days after the agreement takes effect, the United States is committed to withdrawal of all its remaining troops in South Vietnam and the Communists are supposed to release nearly 600 American prisoners.

The basic details of the steps taken to implement the agreement are these:

—The Pentagon canceled all military orders for assignments to Vietnam "effective immediately." Spokesmen said the order will virtually stop the flow of U.S. military personnel to Vietnam and that only a few "specially skilled personnel" will be sent during the 60 days.

—The U.S. Navy was ordered to prepare mine sweeping task forces to be sent to clear North Vietnamese harbors Saturday night when the cease-fire goes into effect. The mines were put in place in May when Nixon ordered a bombing campaign against North Vietnam.

—Plans were advanced to receive U.S. prisoners. American negotiator Henry A. Kissinger said Wednesday the first prisoners would fly out of Hanoi aboard a U.S. Air Force jet within 15 days after the cease-fire agreement is signed and that they would be released in four equal segments about 15 days apart over the 60-day period. Lists of the Americans held captive are to be provided during the signing of the accords in Paris Saturday.

In addition, the United States and North Vietnam announced that a force of 1,160 men from Canada, Hungary, Indonesia and Poland will police the peace, starting their move into South Vietnam within 48 hours after the truce.

Job Changes Nothing New For Tam Superintendent

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Changing jobs will not be new for Wilber D. Hawkins, who resigned last night as superintendent of Tamalpais High School District.

Hawkins has served in six school districts since he entered teaching in 1956. He remained eight years in Temple City Unified School District in Los Angeles County, but not all eight years on the same job. While there he advanced from elementary school principal to assistant superintendent.

His stay in Tamalpais High School District, which he joined for the 1970-71 school year, will be his second longest on one job.

Hawkins is highly regarded by administrators who served with him in Temple City and in Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School District, from which he came to Marin. Two of them interviewed by the Independent-Journal expressed surprise at his troubles here.

His personnel record still on file in Temple City shows that Hawkins' first job was as an elementary school teacher in Torrance in 1956-57. After two years there, he moved to Ventura, again as a teacher — the only time until coming to Marin that he served outside Los Angeles County.

After a year in Ventura, Hawkins took a job as an elementary school assistant principal in Redondo Beach. After a year there, he went to Temple City as an elementary school principal. In 1964, he was advanced to director of elementary education, and the following

The Marin City Community Services District said yesterday it has obtained federal funds to construct a swimming pool, park and recreational area in the community.

Daniel Winters, executive director of the district, said the Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved a $110,800 grant for the project, which will include a 40-by-75-foot pool and a wading pool for children.

The pools, along with bath houses, restrooms, dressing rooms and courts for table tennis, shuffleboard, badminton and volley ball, will be capable of handling 500 persons a day, Winters said.

The park and picnic area — for which $36,000 has been allocated — will contain barbecue pits, picnic tables, children's play equipment and an open pavillion designed for use by the community's senior citizens.

The pool and park will be located on Drake Avenue adjacent to the Marin City police and fire station.

Winters said Lee Andrew Johnson, the district's building superintendent, and youths from the community had cleaned up the area last summer, to make it a feasible site for the recreational project.

No Let-Up In Vietnam Action

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. warplanes striking throughout South Vietnam and the heaviest Communist shelling in nearly a month spelled no let-up on either side today with an official Vietnam cease-fire less than three days away.

Neither U.S. nor South Vietnamese officials made any secret of their intent to keep fighting until the cease-fire takes effect at 8 a.m. Sunday (7 p.m. est Saturday).

"Until Sunday we'll do anything we want to," said a Vietnamese official. "There has been no change in mission," said a ranking U.S. officer.

UPI correspondent Alan Dawson said North Vietnamese gunners fired 4,000 artillery and mortar shells on South Vietnamese paratroops and marines between sunset Wednesday and sunrise today near the destroyed city of Quang Tri, 435 miles north of Saigon. It was the heaviest shelling this month anywhere in South Vietnam.

U.S. command spokesmen said 298 jet fighter-bombers and 90 B52 bombers hit Communist positions in South Vietnam in the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today. It was the first time the fighter-bomber raids dipped below 300 since President Nixon halted the bombing of North Vietnam Jan. 15.

A South Vietnamese ranger convoy ran over two mines in close succession in Quang Ngai province, 300 miles north of Saigon today, military sources said. They said four soldiers were killed and 16 wounded.

In other fighting, military sources said North Vietnamese 82mm mortar shells killed two men and wounded five in a 30-round attack today on a government position 25 miles northwest of Saigon near Ben Cat.

Rumors of around-the-clock curfews for South Vietnamese cities as the cease-fire approaches have been spreading for days and the first such curfew was announced today. To no one's surprise, it was for Binh Dinh Province in the Coastal Highlands, which statistically has always been the least "pacified" of South Vietnam's 44 provinces.

VOLCANO BLOWS ITS TOP

War Efforts Tied To Pentagon Papers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Secret files removed by Daniel Ellsberg contained information about American spy operations that could have aided North Vietnam in changing its strategy and tactics in the war, the jury was told Wednesday at the Pentagon Papers trial.

Brig. Gen. Paul Gorman said the documents gave an insight into operations of the Central Intelligence Agency, information on American strategic planning and a means for Hanoi to check on how effective its own counter intelligence agents had been. Some U.S. agents were identified by name, Gorman said.

Gorman said that although the Pentagon Papers dealt with the period only up to 1967, the information still could have been of value in 1969 when Ellsberg removed them from the offices of the Rand Corp., on contract with the Pentagon as a "think tank." The papers were not published in the press until 1971.

Before the one day recess, U.S. District Judge Matt Byrne sternly warned government attorney David R. Nissen that he expected to have before him today a reported formal study made by a task force into whether the Pentagon Papers had indeed endangered national security.

A government witness, Frank Bartimo, assistant general counsel to the Secretary of Defense, mentioned such a study and the judge ordered him to submit it to the court. Nissen failed to produce the report Wednesday and Byrne was obviously irritated.

Coincidentally, excerpts of the Pentagon Papers detailing how the United States got enmeshed in the Vietnam War were flashed on a huge screen before the jury as Washington officials were explaining how the nation is getting out.

Death Toll Lowered In Jet Crash

AMMAN (UPI) — Jordanian National ALIA Airlines today issued conflicting death toll figures in Monday's 707 jetliner crash that would make the accident no longer the worst aviation disaster on record.

When the plane crashed at Kano, Nigeria, aviation officials in the Nigerian capital of Lagos said 180 of the 202 persons aboard were killed. That would have made it history's worst airline accident.

But ALIA officials today said "not more than 156" persons were killed. That would be 20 less than the previous record of 176 who died in the Oct. 13 crash of a Soviet Aeroflot jetliner near Moscow Airport.

ALIA officials today cited faulty landing gear as the main cause of the crash.

Haitian Terrorists Ask Mexico Asylum

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Authorities said today they will consider asylum requests from three Haitians who won the release of 12 political prisoners and obtained $70,000 in ransom by releasing two U.S. diplomats they held in Port Au Prince.

The Haitian government paid the ransom to the three kidnapers, one of them a woman, in Port Au Price after they released on the steps of the aircraft U.S. Ambassador Clinton E. Knox, 64, one of the State Departments's highest ranking black career diplomats, and Consul Ward Christensen, 53. Neither man was harmed.

The kidnapers and the freed prisoners arrived in Mexico City late Wednesday.

The three held Knox and Christensen at gunpoint throughout the night Tuesday and demanded freedom for 31 political prisoners and $500,000 ransom in exchange for their release. They settled for 12 prisoners, $70,000 and transportation to Mexico.

On arrival Wednesday night, none of the 15 would say which members of the group were the kidnapers.

Tentative Pact

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Negotiators announced a tentative settlement early today in the Chicago teachers strike which has closed the city's public schools to more than 560,000 students since Jan. 10.

Formal talks between the 25,000-member Chicago Teachers Union and the school board had broken off Tuesday morning, but CTU President Robert Healey admitted the two sides had been meeting behind closed doors since Wednesday night.

The settlement must be approved by the full school board before going to the union for ratification, but Healey was optimistic and said classes could resume tomorrow.

Nixon Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will submit to Congress Monday a federal budget totaling between $268 and $269 billion for the 1974 fiscal year, administration officials said today.

The budget will be the first explicit affirmation of Nixon's reported intention to wipe out a number of the "Great Society" programs left over from the Johnson era, including the Office of Economic Opportunity which conducts the war on poverty.

Election Set

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The military officers ruling Argentina said yesterday the March presidential election will take place as scheduled, but that this does not mean a full return to civilian democracy.

President Alejandro Lanusse announced an extension of a state of siege which suspends many civil rights.

Boycott Asked

BELFAST (UPI) — All Roman Catholic political parties called last night for a boycott of a forthcoming British referendum on the future of Northern Ireland, calling it dangerous and a "futile exercise."

A bomb planted in a car in the town of Portadown early today exploded and wounded at least three persons, an army spokesman said.

The referendum is scheduled March 8.

Oaths Of Office

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos administered the oath of office today to his martial law cabinet and ordered a more intense campaign against crime, especially a recent wave of kidnapings.

Marcos reappointed his old cabinet secretaries, all of them civilian.

Mrs. Lacombe was reported in satisfactory condition today at Ross General Hospital. Also injured was Eugenia S. Innes of Vallejo, who was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael.

Span Approach Crash Kills Two

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two persons were killed last night in a fiery three-car crash on the Golden Gate Bridge approach — a controversial stretch of road which 18 months ago claimed the lives of nine persons in a similar collision.

California Highway Patrol officers today identified one of the dead as Palmyra M. Deitz of Daly City, a passenger in an auto driven by her husband, Giles, 68, who remains in critical condition at Mission Emergency Hospital.

The second person killed was believed to be a male in his 30s, although the body was severely burned. The auto he was driving is registered to Arnt Hoyme Tjensvold of 4800 Paradise Drive, Tiburon.

According to officers, the unidentified man was driving north on Doyle Drive about 7:25 p.m. — approaching the bridge — when his small Datsun sedan veered across the southbound lanes and into the path of the Deitz auto.

After striking the Deitz vehicle, a small Renault, the Datsun burst into flames.

A third auto, driven by Robert George Henselyn of San Francisco, also traveling south, was struck by one of the first two autos, though officers aren't sure which. Henselyn was not injured.

The accident happened at nearly the identical location of the bridge's worst accident in history.

That accident, which took nine lives, occurred in July 1970 when a Porsche, traveling at a high rate of speed, crossed the center line and crashed into a carload of teen-agers.

Plans to widen the dangerous bridge access have been bogged down for more than a decade in a fight between the state Division of Highways and the City of San Francisco.

Bridge officials also have been involved in the squabble, rejecting state appeals to help fund the cost of the road improvements.

Until late last year, the state insisted the widening be part of a new freeway through the city, a freeway bitterly opposed by the city. State plans now call for widening the Doyle Drive approach in 1976-77.

Since 1966, there have been 16 head-on collisions on the drive, which has rubber tubes separating north and southbound traffic. A total of 15 persons have been killed during that period.

Pineapple Farm Will Be Closed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Because of rising costs, the Del Monte Corp. says it plans a phase-out of its Molokai, Hawaii, pineapple plantation over the next 2½ years.

"Rising costs of growing pineapple and transporting it from Molokai to the company's Honolulu cannery have made it uneconomical to continue operating the plantation," an announcement yesterday said.

The company added, "Operations of Del Monte's Oahu plantation and Honolulu cannery would not be significantly affected."

No further details of the phase-out, or possible plans for the affected workers, were given.

O'Toole Seeking Council Position

Thomas Raphael O'Toole, chairman of the San Rafael Planning Commission, today filed for election to the San Rafael City Council April 17.

O'Toole first was appointed to the planning commission in 1962. He was bypassed in favor of Lawrence E. Mulryan in 1970 for appointment to the council, when Fred C. Robbins Jr. resigned to become city attorney.

The 49-year-old O'Toole was defeated in a bid for election to the council in 1971, polling 3,341 votes to 3,527 for incumbent John A. Miskimen and 3,515 for incumbent Fred E. Jensen.

O'Toole failed to gain appointment to the council again last month, when city fathers deadlocked on filling the seat vacated by the death of Harry A. Barbier. O'Toole, however, was the frontrunner in the race for appointment to Barbier's seat, and received the support of Mayor C. Paul Bettini and Councilman Fred E. Jensen.

O'Toole, part owner of Milani's garage in San Rafael, has cited his widespread support in the city as a major asset in the race, and has declared he supports redevelopment and lighter tax loads.

O'Toole joins Jack G. Nixon, chairman of the Marin County Planning Commission, and Leo Tinkler, a San Rafael real estate agent, in filing nomination papers for the race. The terms of Mulryan and Barbier expire.

Richard C. Fox, a research chemist, has taken out nomination papers but has not yet filed. Carl J. (Red) Brown, athletic director of Sir Francis Drake High School, said today he will take out nomination papers tomorrow and file for the race next week.

Mulryan, who plans to seek a full term, will formally announce his candidacy at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Whistlestop in San Rafael.

Salt Lake City covers an area of 62 square miles.

Businessmen Attack Sales Tax Payments

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Two businessmen Wednesday told a state Board of Equalization hearing why they believe payment of all or part of the state sales tax is unconstitutional.

Francis Gillings, owner of a Tracy service station, said he has not collected or paid sales tax since Sept. 1. Bob Bennett, owner of a Lodi liquor store, said he has deducted a 3 per cent service charge from his tax receipt for the past seven months before turning them over to the state.

"I object to being burdened with 160-odd tax forms," Bennett said. "The burden of reporting government business should rest with the government. If the government wants me to be a tax collector, they should provide adequate compensation."

Bennett said Florida allows businessmen to deduct 3 per cent of tax receipts to compensate them for time and expense of collection.

He said his payment of the entire sales tax violates the 13th Amendment of the Constitution which prohibits involuntary servitude. He gave the legal definition of involuntary servitude as "one who is compelled by force, coercion or imprisonment and against his will to labor for another, whether he is paid for it or not."

Gillings said the tax violates a section of the Constitution which states: "No state shall make anything but gold or silver coin a tender and payment of debts."

"Since the paper money we use is not gold or silver and is not backed by gold or silver, it is bogus money," Gillings said. "Therefore, my business is not sales but barter —exchanging one type of merchandise for another."

John K. Wogan, Sacramento district administrator for the board, said the legal issues raised were "under consideration and referred to legal staff for opinion." A ruling is expected within 10 days, he said.

HAWKINS

support what he considered as qualified candidates, but if none appear he will "reevaluate" his board position next month — presumably meaning he'll quit if rivals to Corlett and Ladar do not emerge.

In his letter of resignation, Hawkins said: "It has become increasingly apparent over the last few weeks that my philosophy of board-superintendent relations and that of the majority of the board is conflicting and irreconcilable."

After the emotion-charged meeting, Ladar suggested that Ring and Miller's charges came from "a fairly vindictive desire toget at another trustee."

Asking Hawkins to resign was the most personally difficult decision he had to make, said Ladar, and stemmed from "much more" than the Tam furniture episode.

Running election campaigns on the issue of Hawkins's ouster would be "ill-advised, and put the majority of the district in a very unfortunate position," said Ladar, "but if these two guys are stupid enough to do it, then it will have to be done."

As the meeting ended Sally Rakow, Ross School District trustee, presented a statement to the board in which she deplored "the lack of stability in the direction of the board."

She said the superintendent was hired to effect change in the district," and a great deal of patience is necessary in a period of change."

"I feel the board should exert the leadership needed to carry the district through a period of instability and not add to the instability which is of such concern to the community," she added.

Hawkins had been said to have asked for $50,000 to buy up the remaining three years of his four-year contract with the district, but no mention of this sum was made by trustees last night. Ladar said there would be no such payment.

RESIGNS

year was named assistant superintendent for personnel and curriculum.

While in Temple City, he participated in developing a differentiated staffing program for which that district has received wide notice, which provides separate pay schedules for master teachers, staff teachers and associate teachers.

According to Kenneth C. Nielsen, assistant superintendent for business services and the only Temple City administrator still there who served with Hawkins, the man who later became Tam District superintendent "was in on the beginning" of the differentiated staffing plan and contributed much to it. Nielsen said Hawkins was very highly regarded in the district.

Also while in Temple City, Hawkins completed his doctorate in educational administration at University of Southern California. (He had received his B.S. from University of California at Santa Barbara and his M.S. from Long Beach State College, both also in educational administration.) His doctoral thesis was entitled, "Some Factors Which Contribute to Successful Educational Innovation."

In 1968, Hawkins moved to Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School District as assistant superintendent for instruction. He remained there two years. He "did an outstanding job" and "had no problem at all," according to Louis G. Zeyen, Norwalk-La Mirada superintendent with whom he served.

When Chester G. Carlisle, longtime Tam superintendent, was reassigned to other duties in August 1969, the Tam district board set out to find a replacement. It first appointed a panel called the "Next Step Committee" to prepare a brochure and procedures for recruiting a new superintendent.

Members of the committee were Harold Allison, Sir Francis Drake High School principal; Edward J. Neumeier, district public information officer; Walter S. Lee, school psychologist, and Duane F. Miller, a Drake High teacher.

The committee subsequently named a criteria committee composed of Lee, Miller, and Frank A. Cassou, district business manager Applications were then turned over to a screening board made up of Jerrold Ladar (who has since become a Tam district trustee), George Stone, Ellen Binckley, W. Reed Brockbank, Frances Compton, and student Chris Martin. It selected applicants to be interviewed and conducted the interviews.

Three members of the district board participated in the interviews: Bette Wallace (then chairman), Frank L. Miller, and Robert W. Corlett.

Among those interviewed, besides Hawkins, was Thomas F. Shaheen, subsequently hired and discharged as San Francisco superintendent.

Hawkins was hired on a four-year contract at $30,000 per year. The following year, his salary was raised to $31,500.

Mistakes Admitted By Witness

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The key prosectuion witness in the Ruchell Magee trial has admitted errors in his original account of the 1970 Marin County courthouse violence, yet Gary Thomas insisted that Judge Harold Haley was shot by the defendant.

Under cross examination from defense attorney Robert Carrow, Thomas said Wednesday he mistakenly told a grand jury that convict William Christmas did not usher him and hostages from Haley's courtroom to an elevator.

The attorney also asked Thomas, then an assistant district attorney, how Magee taped a shotgun to Haley if another convict, James McClain, was holding it when they entered the intended escape van.

"I know McClain had the shotgun in his hand pointed at Judge Haley when we got to the van," Thomas replied. "I know that after we got in the van, Magee had the shotgun and it was under Judge Haley's chin."

The defense for Magee, a San Quentin Prison convict accused of murder and kidnap in the August, 1970, gunfire, contends Haley was slain by bullets fired from outside the van.

However, Thomas testified the first shot came from inside the van and "the second shot was Ruchell Magee's with the shotgun under Judge Haley's chin."

The only other shots inside the van were the ones I fired," added Thomas, who testified earlier that he grabbed a gun, fatally shot Jonathan Jackson, Christmas and McClain and wounded Magee. Thomas was wounded and paralyzed from the waist down.

After being removed from the courtroom almost daily following outbursts, Magee asked for and was granted permission to be excused to a holding cell Wednesday.

Johnson ranch. The site is 100 yards from the house in which he was born 64 years ago and adjacent to the graves of his parents and grandparents.

Presiding at the simple services in Texas was to be Rev. Billy Graham, a counselor to Johnson as well as to President Nixon. The eulogy was to be given by John B. Connally, the former Texas governor and former treasury secretary under Nixon.

In Washington, the crowds were sparse —compared to tens of thousands who watched a cortege to the Capitol Wednesday —as the funeral motorcade traveled from the Capitol down Pennsylvania Avenue to the church at Thomas Circle.

Government offices were closed in respect to the dead former chief executive under an order by Nixon. Schools were closed in many areas.

During a cold evening, night and morning, 40,000 Americans of every creed, color and political advocacy went to the rotunda to pay their personal respects. Temperatures dipped into the 20s duringthe night.

Hundreds gathered outside the church prior to the service which drew representatives of scores of foreign governments and U.N. General Secretary Kurt Waldheim.

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, a Johnson political ally, was there. So was Mrs. Martin Luther King, and elder statesman W. Averell Harriman.

And there, too, was Robert G. (Bobby) Baker, who served Johnson first as a page boy, then as Senate Democratic Secretary before being imprisoned on federal charges of theft and income tax evasion.

Sargent Shriver and his wife, Eunice, represented the Kennedy family.

No Windfall For Marin In Tax Law

A county analysis of SB 90 — which some supporters have called a property tax relief measure — indicates it will offer no relief to Marin County renters and very little to homeowners.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell criticized the new state law as "not a meaningful tax relief measure, but rather a tax shift measure, and in no way fully answers the need for a greater effort to correct the increased property tax problem."

Mitchell said a family of four with an income of $15,000 per year can only expect a tax savings this year of $66 if it owns a home.

The same family renting a home will pay $9 more in taxes under the new law, all other things being equal, he said.

SB 90, signed into law by Gov. Ronald Reagan late last year, places a ceiling on local property taxes but increases state income and sales taxes.

Besides placing a ceiling on local property taxes, the new law increases the state homeowners' exemption from the present $750 to a new $1,750 which amounts to a $125 in savings, Mitchell said.

For renters, the new law provides for a $45 credit on state income tax, but in both cases the savings are eroded by increased sales and income taxes.

Mitchell's document was prepared at the request of Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, who is co-chairman of a committee of local residents seeking property tax reform.

"In my opinion, the minor tax decrease that will occur when next year's property tax bills are sent out will be substantially 'wiped out' within three years (sooner, if property is reappraised). . .," Mitchell concluded.

Show-Piece Cycle Reported Stolen

A 1931 Harley-Davidson motorcycle, constructed as a show piece and valued at $2,000 was taken Tuesday from the lot of American Motors at Third Street and Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, police reported.

Police said a man — about 25 years old, five feet, six inches tall, with brown hair and blue eyes — took the motorcycle out for a test run at 2:30 p.m. and failed to bring it back.

Film At College Still Scheduled

Although the College of Marin was closed today, a film set for 8 o'clock in Olney Hall will be shown as scheduled.

The films are "A Glimpse of De Kooning," "A Visit With Pablo Casals" and "Igor Stravinsky", and are the first in a series of four programs to be offered on Thursdays at the college.

Canada Objects To Control Unit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said today Canada has a serious objection about the supervisory machinery for the Vietnam peace, but said Canada would contribute to the control force at first. (See also Peace story, page 1).

He said however it was reserving the right to withdraw after 60 days.

Sharp said that if the Vietnam cease-fire agreement is signed as scheduled without reservation on Saturday, Canada will send a first contingent of observers to Vietnam this weekend.

Sharp made the comments before attending a lunch with Secretary of State William P. Rogers to discuss Canada's concern that international supervisory force in Vietnam might not be effective.

Sharp told reporters that Canada's prime concern was that the international team would have no continuing authority to report to until an international conference was convened 30 days after the Vietnam agreement took effect.

Sharp said Canada feels satisfactoryit would not be satisfactor for the four-nation team to report to the warning parties as initially called for under the agreements.

He said that whether Canada continued to participate after 60 days would depend "on whether we are effective." The Canadian official said his government's other questions seemed to have been settled. They were that the teams should have freedom of mobility, should be invited by the four warring parties in the Vietnam conflict and that all the four parties should be bound by the Vietnam agreement.

Cease-Fire Document Extremely Unusual

PARIS (UPI) — The Vietnam cease-fire agreement to be signed in Paris Saturday may well be one of a kind, according to Western diplomatic experts.

It will be signed in two separate versions with significant differences in wording.

One version, to be signed by the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong, does not identify the parties by name.

It refers merely to "The parties participating in the Paris conference on Vietnam."

If you did not know who took part in the Paris peace talks, you would not know who were the parties until you reached the signatures at the end.

North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh was arriving today to sign for North Vietnam at Saturday's ceremonies.

U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers will sign for the United States and Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh for the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary government. She is its Foreign Minister and chief negotiator in Paris. Saigon Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam already has arrived in Paris.

The second version, to be signed separately by the United States and North Vietnam, has a different preamble.

It reads "The government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, with the agreement of the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam, and the government of the United States of America, with the agreement of the Republic of (South) Vietnam."

The two versions and the two separate signing ceremonies were part of an ingenious diplomatic ploy designed to make the agreement palatable to South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu.

A Bird Embargo May Be Lifted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An embargo imposed last August on imports of pet and "exotic" birds may soon be lifted, the Agriculture Department said today.

The embargo was ordered to protect the U.S. poultry industry against new outbreaks of Newcastle disease, which caused heavy damage in California last year.

Officials now have announced a proposed new regulation which would allow imports to resume under safeguards designed to prevent the entry of any bird carrying the Newcastle virus.

A CAMPAIGN DESIGNED TO SAVE WATER

CONCORD (UPI) — An eighth grade teacher and 20 of his pupils have organized "Operation Flush," a campaign to put a brick in every toilet in this city.

They plan to ask the city council on Feb. 5 to require placement of the bricks in the tanks and to buy 50,000 durable bricks for distribution by teen-agers, ecology clubs and conservation groups.

The crusaders estimated the bricks would save 100,000 gallons a day — or 36.5 million gallons a year — in water unnecessarily used for flushing.

Salary Hikes Being Restored

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Personnel Board has approved restoration of $4.1 million in state employe salary increases rejected last year by the Federal Pay Board.

The state board acted Wednesday shortly after Gov. Ronald Reagan recommended that the pay increases be reinstated. The increases will be reflected in the paychecks of state workers who had been docked one per cent of their raise by the federal agency.

President Nixon abolished the Pay Board Jan. 11 when he instituted Phase III of his wage and price program, enabling the state board to reconsider the salary increases.

Thieu Says Cease-Fire Control Group Useless

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today the international agency being formed to investigate cease-fire violations is a "useless and helpless organization" and that South Vietnam's best guarantee of peace is a strong army.

"The ICC is a useless and helpless organization," he said. "We have sent piles and piles of complaints after so many years but nothing has been done," Thieu told 830 South Vietnamese information officers.

"After the cease-fire we will have to protect our land, the security, the properties of the population, the institutions."

"We must give confidence to the population, give them joy and the confidence that the government still exists and the Viet Cong have lost." Thieu said the best guarantee that the Communists would not violate the provisions of the agreement to be signed Saturday in Paris is for South Vietnam to maintain its military strength and show political and economic unity.

The second best guarantee, Thieu said, was for the United States to react immediately if the Communists violate the agreement.

Thieu was referring to the International Control Commission (ICC), now known as the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

Tavern Will Serve Only Soft Drinks

OAKLAND (AP) — Alcoholics may soon be able to go to a tavern here, but instead of booze they will be served coffee, fruit juices, milk and soft drinks.

The idea is to make alcoholics feel at home in a familiar atmosphere where they can be helped rather than hurt, said David Odell, director of the Alameda County Health Care Services Agency.

Design Is Approved For Service Station

The Larkspur Planning Commission has approved by a 3-2 vote the design for a Texaco service station that will have its back to the Magnolia Avenue and Doherty Drive intersection.

At its meeting Tuesday night, Commissioners Leonard S. Rubin, Otto Hoefler and Charles H. Curley voted in favor of the gas station design. Commissioners Earl J. O'Grady Jr. and Benton A. Sifford Jr., disagreed, reported Planning Director Arthur N. Stout.

Cause of the controversy is siting of the station in the new shopping center at one of Larkspur's busiest intersections. The facility was designed by Larkspur City Councilman Robert H. Lee, who is a service station architect in San Francisco.

The building will face the center's parking lot and not the road.

Stout said O'Grady and Sifford voiced concern that the station could create a blind corner, a danger increased by fences screening the pump area.

Design approval was subject to two conditions, said Stout: the building should be reduced in size and height, and the light intensity generated should be in the same range as that of the Lark Creek shopping complex several blocks away.

Lee said the Texaco station originally was designed in customary fashion to face Magnolia and Doherty, but a year ago the Larkspur Architectural Review Committee requested that it face the parking lot of the shopping center.

The city council and Texaco have tangled, meanwhile, over an entrance driveway to the station. The company had threatened legal action if station access, through a minipark installed by the city, were refused, since the city earlier had given its approval.

The council allowed the driveway, provided Texaco restored and maintained landscaping wiped out.

The Larkspur Planning Commission Also:

ORDINANCE — Recommended the city council approve an amendment to the city's environmental design review ordinance; extensive additions lay down guidelines for city staff and the planning commission in considering architectural design review applications — a function previously delegated to the now defunct architectural review committee.

PARKING — Granted Michael Goldstein a variance to permit off-street parking on Rice Lane behind the vacant shop at 464 Magnolia Avenue which he intends to turn into an "international cuisine" restaurant.

COFFEE SHOP — Indicated it would consider favorably a conditional use permit application if someone wants to open a coffee shop in the Sohner Plaza office complex near the Bank of America branch at Bon Air Road and Magnolia Avenue.

Antiwar Protester Sets End Of Vigil

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — John McInteer, 52, a draft counselor from Redding, announced Wednesday that he would end his 2 ½-month antiwar vigil at the federal building.

McInteer said his protest would end Saturday night when the Vietnam cease-fire goes into effect.

Former Aide Of Hughes Asks Suit Halt

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Robert Maheu has asked the Nevada Supreme Court to delay proceedings in Clark County District Court temporarily in his $50 million suit against Howard Hughes.

Maheu wants the Supreme Court to rule on several of his motions first before the lower court is allowed to continue its hearings and decisions. He said there is a conflict on what judges should actually hear the case in Las Vegas.

Maheu is seeking an order forcing Hughes to appear personally to give a deposition. If he fails, then Maheu wants the court to issue a default judgment against Hughes and the Hughes Tool Co.

Maheu was fired by Hughes in 1970 and then filed his suit.

Monument Wanted For Viet Veterans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kentucky Sen. Walter Dee Huddleston wants to build a monument in Washington to the Americans who served in the "tragic, frustrating and little understood" Vietnam War.

Huddleston, a freshman Democrat, said Wednesday he would introduce a bill to authorize a monument.

Environmental Plan For Petaluma Runs Into Snag

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Petaluma's environmental design plan was shelved for two months last night as the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors got caught in the legal question of private development rights versus growth control.

The plan, which limits community growth to 500 residential units a year, alternately was lauded as an innovative planning tool and lambasted as unfair to property owners who will not be able to develop when they like.

In nearly every instance, legal questions arose the board said advice was needed from County Counsel James P. Botz before it could consider adopting the plan.

Legal opinions and further arguments will be heard March 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the county administration building.

Petaluma officials asked for county acceptance of the plan, since attempts to control growth within city limits would go for naught, they said, if county officials permit development to flourish on the outskirts.

Board members assured Mayor Helen Putnam that no full scale subdivisions would be permitted, but questioned how the county should zone unincorporated land since annexation may not be considered for five to 15 years in some cases.

Landowners generally condemned the plan as inequitable since development rights would be indefinitely delayed while property taxes continued to rise.

William White of Land Investors Research in Larkspur said taxes on potential subdivision property average $45 to $50 per acre while current agricultural uses bring revenue of only $15 per acre.

"If the city wants the land, the only fair way is to buy the property or the development rights to it," he said.

White said property owners should also be reimbursed for rising taxes paid over the last 15 years.

Members of Petaluma homeowner organizations rose to defend the plan, saying property owners bought the land with development in mind rather than farming and should not expect the county to make up for losses due to speculation.

Dr. William Kortum of the Petaluma Board of Education said the plan would ease school crowding problems.

"It's a very unique plan and many towns all over are watching it," he said. "The board should cooperate and make it work."

Petaluma Planning Director William C. McGivern asked only that the county approve the concept of the plan. He said previous growth had been on a helter-skelter basis bringing many problems.

Also discussed was the need for sewer lines in the village of Penngrove, north of Petaluma. Although the plan does not envision further extension of sewer and water lines, supervisors said Petaluma would be expected to serve Penngrove through its treatment plant.

Sonoma Public Works Director Donald B. Head said Penngrove has many malfunctioning septic tanks which are creating a very serious health problem. The board agreed a land use master plan must be prepared for Penngrove before sewer lines can be planned.

Members also agreed that development in that community and the size of lines must be coordinated with the ability of the Petaluma sewer plant to handle additional effluent.

Bids To Be Asked On BART Station

OAKLAND (AP) — The $26 million Embarcadero station of the Bay Area Rapid Transit system should be put out to bid Tuesday, BART's engineering committee has recommended.

The committee recommended Tuesday that the full board approve the design of the station which is expected to be ready in late 1975. It will be located at the foot of Market Street.

Sea Snake Said The Deadliest

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) — It is official—the most deadly reptile in the world is the Hydrophis Belcheri.

The word came down Wednesday when scientists officially catalogued the sea snake, which abounds in Australia's northern waters, as the most deadly of all reptiles.

Dr. William Dunson, associate professor of biology at Pennsylvania State University, announced the listing in Townsville, 984 miles northwest of Brisbane. Dunson recently led a team of 11 American, Japanese and Australian scientists in a six-week expedition aboard the U.S. research ship Alpha Helix to capture and classify species of sea snakes in the Timor sea.

Choosing Of Fluoride Study Firm Delayed

Directors of the Marin Municipal Water District postponed yesterday choosing a firm to prepare an environmental impact study on fluoridation to enable five opponents of the program more time to find money for the kind of study they feel is necessary.

The board agreed to consider the matter further at its Feb. 14 meeting and promised it would make a decision on the question at that time.

After reviewing five proposals for a report, directors came close to selecting the firm of Jones and Stokes Associates Inc., which had agreed to do the job for $8,300.

But the board voted for the continuance after antifluoridationists argued the Jones and Stokes study would not tell the total amount of fluoride Marin residents are already ingesting in their diets.

Jones and Stokes proposed to prepare an impact statement which would:

1. Discuss options to water fluoridation.
2. Research literature on the subject and talk with local proponents and opponents.
3. Review public actions taken in regard to the program.
4. Study effects of fluoride on soils, plants, swimming pools, recycled water and ocean and fresh waters.
5. Summarize the claimed successes and failures of fluoridation, the current state of the practice and extent of public acceptance.
6. Analyze the district's program.

The report would take approximately 60 days to complete and mean that fluoridation, approved by the voters last November, would not go into effect in March, as planned, but would be delayed, probably until May or June.

Other proposals which the board reviewed ranged in cost from $1,000 to $28,000 but none would have measured total fluoride ingestion.

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

ELECTION — Set April 17 for an election to fill the board seat vacated by the recent resignation of director Eugene A. Miller. Filing deadline is Feb. 16.

RATES — Adopted an ordinance abolishing special water rates for school districts and other public agencies. The regulation says the districts, which now pay 14.5 cents per 100 cubic feet of water, will be assessed increased rates over a 10-year period to bring them in line with the 32-cent rate paid by the rest of the district's customers.

FUND — Agreed to contribute $750 to the American Water Works Association which is planning to build a national office in Denver.

MEETING — Set a special meeting for Feb. 20 to hear a progress report from a consulting firm which is preparing an environmental and land use study for the district.

BENEFITS — Agreed to expand medical coverage for district employees to include one dependent.

TANK — Postponed a decision on whether to go ahead with plans for a storage tank on Clorinda Avenue in San Rafael after several residents of the area protested the location. The board agreed to hold another hearing on the tank at its next meeting after the district staff has studied the matter further.

Freeze On New Water Users Eyed

A moratorium on new connections in the Marin Municipal Water District again became a distinct possibility yesterday when the district board agreed to consider a freeze at a special meeting Feb. 7.

At the same time, the board also decided to present some kind of water supply project to voters in November, but did not determine how large or what kind of project would be needed to alleviate district water supply woes.

It was the third time in recent months that a freeze on new connections has been proposed and it appeared that the measure might have enough support to pass this time.

Director John M. MacPhail Jr., who proposed the ban yesterday, has opposed curtailment of new connections in the past. Jack R. Felson and Ronald T. Stafford, two other directors on the four-man board (one seat is vacant), have favored a moratorium in the past.

MacPhail's suggestion that the district again look at a connection ban came in the face of two board decisions on water supply.

Yesterday, after considerable discussion, directors agreed that the amount of water the district can expect to obtain from its reservoirs — year in and year out — is only 26,000 acre feet. In the past the district has contended that its "net safe yield" was 30,000 acre feet annually, but the board changed its mind after a consulting firm which is studying district water supply came up with the lower figure.

Also influencing MacPhail's decision was a major setback last month to plans for a pipeline to bring 4,000 acre feet of water annually from the Russian River to Marin. At its last meeting, the board deadlocked and was unable to approve a contract for the North Marin Intertie, thus stalling the project for an indefinite period.

Demand for water in the district is currently 32,000 acre feet of water a year, or 6,000 more than the net safe yield agreed on yesterday.

Without the intertie, any new connections — particularly those for large developments — will only increase the water deficit and the probability the district may run out of water if the county experiences more than one dry year.

"Without the intertie and with this new safe yield figure, the district is way overcommitted," MacPhail said. "I think it is time to bring up the moratorium again," he added.

A connection ban had been proposed last May, but the board declined to pass, simply declaring that a threatened water shortage existed in the district. Director Jack R. Felson proposed a moratorium on all connections which would require more than an acre foot of water a year, but withdrew his recommendation until the consultants had completed their study of net safe yield.

The board did not make clear what kind of ban would be considered at the Feb. 7 meeting but indicated it again would consider a resolution declaring a threatened water shortage. The hearing is scheduled for 8 p.m. at a place to be announced.

Directors also will not decide what kind of project will be presented to voters for at least 60 days. At that time the consulting firm of Cornell, Howland, Hayes, Merryfield, Clair A. Hill and Associates will have completed its studies of options and presented recommendations on projects it believes most feasible

The board voted to pay the firm $17,500 to complete the study, which will also include a wastewater management plan for the district.

Directors did agree yesterday that future water supply should be based on population figures contained in the proposed countywide master plan, which projects that district population will be approximately 203,000 by 1980 and 224,400 by 1990.

The board made it clear it would not accept a project which provides for a population significantly larger than that proosed in the county plan.

20-Year-Old Bound Over On Pot Charge

Steven Wilson Hall, 20, of San Rafael, was bound over yesterday to Marin Superior Court on a felony charge of having marijuana and on two misdemeanor complaints.

Municipal Court Judge David R. Baty ordered him to appear Feb. 7.

The felony charge and counts of having pot smoking devices and hypodermic needles were filed in July after a raid on Hall's home, then located in Santa Venetia.

Sheriff's deputies went to the house after a California Highway Patrol officer investigating an accident reported seeing marijuana growing in planters.

Raiding deputies did not find the plants, but confiscated suspected pot and the equipment July 14.

WINE NOTES #14

By golly, we did it! Our new store at the corner of Blackfield Drive and Tiburon Blvd. finally opened. What a struggle, and what an inconvenience we caused to the patrons and tenants of the Cove Shopping Center. We're sorry for that but intend for our presence in the new building to be a credit to the Center and, most importantly, to the people of Southern Marin. By the way, let me squelch a rumor. A bank is not going in next door. An announcement of our co-tenant or co-tenants will be made within the next two weeks. Anyway, we think we have a beautiful store. Our new Wine Manager, Alan Russell, is pulling together an excellent selection of imported wines to compliment our well known California Wine Selection (thanks, by the way, to KPIX, Channel 5, and KRON, Channel 4 for using our stores in their features on wine), and we have a friendly and knowledgeable group of people to serve you. Stop in, please - we need the business. Now that the rains have abated, we can complete the parking lot and landscaping and the traffic flow and parking will be much more convenient.

A special thanks to Mr. G.F. Thomas my good friend and mentor in matters real estate and political, for without his able aid and matchless patience the Tiburon store would still be a dream. Also thanks to Mr. Edward Cheu. A tough, even obstinate businessman, Mr. Cheu, but honorable and farsighted. The money he is investing in his Cove Shopping Center will certainly turn a neighborhood liability into an asset and I thank him.

Although we had hoped to have construction on our seventh store, in San Anselmo, well under way by now, the rain has held us up. We have to create a fairly large cavity on the site, (yes, a wine cellar), and to have excavated during the last two months would have created a swimming hole which is not our line of endeavor. So, we called Mr. Meinberger off until the ground drys a bit. No promises, but we hope to open around July. It will be an interesting store architecturally and we're anxious.

Book Review: DIARY OF A WINETASTER by Harry Waugh, the other famous English writer on wines. The book is a must for the dedicated or neophyte. Well written, comfortable to read, and chocked full of current tasting information on wine, with particular interest and positive response to California's finest. Available at all B.S.'s at $6.95; $5.95 if you present this verbiage to the B.S. Salesperson.

Try the Marquisat Beaujolais Primeur. We have the only 50 cases available in Marin and you'll miss a true treat if it gets gone before you get in. You probably know that the Beaujolais Primeur is a new wine to America, and wants to be drunk right quick as in France. Lovely, I assure you.

One last thing. We're very concerned that our customers get the best possible service from knowledgeable and courteous salespeople, consistently. If you aren't, haven't, or don't, please let me know. If you are, have, or do, I wouldn't mind knowing that either.

Thanks and a peaceful New Year to you all.

MORE LATER.

'Hideous Channel' Benefits Ross

It began Jan. 8, when a steady all-day rain totaled .65 of an inch in San Rafael. In the next 12 days, with scarcely any breaks, a total of 14.44 inches poured down on the city. And in some areas of Marin, the total was considerably more.

As the downpour continued, as earth became saturated and water courses overflowed, the troubles began. In Novato, residents of Nave Gardens were flooded out of the homes. At Corte Madera, a flood across the highway blocked commute traffic. In Mill Valley, in Bolinas, along Richardson Bay, in some of the lower areas of San Rafael, floodwaters surrounded homes, snarled traffic. Mud slides destroyed houses in Marin City, in Bolinas, and below the ridge separating Tennessee and Tamalpais valleys.

BUT IN ALL the flood stories, there was one area noticeably missing.

In past years, any heavy downpour in Marin would flood Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Ross Hospital.

This time, there was no flooding there. Traffic moved up and down Sir Francis Drake without hindrance. Yes, there was water in the street — but not enough to pose a problem.

Ross escaped in better shape than did many areas of Marin. So did San Anselmo and Fairfax, just upstream.

There has to be a reason. And the reason has to be the Corte Madera Creek flood control project — that "hideous concrete channel" against which so much complaint has been lodged.

The project ends at Ross — because Ross has blocked it from going farther. But Ross is benefiting from the channelization to which it has objected.

IT IS IRONIC that on Jan. 11, as damage from the storm was widespread and growing worse (though not in Ross), the Town of Ross was arguing in Marin Superior Court an attempt to force the county to pay $350,000 to alleviate Ross Common flooding. The town has refused to allow the Corte Madera Creek project to proceed unless the county will pay the extra cost to "flood-proof" that area.

It looks very much as though Ross is reaping the benefits of construction of "that hideous channel" downstream while blocking its extension.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson gave the town and the county 60 days to get together on what work must be done, how much it will cost, and who will pay for it. It is not, he noted, a problem that the court can settle. It requires engineers and bulldozer operators.

It also requires men of good will. We hope that Ross and Marin County officials will prove they are that, and will work out an equitable arrangement. And while they're doing it, Ross should not forget that the creek project already has benefited it.

Attacks On Judge Clark Politics At Its Dirtiest

By EARL G. WATERS

The cackling over the nomination of William P. Clark Jr. to the State Supreme Court is an example of dirty politics at its dirtiest. The partisan protesters are indulging in demagoguery in its worst form.

Clark is the second chance Governor Reagan has had to recast the State Supreme Court, whose philosophy has rankled him. In his campaign for governor six years ago Reagan pledged to alter the court's makeup from what he believed to be an unwarranted liberalism.

And that basically is what the objections to Clark are all about.

LACKING ANYTHING of substance, the hecklers have seized upon the insignificant fact that Clark received something less than top grades as a law student and did not graduate from law school.

First off, Clark did pass the state bar examination, something that a raft of lawyers in practice today did not do. Following World War II the legislature decreed that students who had graduated from law school and then gone to war would be admitted on motion without examination.

Subsequent legislation relaxed the requirement even more. In its final version anyone who had one year of law school and then went to war would be admitted on motion after completing law school. Under these provisions hundreds were admitted to practice. Some of these have filled or are now filling judicial positions.

IT IS PERMISSIBLE to take the bar examination without graduating, as in Clark's case. It is also permissible to take the bar examination without having attended law school.

Whether the examination as given by the bar is the best means of determining qualifications to practice may be debatable, but it is the method employed. Clark met that test.

Appointed to the superior court and subsequently to the district court of appeals, he has been twice screened and approved to sit as a judge. No charge has been levelled that he has not fulfilled these duties satisfactorily.

The chief justice, attorney general and presiding justice of the appeals court reviewed his qualifications when he was appointed to the appellate court.

These are the same people who will now review his qualifications for the supreme court. If there was anything disqualifying about Clark, it should have been found the first time around, otherwise the whole system is subject to grave doubt.

IT IS RIDICULOUS to wave someone's schoolboy grades around years after the fact. The world is full of eminently successful people who didn't graduate or whose scholastic efforts were short of the mark.

Many a student who excelled at book-learning has gone on to abject failure. As Governor Reagan aptly put it, if he based his appointments on school diplomas, "I can think of at least half dozen eminently qualified but we would have to wait for them to get out of jail."

No one knows or cares what Stephen J. Field's grades were, or if he even went to law school. He sat as California's chief justice before being appointed to the United States Supreme Court, where he served 34 years, the longest of any justice in history.

If law school is so important in the making of a high court justice, why is there no legal requirement that one be a lawyer to serve on the United States Supreme Court?

There is a school of thought which holds the country would be better off if the courts spent more time dispensing justice and less time reading nuances into the statutes.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

The incurability of the common cold is a problem that's not to be sneezed at.

Most folks don't mind taking aspirin, staying in bed and drinking juice. What bugs 'em is having to pay the doctor for telling them to do it.

This is like a lawyer advising you about a threatened divorce action to "take aspirin, stay in bed and drink plenty of martinis."

The bad part about staying in bed with a cold is having to watch television and its miracle cures.

Conditions At Lake Blamed On Visitors

I would like to answer the senior citizens group that wrote the letter to the editor about more fish wanted in the district lakes. They mentioned about the unsafe conditions, going up the steps, and need a handrail. They also mentioned the deep ruts and holes in the roads, etc.

I am retired and fish this lake on the average of five days a week, and love it. Regardless of planting of fish or not, I do this because it is healthy, and have some pleasure. In recent months I have not fished up there because of inclement weather. I know all about the ruts in the roads, I also know about the litter bugging of gargabe that is strewn all over the shores of the lakes by people who do not care. I also know about the people who take their dogs up to the lakes and let them roam around the lakes without a leash and litter swim in the drinking water. I also know about the toilet facilities, they are sometimes in a horrible mess, and the water district personnel are continuously cleaning them up. I also know about the people that ride the horses around the paths they sometimes ride the horses off the paths and in the lake shores. . .

As far as Mr. Seeger is concerned it is not his job to be checking the lakes for these conditions, he has an excellent group of men doing this, and they are as far as I am concerned doing an excellent job. But these people that don't care about conditions and rules are not cooperating. If this continues it will be another Kent Lake problem, close it down. Remember what happened to Kent Lake, I do.

Finding Lost Dog Brings Frustrations

What would you do if you discovered a lost dog at 8:30 p.m.?

We called the Humane Society, the number listed under "lost animals." A recorded voice (very hard to understand) told us where to mail or bring monetary contributions and then gave quite a list of dogs and cats, but no phone number or even a clue of how to get the dog to the owner that night.

The Humane Society also has a night emergency listing —so we called that. It was an answering service and she could only suggest that we call in the morning.

This was a beautiful purebred licensed dog, but our two dogs were terribly upset and would not accept it in our house.

We decided to call a police department. The man suggested we use a big stick to drive the dog off or if the dog was too much for us they might pick it up and put it in a cell overnight. I couldn't believe it!

I called Mrs. Hildreth from Marinwood who has a foster home for pets and she picked up the dog assuring us that this dog was tagged and she could keep it until the owner was located. I had read about this nice lady in the Independent-Journal over a year ago. Thank heavens for people like her!

Just what does the Humane Society do? Are dogs supposed to get lost during the day only? That long list of pets that the Humane Society taped should have included phone numbers —and please ask that the person who makes the recording speak clearly and slowly enough for people to understand.

Fluoridating Water Establishing Religion?

Re fluoride, may I submit one more opinion? Superstitution is defined as "a belief founded on irrational notions, and marked by credulity; also any practice inspired by such belief."

Fluoride is inert matter. If it had the power to do something to the body, then it would do something whenever it was inserted in the body regardless as to whether the latter was alive or devoid of life.

But since the body has to be alive for it to act, it is obvious that belief in its potency is the controlling factor, so it is just another religious superstition and consequently the election result should be declared null and void by the courts because clearly the state is compelling the people of Marin to submit to a religious belief, something that is unconstitutional.

'Love Is' Artist Chortling To Bank

Re "Love Is": Peg Orr's letter and comments made my day! When she said I must be too young to remember the kewpie doll! How well I remember my frustrations even then because I could not put pants on mine, so I probably stuck pins in it and ran over the thing with my Kiddie Kar.

Clothes may not make the man or woman but I'm sure dressing these adorable creatures of the artist's imagination would in no way detract from their charm.

For many years I have been a free-lance writer, working with photographer illustrators, then I had several children's books published. They were delightfully illustrated by professional artists in the countries in which we were stationed with the Army. Native costumes enhanced the stories and characters. Right now I'd be delighted to find an artist (with a publisher in tow) to illustrate my current books and I'm sure the one who does "Love Is" could do a great job, but I can imagine she is too busy driving her Mercedes Benz erratically all the way to the bank because she is laughing so hysterically because we are giving her all this publicity, which makes her publisher happy. And she does have a publisher! (That speaks volumes as they are in a position to know what pleases the majority.)

Chamber Board Endorses Editorial Stand

The executive board of the Greater San Rafael Chamber of Commerce extends sincerest compliments on your recent stand on City of San Rafael redevelopment and your informational editorial on the restrictive power of the county board of supervisors.

The latter editorial was particularly well-timed as it has become overly apparent in the past few months that the board of supervisors has designated itself as "super-government" of Marin. Your editorial, as a primer lesson in local government, should be required reading for all future board candidates. . .

Dismantling Of Arms Control Seems Part of New Nixonism

WASHINGTON — To return to this capital from even a brief absence is to feel like Rip Van Winkle confronting a world utterly changed. Questioning those who have lived through the Nixon upheaval is of little help.

Why has so much of the government been turned upside down? We don't know. Only the secretive man in the White House, now entered on his second four-year term, knows the answer. And, in a voice dropped to a whisper, we're not sure he knows.

THE MOST DISMAYING change, in many ways the most mysterious, is the dismantling of the disarmament and arms-control apparatus. Inaugural rhetoric cannot conceal the damage done to the effort that for a decade has made increasing progress toward controlling, and to some degree scaling back, the vast mountain of nuclear armaments with the judgment of life and death over all mankind.

What makes this more mysterious is that one of the great achievements of the Nixon first term was the nuclear arms agreement, culminating in the President's mission to Moscow. With a limit on defensive missiles and a five-year agreement to restrain further building of offensive weapons, it was a small beginning hailed around the world.

A dedicated public servant, Gerard C. Smith, with 20 years experience in the nuclear jungle, worked tirelessly for four years as chief American negotiator in the SALT talks at Vienna and Helsinki. When he went back at the start of SALT II he was without any clear position approved by the White House. On returning from Geneva, the new site of the talks, Smith resigned.

In his place the president appointed U. Alexis Johnson, undersecretary of state for political affairs. Johnson is a career diplomat with no experience in nuclear matters. Grievously overworked, suffering from ill health, he is within a year of retirement age. The private word is that his will be a temporary appointment.

BUT THIS CAN MEAN that the momentum growing out of the modest success of last year will be lost. It can also mean that the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who have reluctantly gone along with arms limitation, will have the dominant voice. Arms-control specialists with long knowledge of the tortuous process of arriving at agreement with the Soviet Union are dismayed by the Johnson appointment. They say that he has been in the lap of the JCS for 10 years.

A further handicap is that Johnson will not be head, as was Smith of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. The semi-autonomous agency, created in 1961, has played an important part in developing programs and conducting research on the techniques of control and the verification of limitation agreements. A recent agency study showed that, in 120 countries surveyed, $207 billion was spent for military purposes as against only $168 billion for education and $80 billion for health care.

The arms control agency now seems in process of being dismantled. A budget slash of 30 per cent will cut the agency back to $6.7 million. Division heads, all with long experience in disarmament, were asked to submit their resignations. Happening throughout government, this is a sure-fire prescription for demoralization.

MEMBERS OF the General Advisory Commission on Disarmament were also asked to submit their resignations. The commission includes distinguished men concerned over the years with the growing nuclear burden, one of them being William C. Foster, who for seven years was head of the arms control agency. Chairman of the commission is John J. McCloy, a Republican with long-time credentials in public life. McCloy has been trying in vain for several weeks to see the President and present the commission's view.

The President has made plain his intention of paring down one domestic program after another — education, poverty, welfare. But these cheese parings will not bring the budget into balance. The only real economies can come out of defense, with a total somewhere above $80 billion, including all the costly new toys for the three services. The only way out is verifiable agreement with the Soviet Union to scale back this appalling burden.

Israel's 'Free Ride' Is Ended As Attention Turns To Mid-East

Two events now combine to push the Middle East to the forefront of Washington thinking and diplomatic effort.

The war in Vietnam is at long last winding down and is already recessive in American thinking and doing.

A serious and dangerous shortage of fuel in the colder parts of the United States has made Congress and the White House more aware of the rising American need for fuel imports. This, in turn, means rising thought about the state of American relations with the Arab countries of the Middle East, which control the world's greatest known remaining reserves of oil.

THE NEED FOR TURNING attention back to the Middle East was recognized by President Nixon before the current fuel crisis developed. In the Jack Horner interview just before election day, Mr. Nixon said:

"The Middle East will have a very high priority because while the Middle East has been, over the past couple of years, in a period of uneasy truce or armistice or whatever you want to call it, it can explode at any time."

A few days ago Sec. of State William Rogers in effect warned the Jewish community in the United States that Washington interest in a Middle East settlement, dormant during the recent political campaign, would become lively in the months ahead.

He called 1973 "a favorable time for negotiations." These should be aimed at an "interim settlement" which would provide for a reopening of the Suez Canal, to be balanced by a partial withdrawal from territories occupied by Israel in the 1967 war. He added that the interim settlement should be only a first step aimed toward implementation of the UN resolution of 1967 which calls for Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories.

This intervention by the Secretary of State was the first revival in a year of the official American position on the subject of how to approach peace in the Middle East.

DURING THE PAST year, Israel has been left in possession of the disputed territories without chivvying from Washington. Indeed, instead of chivvying the Israelis towards compromise and settlement, Washington first gave Israel every piece of military hardware on the Israeli shopping list and left her free to consolidate her positions in the occupied territories at will.

One difference is going to be that Washington will be leaning on Israel to start thinking in terms of a compromise settlement with the Arab neighbors.

Another difference will be that Washington is going to be reaching actively for a true reconciliation with the Arab governments, which is more and more needed if Russia is not to obtain effective control over much of the oil of the Persian Gulf and, indeed, of the whole Middle East.

NONE OF THIS MEANS that Washington will in any way withdraw its guarantee of Israel's military security. The Israeli armed forces are backed by the American Sixth Fleet. Both are under the American nuclear umbrella. And Washington will continue to provide Israel with enough weapons to keep up its presently dominant position in its area.

But for a year Israel has had all this for free. No price has been asked or expected in terms of coming forward with a viable negotiation position. Israel has had a year to consolidate and digest its conquests and enjoy the highest level of military security it has ever known, indeed one of the highest levels of security enjoyed by any country.

Mr. Nixon was rewarded by the largest share of the Zionist vote any Republican candidate has had since Harry S. Truman backed Israel in the 1948 presidential campaign.

But now the Israeli ambassador, Yitzhak Rabin, who negotiated the Israeli-Nixon-Republican "entente cordiale," is going home. His work has been completed. The contract has been fulfilled. The time for getting back to negotiation has come.

Ambassador Rabin's successor will have to negotiate a new agreement with a Richard Nixon who is now interested more in a Middle East settlement than in votes at the next election.

Ask Not Of Your Government (Unless You Need A Big Loan)

WASHINGTON — I was sitting with Helmut Strudel, president of Strudel Industries, at President Nixon's inauguration last Saturday. Strudel had donated $1 million to the Committee for the Re-Election of the President and had flown all the way into Washington in his private plane to see what he had gotten for his money.

As the President spoke about international affairs, Strudel applauded loudly. But when Mr. Nixon started to talk about domestic matters my friend became quite upset. The President said:

"Let each of us remember that America was built not by government, but by people — not by welfare, but by work — not by shirking responsibility, but by seeking responsibility."

STRUDEL BEGAN to perspire. "It sounds like he's not going to bail my company out of bankruptcy," he said worriedly.

"Don't be silly," I told Strudel. "When he speaks of people on welfare, the President's talking about the little guy who's freeloading on the government. He is not talking about companies that get large government subsidies."

The president said, "In the challenges we face together, let each of us ask not just how government can help, but how can I help?"

"You know, of course," Strudel whispered to me, "that my company has a contract to build 4,000 gazebos for the U.S. Air Force at $8 million each. Well, since we got the order, gazebos have gone up to $10 million, and unless the government helps us we won't be able to deliver them."

"Of course the government will help you," I assured Strudel. "When the President said 'Ask not what the government will do for me but what can I do for myself,' he was talking about teachers and farmers and old people on Social Security who are always at the government trough. Contractors are not in that category."

"I hope not," Strudel said, "because I bought a $1,000 box at the inauguration ball tonight, and I'd hate for it to be empty."

THE PRESIDENT seemed to look at us as he said, "I pledge to you that where this government should act, we will act boldly and lead boldly. But just as important is the role that each and every one of us must play as an individual and member of the community."

Strudel said, "They promised me when I made my political contribution that the White House would personally pay for the overruns on my gazebos. But now the President seems to be hedging on it."

"That's just for the public," I assured Strudel. "Everyone knows big business is dependent on Washington, and no administration is going to turn its back on you just because you're losing money on your gazebos."

The President read on, "Let us pledge together to make these next four years the best four years in America's history, so that on its 200th birthday, America will be as young and vital as when it began, and as bright a beacon of hope for all the world."

STRUDEL APPLAUDED as the President finished. Then he recognized Klaus Engelfinger of the National Milk Producers League. "What did you think of it?" Strudel asked him.

"I think he could have exempted dairymen when he was talking about people doing more for themselves," Engelfinger said.

"And Grumman Aircraft," the man behind us yelled.

"And Penn Central," a man in a homburg shouted.

"Why leave out Lockheed?" another distinguished guest yelled.

"Or Litton Industries," a guest chimed in.

Strudel seemed to feel better. "See all you guys at the ball."

Regional Government Plan Flickers Anew

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A major new legislative drive to create a powerful regional government in the Bay Area will be launched this session by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond.

Similar proposals by Knox have foundered annually since 1968, but he predicted passage this time because of a new twist to the measure and because for the first time the session will run two years, giving more time to work for passage.

New to the bill will be a compromise by Knox to have the regional agency's governing board composed almost entirely of city councilmen and county supervisors. This would parallel the system at the Association of Bay Area Governments, which opposed Knox's earlier efforts to have a directly elected board.

The bill, however, would allow citizens to petition for direct election of the governing board after several years. How many years has not been set, but Knox said it will have to be long enough "to give a reasonable chance to get started and a reasonable chance for judgement on its performance."

He said he also may provide for representation on the board from the general public and special districts.

The assemblymen said the new agency eventually would absorb every regional governmental entity in the Bay Area, including the Golden Gate Bridge District. To propose absorption of that agency in the bill, however, would create too many enemies to pass it, he added.

Initially, Knox said, the new government structure would include only the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, Metropolitan Transportation Commission and Bay Area Sewage Services Agency. He termed it "a small step toward consolidation."

The boundaries of the new agency may coincide with those of the air pollution control district, he said, which would exclude northern Sonoma and Northeastern Solano County.

He acknowledged that a new complication facing the bill may result from last session's bill (SB 90) that overhauled state financing. It also required the Legislature to appropriate funds for any local program it orders, thus requiring a two-thirds approval in both houses instead of a majority vote.

Knox said he probably would fund the new agency by an additional tax on the transfer of real property, as he did in an earlier bill. The buyer would pay the tax, but only on the equity.

Using a rate of 40 cents per $1,000, as in his earlier bill, a buyer of a $32,000 home who paid one-quarter down in cash would pay a tax of $3.20.

The new agency's real teeth would be its power to veto local general planning and ordinances inconsistent with a regional plan.

A Vote Against Viet Resolution

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Sen. Joe Neal, D-Las Vegas, the only black in the Nevada Senate, cast the lone dissenting vote Wednesday on a resolution commending President Nixon for bringing an end to the Vietnam War.

Neal said, "this resolution was conceived in haste and should come up near the end of the (legislative) session when we can better understand what the cease-fire is all about. I'm going to vote 'no,' but I want you to understand that doesn't mean I'm for the war."

Neal had also voted against a resolution commending Nixon and Vice President Spiro Agnew on their inauguration.

Bill Would Lower Age For Criminals

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill making 18-year-olds adults in criminal matters has been introduced by Republican Sen. Dennis E. Carpenter of Newport Beach.

Carpenter, an opponent of lowering the voting age to 18, said his bill (SB94) would make 18-year-olds "responsible as adults to the judicial system" as they are now in the social, civic and political areas.

Group Sets Service Need Study

In an effort to find out the service needs of Corte Madera residents, a public hearing will be held by a town study group at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in town hall.

The meeting is sponsored by the community services subcommittee of the Corte Madera General Plan Study Committee — a group of citizens appointed by the mayor, Holmes S. (Pete) Norville, to provide community advice to general plan revision.

Sue Allan, chairman of the subcommittee, said the types of services and facilities to be considered include fire, police, public works, traffic, sanitary, recreation, library, emergency and flood control services, plus undergrounding utilities and cable television.

The role of her subcommittee, one of five such sections working on the general plan revision, is rather "amorphous," said Mrs. Allan, since its subject is hard to define.

"We want the opportunity for anybody to see we really need more of this, or less of that," explained Mrs. Allan, "and want interested citizens to express their views concerning needed services and facilities, both public and private."

End To Job Ban Sought In Suit By Homosexuals

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A class-action suit has been filed in U.S. District Court to overturn a decision that would bar federal employment to all homosexuals.

The Society for Individual Rights, a homosexual organization, and Donald W. Hickerson, 25, a former supply clerk for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, sued the government in behalf of all federal workers who claim they have been fired solely on the basis of being homosexual.

Hickerson said Wednesday he was fired in 1971 from his $5,280-a-year job after a routine check showed he had been discharged from the Army for admitting he was gay.

Judge Calls Bugging Defense 'Ridiculous'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — His deep-set, dark eyes flashing, Federal Judge John J. Sirica told lawyers for defendants in the Watergate political espionage trial they were "ridiculous" when they argued their clients broke into Democratic national headquarters to protect President Nixon.

Sirica dressed down the attorneys Wednesday while rejecting the request of Watergate defendant James W. McCord Jr. that he be allowed to build his defense around the argument that he spied on the Democrats to guard Nixon and other Republican officials from harm.

McCord, the former chief of security for Nixon's re-election committee, and G. Gordon Liddy, a former White House aide, are being tried on charges of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping growing out of a break-in at the Democratic National Committee offices last June. Five other defendants have pleaded guilty.

The three-week-old trial was in recess today during the national day of mourning for former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

At the close of Wednesday's proceedings, Sirica ordered the jury from the District of Columbia courtroom and called the lawyers before the bench. The black robed judge launched into a lecture, saying it was his opinion that McCord, a former CIA and FBI operative, should have notified the proper authorities if he feared for the safety of Republican officials.

"But no, he elected to take the law into his own hands and said 'I'm going to go into Democratic headquarters, I'm going to tap those phones, I'm going to bug it,'" the judge said.

"The Republican National Committee is just another organization... It doesn't have all the rights in the world. What would they be saying if the Democrats did it to them? They wouldn't like it a bit. There would be a great hue and cry."

Then Sirica concluded, "I happen to be a Republican but any decent American—Republican or Democrat—deplores this kind of conduct and you know it as well as anybody else. I try never to let the jury know how I feel but after all we judges are human ... It doesn't take a whole lot of common sense to come to the conclusion if this kind of defense were presented to the jury—well, I just think it would be ridiculous, frankly—speaking bluntly."

Teacher Strikes

Since public schools opened in the fall, the nation has been peppered with teacher strikes and threats of strikes. Teachers have not always been successful in getting what they strike for. Many school systems, especially those in the big cities are in dire financial straits. There is an oversupply of teachers. Only 17 states permit collective bargaining contracts with teachers. Pennsylvania and Hawaii are the only states in which teachers can legally strike.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the main tax used to finance most U.S. public schools?

1. Dean Jones, 37 today, is that wide-eyed actor who is best known for his seven Walt Disney films, including "Million Dollar Duck." Born in Decatur, Ala., he decided early in life to become a singer and for a time earned $3 nightly singing in a night club. After naval service, he was discovered by MGM singing at Knott's Berry Farm, which cast him in straight or comedy roles, but with no singing. He also was once a — ?

2. Charles (Truck) Parham is a well known name in jazz circles. He was born 60 years ago in Chicago, Illinois, and took voice training for seven years. It wasn't until he took the advice of Sy Oliver, taking up the bass and drums that he found his niche. He went on to fame playing with Roy Eldridge, Art Tatum, Earl Hines, and Jimmy Lunceford. He also was once a — ?

3. Arville Schaleben, newspaper editor and writer, reaches 66 today. This University of Minnesota graduate rose through the editorial ranks to managing editor, then executive editor and director of the Milwaukee Journal. He retired last year, after holding posts in the Associated Press Managing Editors and other journalistic organizations. He also was once a — ?

4. W. Somerset Maugham (1874-1965) was that famous English author, born in Paris and educated in Germany, who wrote such best-sellers as "Of Human Bondage," "The Moon and Sixpence," and "The Razor's Edge." He also once was — ?

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Bridge Would Be No Fun If There Weren't A Few Hard Hands

It's hard to look nine tricks ahead, but don't complain about it. If you never got a hard hand to play you'd soon be bored with bridge.

SURE THING?

South won the first trick with the ace of diamonds and saw that he could ruff one spade in dummy and discard another on the king of diamonds. This seemed like a pretty sure thing, so South led a spade at once.

East won with the ace of spades and returned a trump to declarer's ace. South led a spade to dummy, discarded a spade on the king of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. Then he ruffed his last spade with dummy's ten of trumps.

TRIFLING MATTER

There remained only the trifling matter of getting back to his own hand to draw the rest of the trumps. Unfortunately, dummy had nothing but clubs.

Declarer had to cash the ace of clubs and then lead the king of clubs in the hope that both would get by. Disaster struck at the ninth trick, when West ruffed the king of clubs.

It is very unlikely that South can make the slam with a 5-0 club break. But South can surely make the hand against a 4-1 break.

SECOND TRICK

At the second trick, South should lead a club to dummy's ace. He discards a club on the king of diamonds and ruffs a club. He gets back to dummy with the ten of trumps and ruffs another club. Then he draws trumps.

By this time the clubs are set up, and South can lead a spade to force entry to the dummy. He eventually gets back to dummy with another spade to run the good clubs and fulfill the slam contract.

Veneman May Return To State

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —John Veneman, undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare, has indicated he may soon leave his federal post to return to California and possibly run for lieutenant governor.

"It's fair to say that I'm looking at that option," Veneman said when asked whether he plans to run for the No. 2 office in state government.

Veneman, a former California assemblyman, told a news conference Wednesday that if he decides to seek a statewide office it probably will be the lieutenant governorship "because that's where my best qualifications are."

WAVE PROJECT'S AIM

Do-It-Yourself Divorces

By PAT PERRY

The room has a blue ceiling, gold walls and red rocking chairs. Ferns and potted plants line the window sills and a teapot sends up wisps of fragrant steam. The view from the window shows rooftops and utility wires of downtown San Rafael.

This cheerful room on the second floor of the Cheda Building is Marin's Do Your Own Divorce Center, and what goes on inside it has pleased some people, surprised others, and just plain angered a lot of attorneys.

In charge is Martha Hoffman, a 38-year-old former social worker, who lives in Sausalito and reckons being a divorce counselor is "a good feeling . . . something direct of good service to someone . . ."

The center, at 1209 Fourth Street, opened last month, and already has attracted customers from as far away as Red Bluff. The brainchild of Berkeley attorney Charles E. Sherman, it has counterparts in seven other California cities, and goes under the name "The Wave Project."

For a fee of $55, Miss Hoffman helps on paperwork for someone who has reached agreement on an uncontested divorce with his or her spouse.

The whole idea, of course, is to avoid paying attorney's fees, which average around $400 for an uncontested case.

In the bright little office, Miss Hoffman first tries to get potential clients to buy Sherman's book, "How To Do Your Own Divorce In California," for $4.95.

"I encourage people to do their own divorce completely using the book," said Miss Hoffman. "And over half the people I've seen so far have gone ahead that way."

But if the man or woman wants some help, she will give it. For the fee.

Once she's convinced that a spouse really is certain that the divorce won't be contested, "then I go over everything with them . . . questions like property and have they thought about what they'll want to do with it, child custody and support . . ."

"I make it clear that I am not an attorney, that they are representing themselves. I don't tell anyone what to do, I ask questions and they make their own decisions."

One thing she does perform is type out numerous forms needed to obtain a divorce. The person seeking the divorce (the petitioner) has to file personally the completed forms at the Marin County clerk's office, and has to arrange service of the summons on the spouse (the respondent).

The center's fee of $55 doesn't include the cost of the forms (in Marin the whole filing package costs 25 cents at the county clerk's office) and it doesn't include the filing fee of $37.50.

Miss Hoffman, originally from Portland, Ore., did her graduate work in social welfare at Berkeley, and has worked in a child guidance clinic in Children's Hospital in San Francisco, and in a psychiatric day care center in San Francisco.

She describes people using her service as "pretty well put together in that they know what they want and don't want to screw the other person. They simply want to get out of a situation they think isn't good, but they don't want to pay huge amounts of money to do it."

COUNSELING — In the informal surroundings of San Rafael's Do Your Own Divorce Center, Martha Hoffman explains to a client some of the paperwork that will be entailed when she files for dissolution of her marriage.

"The more I am doing, the more I am feeling $55 is a reasonable fee — it isn't just a matter of sitting down and typing the forms, it's a matter of relating to other people, being supportive and giving good service."

One woman she attempted to encourage to file for divorce using only the book answered: "Look, I just want to come in here and lay it on you."

If there are any conflicts in the proposed divorce, said Miss Hoffman, she will refer people to an attorney. She's assembled a list of local attorneys whose fees are considered reasonable, and has succeeded in securing "partial" consultations for couples.

"And if they're really in turmoil I refer them to consulting agencies, like family services and mental health services — this is another reason I wanted to work in Marin, there are such excellent services here."

Miss Hoffman — who's never been married or divorced — says she hasn't personally met much opposition from attorneys or other agencies.

But the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco considers that since "there is no judicial discretion involved in filling out the forms," petitioners might just as well type them themselves.

"Many petitioners find they are unable to dissolve their marriage themselves and must still engage the services of an attorney," said public relations representative Gail Harmon.

"California law prohibits any unlicensed person from practicing law. So if you do need a lawyer, why shell out the $55 to the 'expert' in the first place?"

Charles E. Sherman, who wrote the bible of the do-it-yourself divorce, said he never really wanted to get into the service. "To tell you the truth, I would just as soon someone else would do it," he said. "I'd like to see legalized divorce counselors."

The reason he opened California's seven "Wave Project" centers, said Sherman, was because several ill-organized centers sprang up offering second-rate counseling in the wake of his book.

"There is a need for some other alternative than going to lawyers and paying $400," emphasized Sherman. "The lawyers have had a monopoly over divorce for a long time and have abused it . . . The majority of cases are uncontested, but people still have to pay at least $400."

Sherman said he considers a hassle with the State Bar Association inevitable, "but I would like to work with the bar and create some constructive and productive alternative."

The State Bar Association is indeed looking into the operation of Sherman's centers.

Andrew Ritchey, chief counsel of the bar's unauthorized practice section, said the lawyers have been looking into the centers statewide "primarily from the possibility of harm that has been done to the public."

Divorce, said Ritchey, isn't nearly as simple as it appears from looking at the forms.

"Unless you see the legal problems that might be there you may waive valuable rights."

Often the problems won't surface until years after the divorce, said Ritchey, "and you'll wind up paying attorneys more in the long run."

Nevertheless, for a couple who have agreed on an amicable split, paying out several hundred dollars to make the dissolution legal is hard to take.

A San Rafael mother of two who is currently using the "Wave" center, said:

"I couldn't afford it the other way, yet my husband and I have been agreed on everything for a year now. I've been divorced before and the last time it cost me close to $1,000 — I had to pay his attorney fees, too. I'd just as soon do it myself."

Privately, many attorneys agree that some form of official divorce counseling for uncontested cases is certain to appear in California before too long. In California in 1970 at least $63 million was paid to attorneys to handle dissolution of marriage actions, and the divorce rate is going up, not down.

Service Board Probe By Grand Jury Asked

By PAT ANGLE

A group of Marin City homeowners called last night for a grand jury investigation of the Marin City Community Services District, charging that the district board "is not serving the community."

About 30 members of the Marin City Homeowners and Improvement Association, who met specially to discuss the district, also said it would ask the county administrator's office to take over district operations until the probe is completed, according to Jesse E. Berry, a vice president of the association. A letter will be sent to the board of supervisors this week, he said.

(County Administrator John F. Barrows said today he did not think the county had a legal right to take over the district's administration, since the agency derives its power from the state, not the county)

The residents complained that the district's $75,000 budget is not being spent for the benefit of the community, Berry said.

"One of the district's main functions is to provide the community with supervised, planned recreational programs," he said. "This doesn't mean simply unlocking the doors (to the Manzanita Center) to let the kids jump around a little and that's what we have now."

Frank J. Phillips Sr., chairman of the services district board, dismissed the homeowners actions as the work of only a very small group of Marin City residents, "10 or 15 families, not even 10 per cent of the community.

"Our board would welcome a grand jury investigation because we have nothing to hide," Phillips said.

He went on to say that the district's executive director, Daniel Winters, has responsibility for setting up and administering recreational programs.

"We have been complaining for months that he (Winters) hasn't been doing his job," the chairman said, adding that was why the district has taken steps to fire Winters. (The board will consider his dismissal at its Feb. 15 meeting.)

Phillips also suggested the homeowners initiate a recall of the board members "if they think we're not doing our job. That's the democratic process, so I can't see why they don't do that and not waste time with an investigation."

He said the services district board will hold a special meeting next week —at a date and place to be announced —to "answer any charges any citizen in the community wants to bring against us."

Man Arrested For Failing To Show In Court

A 24-year-old Novato man, wanted by San Rafael police on suspicion of car theft and by county authorities for failing to show for trail, was arrested Tuesday in Northeast, Md.

Danny Ray Pyles of 1318 Leafwood Drive was returned to Marin County early today by San Rafael police. He was booked into county jail to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

He was arrested on a superior court warrant charging robbery and conspiracy which was issued when he failed to appear Oct. 24 for trial on suspicion of participating in the robbery of Ralph D. Hoy, 79-year-old television repairman. No bail was set on the warrant.

A second warrant which carries a $5,000 bail was issued when he was suspected of taking a rented car when he fled east.

A Further Probe Into Coed Slaying

I-J Special Report

SANTA CRUZ — Homicide investigators were to confer today with pathologists from Monterey County to determine whether pieces of a dismembered body found on beaches in the two counties are those of the same person, 18-year-old Cynthia Ann Schall of San Rafael.

Santa Cruz police are positive that a pelvis, torso and one hand are those of the Schall girl, of 175 Clinton Court. Investigators speculate that legs, feet and two arms severed at the wrist and shoulder found on a shoreline cliff in Monterey County also are those of the murdered Cabrillo College coed, according to Santa Cruz Police Lt. Charles Sheer. Final word on a possible link was expected today.

Miss Schall had been reported missing Jan. 8 after leaving a home where she was a live-in babysitter to hitchhike six miles to class.

Insurance Eyed For Care In Doctor's Office

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, has introduced legislation to insure that health insurance premiums are paid for treatment in a doctor's office as well as at a hospital.

Moscone said under some health insurance plans a patient must be hospitalized in order to receive coverage for treatment that could be performed elsewhere.

He said his bill (SB107), introduced Wednesday, would take "insurance companies out of the position of dictating to medical practitioners where their patients should be treated" in order to receive payment coverage.

To Be Keynoter

All Students Benefitted In Cross-Age Tutoring

A pilot program last spring at Lucas Valley School in which fourth graders tutored second graders in reading skills improved the reading abilities of all students involved, the Dixie School District board learned last night.

Tests given before and after the program — which involved 45 pupils in each grade — show that both groups of students made more progress than would have resulted had they been enrolled in traditional reading programs, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

Though supervised cross-age tutoring has been used in the district before, the three-month program which ended last May marked the first time fourth and second graders had been involved, said Lucas Valley School principal Patricia Barnes, who headed the effort.

Fourth grade tutors and their second grade pupils —some of whom appeared at the board meeting last night —enjoyed the program and reported the project had their approval, Campbell said.

Some cross-age tutoring is continuing at Lucas Valley School and may be used on a wider scale in the future, Mrs. Barnes said today.

The Dixie School District board also:

FRINGE BENEFITS — Discussed fringe benefits for employees but took no action.

ELECTION — Passed a resolution consolidating the school district trustee election — at which time three trustee seats expire — with the San Rafael City election on April 17.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Feb. 14.

Mass Transit Plans Outlined

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Mass transit and clean air programs in California could be financed by gas tax money under a constitutional amendment introduced in the Assembly.

Currently the state collects about $1 billion a year in gas tax revenue and spends it all on highway-related purposes.

Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, would change that situation with his measure, which Sierra Club lobbyist John Zierold endorsed strongly in an interview Wednesday.

How To Stop Smoking February 11 at 3:00

On Sunday afternoon, Feb. 11, a group of men and women will arrive — one by one — at the St. Helena Health Center. Most will not know each other. But all will have a common purpose — to stop smoking. Join this group and you will work with our team of experts (physicians — including a pulmonary specialist — physical therapists, a dietician and clinical counselors) for five days. You will learn how to overcome the physical addiction to tobacco, how to restore lost breathing capacity, how to cope with the tensions that "call for a cigarette," and how to keep your weight in line. By Friday, Feb. 16, you should be able to return home free of nicotine and in better health than you've been for a long time. (The fresh mountain air, attractive private rooms and good food make the St. Helena experience a real rest cure.) Send the coupon now for more details, or telephone for our brochure.

If you cannot attend our February 11 session, plan to join us March 4 or March 11.

Minority Hiring Goals Questioned By Weissich

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Trustees of the California State University and Colleges are worried that the federally-ordered program to increase hiring of female and minority-race faculty members will cause "reverse discrimination" against better qualified white males.

"It's pretty obvious that a great many of our campuses, in order to meet the so-called goals, are hiring people who otherwise would not be hired," said trustee William O. Weissich of San Rafael yesterday.

"I fear the quality of the faculty over the years will be eroded."

At Weissich's urging, the trustees at their meeting established a committee to consider whether the 19-campus system should go along with the federal "affirmative action" guidelines issued last fall.

The guidelines were put out by the Department of Health Education and Welfare's civil rights office, urging goals and timetables for increasing the percentage of women, blacks, Chicanos and other minority faculty members on college and university staffs.

The results that college presidents, Weissich said, "are in the position of having the federal government hold a pistol to your head . . . to accomplish these goals you're going to have to discriminate against white males.

"We're getting involved in much the same thing as Nazi Germany did under Hitler. Then, they were asking how much Jewish blood do you have? Now, we're asking how much Negro or Indian blood do you have? I hate to see the United States involved in this kind of thing."

Weissich said there have already been "quite a few abuses" in the state university and college system.

A department chairman at one school told a faculty candidate that only those who could meet the "affirmative action" guidelines would be considered for a vacant post, Weissich said. An administrator on another campus ruled that three of 35 new faculty positions would be filled by blacks or Chicanos or else left vacant, he said.

The trustees appointed a committee of students, faculty members, administrators and trustees to study the problem and report to the full board in July with a recommendation for a systemwide policy on the federal guidelines.

Dr. C. Mansel Keene, vice chancellor for faculty and staff affairs, said his office had received seven complaints of reverse discrimination and none was considered valid.

He said that in 1971, 90 per cent of faculty members hired were whites and approximately 80 per cent of the total were males. "Allegations by Caucasion males of discrimination in faculty appointments must be weighed against these employment facts," Keene said.

Board Shifts Meeting Site

The Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District board will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the district plant at 300 Smith Ranch Road, instead of at the Civic Center as previously announced, according to district secretary Lelia O'Kane.

She said the board changed the location of the meeting since the Civic Center is closed today in memory of former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The board will discuss a timetable for expansion of the Smith Ranch sanitary plant at the meeting, she said.

Workshop On Peace Scheduled

A peace workshop will go on as scheduled at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at the College of Marin Student Building, according to it's sponsor, the Christmas Eve Peace Committee.

Chairman Alan Barnett of Mill Valley said that even though a cease-fire will go into effect Saturday, "we will not have achieved peace until U.S. planes stop patrolling the borders of Vietnam, U.S. military advisors are no longer present and defense funds are diverted to domestic programs."

Speakers will be Ira Sandperl, director of the Institute for Nonviolence in Palo Alto and Mandy Carter of the San Francisco War Resistors League. They are expected to discuss war tax resistance.

Other possible topics are boycotting of manufacturers of war materials, GI centers and lobbying for peace. The workshop will conclude at 12:30 p.m.

Judicial Group To Consider Clark For Court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The controversial nomination of William P. Clark Jr. to the state Supreme Court will be considered at an open session of the Commission on Judicial Appointments March 2.

Chief Justice Donald Wright, head of the three-member commission, announced the hearing date Tuesday shortly before Gov. Ronald Reagan defended the nomination against criticism that Clark failed to obtain a law degree.

Reagan, in Los Angeles, termed the issue "phony," and added: "there have been 14 California Supreme Court justices who haven't had degrees and 10 U.S. Supreme Court justices who haven't had degrees."

A TWO-DAY EVENT

Horsemen Readying For Big Sunny Hills Benefit Show

By PAT BALMES

Horsemen of all ages will jump fences, negotiate difficult trail obstacles, compete in equitation classes and exhibit their pleasure and stock horses at the Sunny Hills Junior Auxiliary Benefit Horse Show at Circle V Stables in Fairfax on Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 27 and 28.

English riders will show on Jan. 27 and Western on Jan. 28. Beginning at 8:30 a.m. riders will compete in 18 classes daily.

Proceeds from sponsors, entries and lunches will be used for scholarships for the Sunny Hills day treatment program. Spectators will be admitted free.

In traditional fox hunt garb Francie Gross, 23, of Larkspur will be waiting at the riding ring's gate on the first day for her turn over the hurdles. It will be her four-year-old thoroughbred's first show over fences, but Miss Gross is a hunt field veteran.

She studied hunting, dressage and stadium jumping at the Buff Camp in Burlington, Vt. A native of Grand Rapids, Mich., she rode with the Battle Creek Hunt.

Over a year ago she took time off from her University of Michigan studies to come here. She took advanced jumping lessons from Bitsy Shields at Circle V Stables and when Mrs. Shields invited her to become her student instructor, Miss Gross decided to become a professional horsewoman.

She strives to teach children not just good hunt seat equitation but the ability to handle their horses. Each "fascinatingly different" student has different problems with his horse. Some horses need pushing, some are too bold so you have to quiet them down, she explained.

She works privately with a timid young child, keeping the horse circling her on a lunge line while Miss Gross talks constantly to the child to take his mind off his fear.

When the child relaxes he is happy and has "a beautiful natural ability," she said.

DEPENDING ON the child, Miss Gross is strict and insistent that he does what she tells him. She does not allow him to jump until he has gained experience, she said.

After a fall, unless he has fallen on his head or neck, she tells the child to walk the horse for five minutes and then get back on. "I don't let them think about it long," she said.

"A horse show is like a final exam; you know what to work on. It can be fun. You do not just go to win," she said, cautioning parents not to become competitive and pressure the child. "Be there, but not near."

On the second day, Mrs. John Koepke of Mill Valley and her daughters Kathy, 10, and Karen, 8, will trailer their Western horses to the show.

They will show their mounts in pleasure and equitation classes judged as to seat and hands of rider, performance of horse, appointments of horse and rider and horse's suitability to his rider.

In pleasure classes judging emphasizes the horse's performance. In equitation competition judging emphasizes the rider's ability.

"The Sunny Hills show is especially nice for us since it has classes for 12-year-old and under junior riders. In many shows junior classes are for 17 year olds and under; the competition is a little too keen for a 10 and an 8-year-old," said Mrs. Koepke, wife of a management consulting firm vice president.

Since her daughters' horses are older and more experienced than their riders, the girls must learn from the horses for some time before they can graduate to younger horses and possibly do some training, said their mother.

When Peggy Koepke was growing up in Nebraska, her father, a physician, went into the Arabian horse breeding business as a hobby. She helped select horses for his breeding program and exhibited his horses on the Arabian show circuit.

HER SHOW horse Chazar was a sire for her father's breeding program. His grandsire, Witez II, was a famous Arabian stallion who was brought to the United States from Poland as spoils of war and became a leading foundation sire in this country, she said.

Now she rides Chazar on Marin water district trails where she once spotted a young wildcat and, another time, a mountain lion. Her favorite kind of riding is on trails with a good friend and a saddlebag lunch.

Asked to advise uninitiated parents whose children love horses, Mrs. Koepke made suggestions: first find a good riding instructor. Most have their own horses which they use just for teaching. Start a child Western or English at about 8, unless a child is around horses routinely. Lesson money is better spent on a child who is large enough to do more than just hang on. His legs should be long enough to give adequate signals to his horse and he should be old enough to make good use of what he is learning.

She said that when the child has a good basic foundation in horsemanship is the time to consider buying a horse. Make inquiries, check classified ads, take your time and bring along an experienced horseman. Before purchasing any horse get a signed statement from a veterinarian that the horse is in good health.

SHE BELIEVES an ideal mount for a beginner is a horse, rather than a pony, and a gelding rather than a mare, in good health with a good disposition and a fair amount of training. He should be 10 to 14 years old, although some older horses are excellent for beginning riders.

"I can't think of a nicer way to rear children than with the help of a well-trained and well-mannered horse. Owning and showing a horse, besides being fun, gives a child self-confidence, a sense of responsibility and the ability to win or lose with grace," she said.

Flattering

Dark skinned women can be exquisitely flattered by champagne tones of cultured pearls.

Simplicity Key In Bohan Designs

Pared down simplicity in an easy style is characteristic of Marc Bohan's designs for the Dior collection for spring and summer.

The soft shirtdress is one example, reports Women's Wear Daily, but the simple look runs in variations of the collections from sportwear to evening clothes. Most hemlines are knee or mid-calf.

New Guild President Is Chosen

Newly elected president of the Redwood Guild of Sunny Hills is Mrs. Eugene E. Crawford of Mill Valley.

Mrs. Crawford, who has been a member of the Guild for nine years, is a former vice president, secretary, membership chairman, and Ways and Means chairman.

The purpose of the organization, according to Mrs. Crawford, is "To assist Sunny Hills in enlarging the number of its supporters and in raising funds for its support."

Women who are interested in supporting the Sunny Hills program are invited to membership. The group now has 35 active members.

The guild's major fund-raising event will be sponsoring a production of the Ross Valley Players in May. Their main product for sale at the Grape Festival in October is Colonel Wellington's Chutney, made by the members.

Susan Crawford is the wife of Eugene E. Crawford, an architect and a principal of the firm Crawford and Banning, Architects, in San Rafael. The family has lived in Marin county for 26 years. They have two children, Bruce Crawford and Mrs. John Badger.

A native of Illinois, Mrs. Crawford attended Mills College in Oakland. She enjoys tennis, painting, sewing, gardening and travel.

Installed with Mrs. Crawford at a luncheon last week at the home of Mrs. Fred Drexler in Mill Valley, were members of the incoming board, Mmes. Earl F. Reinke, vice president; Jorgen With-Seidelin, recording secreatry; Van R. Peterson, corresponding secretary, and J. Ralph Martindale, treasurer.

The Soft Look

The caftan sleeved coat is one of Roman designer Valentino's new looks for summer, as shown in the Rome collections last week. It features the soft, uncluttered look, one model in white cashmere teamed with a white silk princess dress.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Sometimes The Apron String Is Held Too Tightly, Give A Little

SUE AND HELEN:

Since you're a mother-daughter team I decided to write to you instead of another columnist, because I can't communicate very well with my parents, even though I love them a lot. I really do!

See, I'm 14 and like a college guy who is 19. We have a lot in common and can talk for hours without getting bored. At first it was just talk, but after four months it's started turning to something more. I mean he kisses me occasionally, nothing else. I'm a relatively good Catholic and I would never break the rules.

My Dad and Mom (mainly Dad) said I was seeing too much of Chris, and have now forbidden me to even talk to him on the phone. Because he's not a Catholic and besides he's "too old for me."

Just before I wrote this I had another talk with Dad. He told me I was upsetting Mom to the point where she cries, and also upsetting him greatly. He thinks he has failed but, Helen and Sue, he hasn't! They're the greatest parents, just slightly on the old-fashioned side. Like he thinks Chris has taken his and Mom's place as far as my love is concerned. I tell him just because I care for Chris doesn't mean I don't love my parents, but he can't see that.

Well, you can guess, I still try to see Chris sometimes. We've decided we can wait to really date until I'm older, but what's the harm in talking with him? I hate "sneaking," but I don't think it's "sinning" to sort of love a guy just because he's five years older and a Protestant. Honest, my Dad has nothing else against him.

Please help if you can! — TORN AND HEARTBROKEN T AND HB:

Your letter shows a lot of maturity: you can see your parents' side as well as your own. When you talk to your Dad does this come through? Or do you both get uptight and say things you don't really mean?

Maybe you could say it better in another letter. . .that tells your parents how you and Chris feel and why they don't have to worry about his kind of love. Try it — and good luck! — SUE

DEAR TORN'S PARENTS:

When you give a little you usually gain a lot — especially when your daughter displays the kind of thoughtfulness and maturity that means she won't misuse your trust.

Yes, it's frightening when your teen-ager likes an "older man." But sometimes he is more protective than those in the high school crowd. Why not check Chris out and let him come to visit? — HELEN

RAP:

I'm a 15-year-old girl and my friends are around the same age. A couple of nights ago we were all in the parking lot and a cop car came around the corner. Well, they took us in and we got a small record for it.

I'm not saying we didn't deserve it as we have been chased from corners before — not for doing wrong, just for being there in a crowd.

This doesn't bother me as much as the question, "Where can about 25 kids go and not have the police called?" I guess we look like a "mob" even if we're just talking and laughing.

The cops said we should stay in and study, but can't we ever get together outside —or someplace? Do any other kids have the answer? — THE CEDAR LANERS

CEDAR LANERS:

Other kids often have teenage gathering places — either in someone's home or at school, church, skating rink or community center. With 25 of you looking, surely you can find a place to meet —but first you must find an adult group to sponsor you. Good luck. — HELEN AND SUE

PARENT AND CHILD

Grandparents Must Play A Role, Too

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Somehow grandparents and great-grandparents need to strike a happy medium between living their own lives and being dependent on their children.

Sociologists in the United States tell us that the gap between the generations — particularly for the older generation — is growing, not receding. For example, families which used to include parents and grandparents in their own homes now provide them with separate accommodations.

And with this separation, comes a certain degree of isolation, particularly for grandparents. This means that young children who are much in need of wise counsel often seek advice from those outside their intimate family.

The loving concern of a wise grandfather, meeting the needs of a troubled grandson just entering his teens, can't be dupllicated by a half-hour talk from an "expert" in the school gymnasium.

YET, TOO often, this is all a young boy gets in the way of sex education. Mother leaves it to dad, who neglects it for his job. And granddad, who could slip it into several conversations in a way which wouldn't confuse or embarass doesn't because he's not part of the family.

But this need not be. Just because grandparents are able to have their own living accommodations, and are able to spend the majority of their time with those of their own generation, it does not mean that there shouldn't be an active family relationship.

Parents may think that they don't need the grandparents around to help them raise their own children. They may even have come to this decision after considerable friction caused by too-close living arrangements. But being cut off completely from the loving concern and wise guidance of older adults is unfair to the young.

The problem of the multiple generations gap does not seem to be one-sided.

For their part, grandparents who can afford it may actually appear to prefer to live away from their families and to stay clear of responsibility for the rearing of the second and third generations.

AND MANY young parents may reinforce this appearance of aloofness by making trips to or with grandparents a rare occasion. Some even teach their children, by example, to discredit what grandmother or grandfather has to say.

Generally this type of generation isolation does not take place in farm families. The children, grandchildren, and even great-grandchildren know that "gramps" is a good source of information about how to train a horse which always shies to the left, or how to get old Bessie to relax at milking time, or how to know when a ewe is ready to lamb.

Farm children know that grammy can show them the best berry patches and how to bake a cake. While farm grandparents may live in their own homes, they generally are not so far away that they can't be called on when needed. A visit to the grandparents is not a dress-up affair. It is a natural happening, a mutual sharing of affections and concerns.

But urban life appears to create a false barrier between the generations. The argument runs that horse-and-buggy grandparents can't relate to space-age grandchildren. This need not be so.

What may be necessary, though, is for you grandparents to close the gap from your end. You must make sure that your grandchildren see more of their grandparents.

MURAL OF ambitious dimensions on far wall is called "Signal One" and is included in the wall-covering collection of Wilson's design associates in San Francisco.

DAVID WINFIELD Wilson of San Francisco works on one of the bold graphic wallcoverings for which he has become well known.

WITH NEW FOIL PAPER

San Francisco Designer Puts A Shine On Walls

By MARILYN HOFFMAN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

David Winfield Wilson is the West Coast designer who first put shine on the walls.

He saw in aluminum foil a built-in reflectivity and recognized its potential for light and bold color combinations. He remembers that he actually disciplined the polished surface into an "acquiescent ground for printing."

To do so, he first had to develop new techniques of printing, even new machinery. And in 1954, he introduced a line of wallcoverings for his San Francisco-based company, Winfield Design Associates, Inc., that added a glamorous new dimension to the traditional wallpaper field.

To assure that the approximately 25,000 paperhangers around the country would encounter no trouble in attaching the new foil paper to walls, Wilson found a suitable backing to laminate to the foil. Today one can even buy "strippable" foil paper at wallpaper stores and departments which is easily removed from walls.

HE DISCOVERED that foil, as he uses it, could greatly increase the effectiveness of a room's lighting. It could literally push back walls and create the illusion of more space. It could add verve and excitement to a dull room.

The designer's probing and experimenting never stops. A few years ago it took him into supergraphics — those extremely large designs that he made first for hotels, restaurants, and office buildings and later for homes. For these he adapted billboard printing techniques to produce his large-scale, nonrepeating patterns.

"Bold design on the wall," he says, "can accomplish two major things. It can take away the boxiness of most modern structures, and add a strong architectural feeling to a room. And since the eye has a way of looking past the wall surface into the background, it can thus make a room appear much larger." The bolder the design, he says, the greater the sense of additional space.

Dramatic design on the walls, he says, not only gives architectural strength, but takes care of a tremendous amount of interior decoration. You don't need painting nor much furniture in a room with a supergraphic on the walls, though some people have successfully used patterned foils of more subtle design as background for lots of paintings.

DAVID WILSON'S first supergraphic murals, called "the spectaculars" featured blowups — highly magnified specimens of gems, rocks, natural growths and art forms. "I entered a whole new world of seeing and encountering," the designer says, "when I turned the microscope onto a slice of Mexican agate, the heart of fire opal, the facets of a diamond, a fragment of a damask pattern."

Next came geometric graphics, called "the grand scale" and now the nine designs of "the iridescents" which are made in Kyoto, Japan, and revive the ancient art of gold leafing. They utilize as well silver, copper, and pewter leaf colors applied by Japanese craftsmen to gleaming foil backgrounds. Designs include stylized flowers, a bamboo forest, and a flame stitch called "ankara." This group, says Wilson, initiates a modern era for metal leafing, but the exquisite results are expensive — upwards of $80 per roll.

Prices for the foil printed in San Francisco and sold across the United States, as well as in Europe, Hong Kong, Australia, South Africa, and South America, are much less, ranging from $13.50 to $29.75 per roll.

Will foil fade one day in popularity? Several leading designers join Wilson in saying "No. Silver is fast becoming a standard color that always will be with us."

Meanwhile, Wilson looks ahead: "It is our responsibility to keep developing new concepts."

AT A RECENT conference of the National Society of Interior Designers, he indicated he was already thinking five years ahead. "One area that I strongly feel will soon be used as a practical wall decoration," he said, "is that of projected or electrical design for the walls."

He feels in the near future a ceiling-mounted projector will be perfected, with a high intensity light source to override general room lighting. It will have special lenses to compensate for the sharp projection angle. "It must be free of involved installation problems and reasonable in price," he feels "so that it is within a realistic budget for the general public."

With such a projector, he predicts, people will be able, wtih the touch of a button, to project scenics, patterns, supercharged colors, restful seascapes, or whatever else they prefer, onto their walls.

Another technique will "wrap" walls in action-filled color, providing visual impact along with musical background. He also sees in our future wall-to-wall television screens, which will work on an entirely new principle and on which can be projected your favorite television program, or your own program of "visuals."

The designer thinks a wallcoverings manufacturer such as he may one day be involved in programming new patterns and colors for such projectors or television screens.

THE MAN who first put the metallic gleam of foil on the wall, gave supergraphic wall designs a boost, and is now giving people the opportunity to enjoy Japanese metal-leafing, has no intention of standing still.

"I think of the creative process," says David Wilson, "as a state of joyful but constant labor pains. I constantly watch what is developing in furniture, fabrics, in new materials and new methods of construction. I try to listen for what people most want and need. Then I move into action."

Crop Of Pearls Gets Smaller

There's a practical reason for buying cultured pearls now.

Water pollution and labor shortages in Japan are creating problems for the pearl growing industry there.

Since Japan produces all the world's cultured pearls, these problems are getting rather serious.

The crop of pearls that will be gathered next spring will be the smallest in a decade, with the percentage of fine, gem quality pearls even smaller.

New Cosmetic Special Scent

A New Year's present for young ladies who can give an haute couture look to faded jeans or turn a rained-out ski weekend into the season's best: cologne spray mist and perfume in a new scent.

The manufacturer of this cosmetic that comes in a burnished silver perfume flacon and a twist bottle has put the two in a handsome silver box tied with a plush red velvet ribbon.

The new fragrance, according to the manufacturer, blends with a person's special chemistry to produce "her own very special scent."

Twin Sweaters

Twin sweater sets for girls are popular with buyers who are readying collections for summer wear. The sets and halters for children and juniors will be a strong trend for late spring and summer, according to Women's Wear Daily.

Deceptive Store Practices Outlined In Buyer's Guide

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The other day one of the supermarket chain outlets in my neighborhood marked avocados at 49 cents each. Next day, back to pick up a few items, I noted the price had gone to 59 cents.

The store had not even bothered to put up a new sign— just marked out the old price, marked in the new.

Stores lose by such erratic pricing, but they make it up in other ways, as staples for instance keep inching up despite those Nixon Administration pricing regulations.

Certainly not all stores are out to "take us". But there is plenty of deception going on in the areas not only of food but of furniture and appliances.

THE METROPOLITAN New York's Better Business Bureau (BBB) says so—and outlines some of the deceptive practices, and what to do about them, in its latest "Wise-buying Guide" series.

Jean Drissell of the BBB staff compiled the new booklet from thousands of complaints coming into the bureau's offices and from researchers in the field.

"Deceptive sales practices particularly apply to low income areas," she said in an interview. "And I'm not talking just about New York. They affect every metropolitan area in the country."

Consider the matter of food alone: the purchases take a major part of our income, whether we're low, middle or high bracket.

Miss Drissell considers first the advertised specials. "They are a great boon—if they're there," she says. "Unfortunately some stores run out of specials without giving 'rain checks' ... or perhaps never stocked enough of the item in the first place.

"When you go into a store in answer to a special, take the ad along with you.

"And most important of all, watch the checker as she rings up the sale. It's possible, in fact, probable, that she's ringing up the regular price..."

MISS DRISSELL advocates something else I've never had the nerve to do (There's that line of other customers behind me). "Ask the checker to wait until you've emptied your shopping cart before she starts to ring up the items...(so) you can watch the figures she rings up."

I have seen some brave customers ask the checker to re-total every item and I know several clever women who carry mini adding machines and tote up the total as they fill the cart. If there's a difference between their total and the checker's, they have a case.

IMPULSE BUYING is the largest consumer trap. Don't buy anything expensive on impulse. Do comparison shopping in other stores.

—Know how much you want to spend—"it's amazing how quickly you can be switched from a $99 couch to a $500 living room set."

—Avoid stores that seem to have a perpetual "last few days of sale" signs.

—In case of a discount offer, compare prices with other stores.

—And if you suspect a salesman of being dishonest, walk out of the store and go elsewhere.

Air Board Probe Unit Eliminated

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A legislative investigation of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District has been aborted by elimination of the committee conducting the probe.

The Assembly Environmental Quality Committee began its investigation of the district months ago, and last month held two days of hearings on district affairs. A third hearing was expected late this month to take testimony from the chairman of the district, but cannot be held now because the committee was abolished last week by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood.

The chairman of the district board, San Mateo County Supervisor Robert B. St. Clair, defied a subpoena to testify before the committee last month. The committee's chairman, Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-Oakland, had promised to subpoena St. Clair herself if necessary to get him to testify.

(The Independent-Journal reported incorrectly last week that the committee would continue in a reduced role as a special committee.)

A committee spokesman said Mrs. Fong nevertheless will introduce a package of bills to "reform" the structure of the district's board of directors, enforcement practices and release of information to the public. Details of the bill still were uncertain, he said.

Waste Treatment Proposal Introduced

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California would pump $250 million into construction of waste treatment facilities under a bond issue proposed in the Assembly.

Assemblyman Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco, said his measure must go to the voters in 1974 if the Legislature approves it.

Peace, Freedom Party To Eye Election Plans

Election plans for 1973 will be highlighted at a meeting of the Sonoma County Peace and Freedom Party at 7:30 p.m. today in the switchboard office at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Featured speaker will be Andy Truskier, antiwar activist and commentator on KPFA Radio in Berkeley.

Objections To Piers Are Sought

Persons opposed to construction of numerous piers and floats in Corte Madera Creek in Greenbrae may object in writing to the Army Corps of Engineers, 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco.

The corps requests the information to aid in its decision on whether to extend a joint construction permit to the Greenbrae Marina Co. and the Laguna Improvement Co.

The decision will be based on an evaluation of the impact of the proposed work on the public interest. Factors that may affect the public interest include navigation, fish and wildlife, recreation, water supply, flood damage prevention and anything else that may interfere with the needs and welfare of the people, according to a corps spokesman.

The proposed pier construction is in the Riviera Circle — Lucky Drive area of the creek.

Orchestra Piccola To Play In Italy

The Orchestra Piccola of Marin, a 27-member chamber ensemble of the Marin Youth Orchestra, has been invited to attend the 1973 Spoleto Festival of Italy, the first time an amateur group has been asked to the event.

The young musicians, between the ages of 15 and 19, also are scheduled for concerts in Rome and Florence when the festival convenes June 30 through July 6.

In preparation for its Italian tour, the orchestra plans several concerts in the Bay Area, including an engagement Feb. 28 at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building in conjunction with choirs from Tamalpais, Redwood, Sir Francis Drake, San Domenico, San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools.

Other concerts will be March 25 at the Spaghetti Factory in San Francisco and April 4 at St. Steven's Church in Belvedere.

A final performance is set April 29 at the College of Marin to commemorate the late superintendent of Kentfield schools, Anthony G. Bacich.

During the festival, the orchestra plans a marathon concert of Mozart and Haydn and a specially commissioned work by American composer Richard Cumming. The young instrumentalists also will play "La Petite Symphonie Concertante for Strings, Harp, Piano and Harpsichord" by French composer Frank Martin and "Five Pieces for Strings" by Paul Hindemith.

The ensemble is conducted by Hugo Rinaldi, director of music for San Rafael schools and founder of the Marin Youth Orchestra. Contributions may be sent to the Orchestra Piccola of Marin, 475 Montecito Drive, Corte Madera.

Ermeler Duo Will Perform

The Ermeler Duo will perform works for piano and flute at 8 p.m. Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church, 72 Kensington Road, San Anselmo.

The duo of Rolf Ermeler, flutist, and Maria Ermeler-Lortzing, pianist, will play pieces by Scriabin, Debussy, Bach and a solo by Mrs. Ermeler of "Beethoven's 32 Variations in C Minor."

Ermeler is also expected to perform "Lauda," a contemporary piece written for him by German composer Siegfried Borris.

The German artists are on their second U.S. tour. He is flutist with a German ensemble that presents concerts of early Baroque music each summer in the St. Annen-Museums in Germany.

FROM EXECUTIVE TO WRITER — Jack Gaines (right) who turned his back on his successful corporate career in Manhattan to become a struggling writer, teaches a seminar on "Changing Life Styles" at the Marin Jewish Community Center. He said he was surprised that few of his students were retirement age persons.

(Independent-Journal photo)

A Former 'Doer' Sharing His Life Style Pattern

By JEFF GREER

Jack Gaines of Stinson Beach abruptly chopped off a 25-year career as chief executive and owner of a New York corporation to live the life of a hermit and novelist at Big Sur.

But Gaines discovered the isolation was not for him, and moved to Marin County. Now he is teaching an evening seminar in "Changing Life Styles" at the Marin Jewish Community Center.

He said Monday he doesn't urge people to change their life style as drastically as he did.

"I simply point out the process" by which he changed his own life style, Gaines said. "I have the people question themselves about what they want to do."

Gaines, 54, said he had expected more of the students to be middle-aged or older, preparing for possible dislocations arising from retirement. Instead, most of the class members are in their 30s, deeply involved in professions or business life.

"I don't have one in the class who is a drifter . . . who never has really been into any field of endeavor," Gaines said.

His own story and drastic changes in life style are foundations for a novel on which Gaines has been toiling three years since he turned his back on Manhattan. His personal experience combined with what he calls a compulsion to be "a do-gooder" also figure largely in what he tells the class.

Gaines said he was "known in New York . . ." as a doer, building up a manufacturing and import business and putting paroled convicts and other supposed unemployables into productive, responsible jobs. He was divorced, then founded an organization called "Fathers At Large" to meet the need of children from broken families for contacts with men in understanding, parental roles.

"I found that I was spending more time with Fathers at Large than with my business," Gaines recalled. "That was when I first began to wonder about my life."

The crisis grew when Gaines was told he had cancer — and weeks later was told that the doctor had erred. The "reprieve" spurred the New Yorker to change his life, but the two years following were "a very painful period."

Selling his business was like "giving up my baby" and "I had to lose the identify I had" as a Manhattan executive.

"In my day, stick-to-itivness was the adage. I was a sticker — I only had three jobs my whole life — and for a long time I didn't have a boss I could resent."

Now, "change is very fashionable, and if anything it can be a trap," Gaines warned.

"I was scared of the unknown" and "comfortable with familiar discomforts," Gaines related. "I told myself, 'when I change, I'll change everything'. I seemed to see myself as a do-gooder, and I wasn't going to help others any more."

The decision led to a lonely life in Big Sur where Gaines found only "survival without esteem." He lacked the contact with people he found necessary to fire up his typewriter.

"I've got to have an input, I'm not a perpetual motion machine. I enjoy helping others. It's a selfish thing for me," Gaines said. The Big Sur episode was "the most miserable part of my life."

Back among people, in Marin, Gaines divides his time between writing and conducting "what's really a dialogue" with the class at the Jewish Community Center. The Tuesday night sessions started Jan. 9 they originally were slated for five weeks, "but I suspect they'll go on for a while," Gaines said.

He voiced hope the seminar would help show others the personal introspection and decision making required to change life styles.

"You can't just jump onto the mountain," he said.

JOINT USE ISSUE

Novatans Hail Hamilton Stand

By FRANK FARRARA

Novato residents yesterday hailed Tuesday's decision by the Marin County Board of Supervisors to reject use of commercial aviation at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Several tempered their happiness with the belief that the battle against commercial use would have to be fought again.

"I think it is great," said Mayor F. Wayne Sartain. "I think they (supervisors) read not only Novato but countywide feelings. If it went to a referendum, it would have been defeated.

"Now that this is out of the way, we can get back to working on Gnoss Field and work aviation to our advantage."

Sartain said he also was appreciative of the supervisors' change in the makeup of the county aviation commission, under which the city will recommend one member.

With one commissioner appointed by the North Marin supervisor, one recommended by the city and one at large from the Novato area, the North Marin area "will have a substantial voice," he said.

Joseph Seminario of Black Point, head of Marin Alert, one of the leading opponents of joint military-civilian use at Hamilton, said: "I'm happy, but I'm not overjoyed. With the amount of money Howard Hughes has, that Hughes Air West has, it will probably come up again in a year or less and there isn't any real way to kill it off as long as some believe heavy industry and a big airport is good for Marin."

(Hughes Air West had proposed flying short-hop jets from Hamilton.)

City Planning Commission chairman Richard L. O'Connell said: "I'm real pleased and I think it reflects what the people of Novato want."

Planning Commissioner Gail Wilhelm said: "I'm really glad the board of supervisors understood the feelings of the people of North Marin and it's nice to know government responds to local interest."

Phillip Coady, president of the Novato Chamber of Commerce, who had favored limited joint use, said the public reaction relayed to the supervisors was based on "emotional reasons."

Supervisors heard those "who are vocal and have time to attend hearings" and who were against joint use, he said.

Coady said the majority of those opposed to joint use "don't know the facts and were just emotionally against the idea of airplanes."

Richard M. Boak, president of the Bel Marin Keys Homeowners Association, said he was "very happy to hear about it," and that the association's "number one priority is to stay on top of this thing."

Guthrie R. Greene, president of the North Marin Federation of Homeowner Associations, said the decision "is heartily applauded by officers and directors of the federation," and all 12 member associations were united in opposition to joint use.

Members were opposed because joint use would create unacceptable noise and air pollution, impose additional surface traffic "to the currently overloaded highway system" and "become the principal factor in the ultimate destruction of the esthetic tranquility and rural community way of life."

In the San Rafael area, the reaction of two businessmen differed sharply from the reaction in Novato.

William Hoey of San Rafael, a real estate broker interested in development at Hamilton Industrial Park, said, "It's a shame for the county over the long haul.

"I think transportation is the biggest single roadblock in attracting both industry and companies to Marin County," he said. "I think all we really needed was access to Los Angeles. It would have made a tremendous difference."

Sam Standard, innkeeper at the Holiday Inn, San Rafael, said the motel already has lost some conventions because of lack of an airport.

Bill Would Cut Sonoma County Out Of Planning

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Another bill to transfer Sonoma County out of Bay Area regional planning has been introduced by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

The bill, SB 36, was the third annual effort by Collier to transfer ABAG to an undefined North Coast regional planning group. Such a transfer was approved several years ago by Sonoma voters when they pulled out of the Association of Bay Area Governments.

The latest version allows two or more contiguous counties to form a new regional planning district as required to received state and federal funds for a host of local uses.

Driver Reported In Satisfactory Condition

Clarence J. Faulkner, 23, of 327 Bassett Street, Petaluma, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Hillcrest Hospital with head injuries suffered when his pick-up truck overturned on Bodega Avenue near Eastman Lane, Petaluma.

The California Highway Patrol said the accident occurred at 12:05 a.m. today when the eastbound truck skidded on a curve, hit a utility pole and overturned.

Knox To Talk To North Bay Group Saturday

New state legislation will be a main topic Saturday in Rohnert Park at the quarterly meeting of the Redwood Empire Division of the League of California Cities.

City officials from Northern California will hear Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, as guest speaker at 7:30 p.m. at the Rohnert Park Community Center. His topic will be "Current Laws Affecting Cities."

Speaking at the 3 p.m. session at city hall will be Thomas Cooke of Sedway-Cooke Planning Consultants on "Current requirements in Planning and How to Cope With Them.

The meeting also will include a tour of Sonoma State College and golf at the Rohnert Park Municipal Golf Course.

Wife Of Water Chairman Files For Dissolution

The wife of Jordan L. Martinelli Jr., chairman of the Marin Municipal Water District board, filed yesterday to dissolve their marriage of 22 years.

Louisa J. Martinelli claimed irreconcilable differences and said in the petition filed in Marin Superior Court that the couple separated last April 1. They were married July 8, 1950, in San Francisco.

Mrs. Martinelli asked custody of the couple's child, Peter, 9, and support for him.

In addition to the water district position, Martinelli has served as a city councilman in both San Anselmo and Ross.

Martinelli, 48, is vice president of Bell Savings and Loan Association of San Rafael.

78 Tires Stolen From Warehouse

The theft of 78 tires valued at $2,657 from the warehouse of Brandon Tire Supply Inc., at 773 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, was reported to police yesterday by owner John L. Brandon.

Brandon told police the theft had occurred since Saturday. There was no sign of forced entry.

Bill Toughens Initiative Vote

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Initiative measures would need to obtain a two-thirds majority to amend the State Constitution if legislation introduced in the Assembly becomes law.

Assemblyman Leroy F. Greene, D-Sacramento, proposed an amendment to the State Constitution Wednesday in the wake of a November ballot that included nine voter initiatives. Under Greene's plan, four of the nine would have required two-thirds approval rather than a simple majority because they were constitutional amendments.

Initiatives which amend the State Constitution should be "harder" to approve, Greene said.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Vitamin E Has Limited Value Despite What You Hear Of It

Word-of-mouth advertising has no equal. A case in point involves vitamin E. Some estimate that 30 million Americans are taking vitamin E and, as a result, it has exceeded vitamin C in popularity.

Oddly, less is known about vitamin E than any other vitamin, yet enthusiasts claim it is more beneficial. Reports of its therapeutic value are published mainly in health store books and over television and radio. Seldom are these studies found in scientific journals.

PROPONENTS of vitamin E believe it prevents heart attacks, retards the aging process, speeds the healing of wounds and burns, and lessens scar tissue. Vitamin E is also said to cure sterility and impotency and help diabetics and hypertensives. And, it may even alleviate leg cramps. One must admit that this is a big order for any compound to fill.

The Medical Letter, an independent publication that evaluates clinical research for some 50,000 subscribing physicians had a more guarded evaluation. It concluded that, with one exception, vitamin E has no established value in preventing or treating any common disease. The exception is a bleeding disorder that developes in some premature infants.

VITAMIN E has one advantage — it is harmless, even when used in large doses over a long period of time. My wife and I have taken from 800 to 1000 (I.U.) units daily for more than a year. I feel no different, but she thinks it makes her skin softer and not so dry.

Much of the hoopla stems from misinterpretation of experimental studies conducted on animals. For example, animals fed a diet lacking in vitamin E developed anemia, heart failure, nerve damage, muscular abnormalities, and sterility. These disorders were cured following vitamin E replacement. Enthusiasts took this to mean that anyone with these symptoms or diseases must be deficient in E. Actually, these symptoms and diseases are most commonly caused by other things.

Furthermore, vitamin E is found in so many foods that it is almost impossible for humans to develop a vitamin E deficiency.

PLANING BLOTCHES

A reader writes: My girl friend had her face planed about four years ago. It cleared up the acne scars, but left a dark discoloration on the sides of her face. Will these blotches ever disappear?

REPLY

Residual blothces may persist for years, but they are preferred to the original acne pits and scars. Your friend should be able to camouflage the discoloration with cosmetics.

COUGHS AT NIGHT

C. M. writes: More than two years ago I quit smoking, but I still cough at night after I retire. What can I do for relief?

REPLY

Couth medicines will help temporarily, but you need a thorough examination of the heart and lungs, along with X-rays of the chest.

GOITER IN CHEST

G. C. writes: Can a chest goiter be removed without surgery?

REPLY

No. However, radioactive iodine or other antithyroid drugs will control symptoms if the enlarged gland is overactive. Surgery may be needed if pressure is causing discomfort.

Recycling Depot Now In Black

The Belvedere-Tiburon Committee for the Environment has learned that the recycling depot it has operated for the past two years is now self-supporting.

Pieter S. Myers, committee chairman, said revenue from sale of cans, bottles, paper and aluminum collected at the depot is now sufficient to pay the cost of operating expenses.

The report on the depot's success was presented to the committee by Robert L. Kleinert, Tiburon assistant city manager.

"The fact we are self-supporting is very mportant, since so many similar operations are not making it and are even going under," Myers said.

The depot was established two years ago with a $1,000 grant from the cities of Belvedere and Tiburon and has been operating chiefly on that money ever since.

Located adjacent to the Tiburon Sanitary District's treatment plant, the depot is open Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Myers said.

He said the committee now plans to expand the operation to businesses in the two communities and hopes eventually to provide pickup for the businesses' recyclable items.

Burglary Try Denied By Man

A Connecticut resident, arrested Monday after a San Rafael woman reported seeing a man in her yard, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of attempted burglary.

Ordered to appear Tuesday for preliminary hearing was George Smith, 23, of North Stonington.

Police arrested Smith; David Beaulieu, 23, of Westerly R.I., and John Woodrow Franklin, 25, of Hope Valley, R.I., on a nearby street after Virginia E. Buckley of 4 Aqua Vista Drive reported a man scaled her backyard fence and pulled a window open.

No charge has been filed against the two Rhode Island men because evidence is lacking, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino.

Syrian Is Killed By Bomb Explosion

NICOSIA (UPI) — Bomb explosions early today killed a Syrian in his hotel room and heavily damaged a car parked outside a gambling club, police said.

There was no indication the blasts were linked with recent clashes between government supporters and advocates of Cypriot union with Greece.

Girl Claims Memory Lapse

A San Rafael girl hitchhiker, who claimed she was suffering from a memory lapse, was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael Friday night for scratches and bruises, Corte Madera police said yesterday.

The girl told police she hitched a ride at Second and Hetherton streets in San Rafael on Friday evening in a 1963 Ford Falcon driven by a 30 to 35-year-old man.

As they drove south on Highway 101 the man asked "personal" questions, said the girl. She said she could remember nothing else until she found herself walking on Corte Madera Avenue at 8 p.m.

She walked to a nearby home and telephoned a friend, police said.

Ferry Plans Pact Wins Board Nod

A committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors yesterday recommended a $158,800 contract with a group of consultants to detail plans for the Larkspur Ferry Terminal.

The consultants, headed by the San Francisco planning firm of Braccia-Degrer-Heglund, did the preliminary plans for $134,000.

The building and operating committee also recommended spending $525,000 for an additional 15 acres to expand the district's 10-acre bus base on Jacoby Street in San Rafael. Both recommendations will go to the full board at 10 a.m. tomorrow when it meets in toll plaza offices.

The insurance committee will meet first at 9 a.m. to review expiring policies.

The $158,000 contract includes $55,000 for an environmental impact study, $36,000 to sample pollution in mud to be dredged from the channel and terminal area, $6,100 for underwater soil sampling to design the channel side slopes, $31,200 to study shoaling and an artificial barrier to limit shoaling, $10,500 to plot the channel and its shoreline and up to $20,000 for hearings before public agencies and citizens groups.

Bodovitz Named Executive Director Of Coast Panel

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO AIRPORT — Two pioneer leaders of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission yesterday took the top spots with the new statewide commission formed by voters to preserve the coast.

Melvin B. Lane of Atherton, chairman for more than seven years of the bay commission, and Joseph E. Bodovitz of Mill Valley, executive director of the bay commission under Lane, took the same slots at the first meeting here of the California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission.

The commission was created at the polls in November with passage of Proposition 20.

Ellen Stern Harris of Beverly Hills, consumer advocate columnist for the Los Angeles Times, was elected as vice chairman.

The three were selected unanimously and without opposition in the first 24 minutes of the meeting. "Democracy wins again," Lane said of the smoothly prearranged actions.

Lane and Bodovitz had guided the bay commission since its creation in 1965, Lane resigning last month to take the governor's appointment to the new coast commission. Bodovitz said he will change jobs as soon as possible.

Proposition 20 did not specify where the state commission's headquarters must be, but San Francisco appeared the likely choice with the selection of Lane and Bodovitz. Lane is publisher of Sunset Magazine.

The commission did not fix a salary for Bodovitz, but asked Lane to seek more than the $28,836 maximum suggested by State Finance Director Verne Orr. Bodovitz makes $25,000 a year as head of the bay commission.

Orr also suggested a salary range of $20,496 to $23,912 for the executive directors of the six regional coast commissions.

Lane, in a brief acceptance speech, said it no longer mattered that some of the 12 members of the commission opposed Proposition 20. "It passed, it's the law, and it's our job to carry it out," he declared.

The commission's "first job is planning; permits are second," he said. The commission has three years to draft a master plan for the conservation of the coast. All development in the coastal zone during the three years will require a permit from a regional commission.

The commission spent most of its all-day session considering interim regulations, application forms, fees, commission funding and the need for offices and staff.

Bodovitz suggested a minimum $25 fee to apply for a minor permit, but this and other details were postponed to the commission's next meeting on Feb. 7 at Los Angeles International Airport.

Using the $5 million allocated it by Proposition 20, the commission also agreed to interim allotments of up to $10,000 for each of the six regional commissions to begin operations and set its regular monthly meeting on the first Wednesday of each month. It will meet more frequently for some time, the commission agreed.

Other members of the state commission are San Francisco Supervisor Robert H. Mendelsohn; Santa Cruz County Supervisor Robert W. Harry; Humboldt County rancher Dwight May; Mendocino County rancher Richard A. Wilson, former president of the Planning and Conservation League; former state Sen. Fred Farr of Carmel; Roger T. Osenbaugh of Alhambra, owner of an insurance firm; Bernard J. Ridder Jr. of Long Beach, a newspaper executive; Ira E. Laufer of Tarzana, owner of a radio station; Los Angeles County Supervisor James Hayes, and Jeffrey Dean Frautschy of La Jolla, assistant director of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography.

Park Board Reelects Chairman

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission last night reelected Charles L. Tacchi as chairman and elected John Govi as vice chairman.

In other appointments, commissioners Norma Wall and Jack MacPhee were assigned to the program and program policy committee, Robert C. Schoen to the budget and finance committee and Govi to the facility acquisition and development committee.

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission also:

ATTENDANCE — Said enrollment in the winter recreation program is 2,200, up from 1,400 participants last year.

PARK — Said a six acre site east of the San Rafael Sanitation District plant in the Canal area will become a city park in two years, after the area is filled. It is currently being used as a disposal site.

TERRA LINDA — Announced the commission will tour Terra Linda on Sunday to study open space areas.

GLENWOOD — Agreed to study the possibility of a joint city-homeowners effort in upgrading the Glenwood School play area.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Feb. 8 in city hall.

Student Aid At Sonoma State Eyed

An unknown number of Sonoma State College students have received loans and grants without proving actual need, according to a team of state auditors.

A spot check in December at the college financial aids office — ordered by college president Thomas H. McGrath — showed it has failed to verify actual need in many grant applications, it was reported.

Specifically, the report showed that federal Economic Opportunity grants ranging from $200 to $800 were handed out to 241 students without proper documentation of need as required by the government.

McGrath labeled reports that funds handed out totaled nearly $100,000 as "ridiculous." He said the problem involved faulty administration of the office and was a matter of incomplete files rather than an attempt to defraud the government.

"Significant efforts have already been made to regularize these procedures to make sure this does not happen again," McGrath said.

He said neither financial aids director William E. Frenaye nor students involved would be penalized. "Students who are scheduled to receive EOC funds for the spring semester will do so only when their individual files have been brought up to date and verified where needed," McGrath said.

A spot check of 64 grant files showed in some cases students received funds although their father's salary was more than $10,000 per year. Auditors found that 41 of the 64 students listed themselves as financially independent of their parents, but not a single income tax return was found to prove they had not been claimed as dependents.

"For the 64 files examined, we could not find a single form which itemized all the elements of income and expenses into a computation to determine the student's financial need," the auditors reported.

One of the cases showed a student received $13,392 in aid over a four-year period, although his wife was fully employed at the time. An investigation reportedly showed the student used part of the money to make a $5,000 down payment on an $18,000 house.

The report showed files also lacked documentation showing students were actually pursuing a degree. In one case a student on aid was found to have earned 38 units of work in a five-year period rather than the minimum 60 units required by federal law.

McGrath said he expects many cases will be cleared up when appropriate documents are prepared.

He said a complete audit of the office was ordered after a spot check disclosed the irregularities.

Sausalito Art Center To Seek New Home

The Sausasalito Art Center board decided last night to begin looking for a new site for the center, preferably south of Napa Street on the city's waterfront.

The facility is currently located in the Sausalito School District's Old Bayside School, but may have to vacate within a year since the district has other plans for the building, according to Shelagh Considine, center director.

Miss Considine said the center is hoping to obtain about 10,000 square feet of land as a tax deductible gift, but admitted the group has not yet found a donor. Funds for construction of a new building will come from private donations, she said.

The board appointed members Donald K. Olsen, Jason Cristoble and Samm Hawley to a committee to seek a new site.

At last night's meeting, Miss Considine also told the board she is willing to stay on in the post of director, although she had considered resigning earlier this month because of "tension and apathy" at the center.

The director said she changed her mind on "a new public spirit around the center which makes me want to stay."

At a general meeting Saturday, members of the center elected a 12-member governing board for the coming year.

Chosen were Jack Beckerman, Carol Teten, Michael Healy, William Stevens, Nathan Jones, Judy Fraser, Lyman Emerson, Brion Fellerman, Roger Robinson, Olsen, Cristoble and Hawley.

Beckerman was selected chairman. Stevens will serve as secretary and Fellerman will be treasurer.

Reported Rock Tosser Cornered, Arrested

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A San Francisco man, who is said to have plagued Marin commuters and highway patrol officers for years with the deadly accuracy of his rock-throwing arm, was caught yesterday.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Jerald D. Calicoat, 35, who also uses 11 aliases, was caught at 4:30 p.m. after hurling a rock at a patrol car.

Sgt. James Dukes of the patrol's Corte Madera office told the Independent-Journal that Calicoat has been lobbing rocks at cars for more than two years but efforts to catch him had failed because "he's a pretty fast runner."

Dukes said Calicoat would hide in a wooded knoll at the 19th Avenue turnoff and catch unsuspecting motorists along Doyle Drive in San Francisco.

No one is known to have been injured by the rock throwing incidents, Dukes said, but windshields were broken and paint chipped.

Over the years, military police from the Presidio of San Francisco joined in the chase of Calicoat but were always outdistanced by his swiftness of foot, the CHP said.

Yesterday, CHP officers used a different strategy and cornered Calicoat in an area from which he couldn't escape. He later denied throwing rocks at cars, but several officers identified him from past clobberings.

Calicoat was booked into San Francisco County Jail on suspicion of throwing objects at vehicles with intent to injure.

Alcoa To Build Magnesium Plant In Washington

COLVILLE, Wash. (UPI) — The Aluminum Company of America has announced plans to build a $50 million magnesium plant here, which will produce upwards of 40,000 tons of magnesium annually when in full production.

S. A. Jones, president of Alcoa subsidiary, Northwest Alloys, Inc., said the plant will be built at Addy, about 14 miles south of Colville, and will employ possibly 300 to 400 persons when production begins in the spring of 1975.

He said the firm has acquired about 1,200 acres of land in the area where dolomite and other raw materials are available, and said the plant itself will be built on about 240 acres of land.

The magnesium plant has been in the proposal stages for the economically depressed community since 1967.

Milk Prices Going Up

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Retail milk prices will rise 1 cent a quart next week in supermarkets throughout California, the state Department of Agriculture announced yesterday.

The increase was authorized "to offset the sharply rising costs to producers for dairy feeds and roughage," according to the department.

Marin market employees reached today said they had heard about the price hike, but had not received confirmation.

On Feb. 1, a quart of milk will cost Marin and Sonoma county shoppers a minimum of 29.5 cents a quart and 57 cents per half-gallon, according to the state agency.

Edison In Inventors Fame Hall

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (UPI) — Thomas Edison's daughter sat at the desk in her father's library and pressed a switch. A replica of the original incandescent light burned brightly.

Edison invented the incandescent light, the phonograph record, the motion picture camera and had patents on 1,090 other inventions.

Wednesday, he became the first member of the Inventors Hall of Fame, and President Nixon has signed a resolution establishing Feb. 11, Edison's birthday, as National Inventors Day.

Ten people gathered Wednesday in the spacious room that was Edison's library for a short, low-keyed ceremony.

Madeline Edison Sloane, 84, daughter of the inventor, walked to the ceremony from her home five blocks away in Llewellyn Park.

On the library desk was a book entitled "Who's Who in Engineering—1925." On the wall behind her was a sample demonstration phonograph record, dated Dec. 12, 1925, to be played on the machine he invented.

The library is part of a complex of buildings that served as Edison's laboratory from 1887 until his death in 1931.

She read a hand-written statement in appreciation of the honor.

Public Housing Budget At $441,310

A $441,310 budget for 1973 for Marin City and senior citizens' public housing has been approved by the Marin County Housing Authority board.

Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd, said the spending program — approximately half of the agency's total budget — was approved by the board at its Tuesday meeting.

The budget includes $81,993 for administration; $169,632 for operation, including labor, maintenance and contract costs, and $77,290 for general expenses such as insurance and in-lieu tax payments.

The spending plan includes revenues of $186,306 from the federal government and $251,000 from rents, according to Shepherd.

The authority's $58,1,313 budget for its leased housing program was approved by the board in December, bringing the total authority budget for 1973 to $1,022,623, the executive director said.

The leased-housing program budget includes $432,513 in federal money and $145,800 from rents.

Shepherd said remaining revenue to finance authority programs and housing projects comes from sources like interest on rent payments and payment for utilities.

Astronomers See Star Being Born

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Three astronomers have discovered what appears to be a nursery field of stars in the process of being born, dominated by a monstrous "cold star" bigger than the solar system.

New stars appear to be condensing out of a cloud of dust and gas, known as W3, located 10,000 light years away, according to the scientists from California Institute of Technology.

Astronomers believe stars emerge from clouds of gas that condense, whirling inward and shrinking to the point where interior heat induces nuclear reactions—which power the star's energy giving rays.

Some believe planets, such as the Earth, are built from the accretion of gas, dust and other debris left over after the star begins to burn.

The discovery of "what is probably a group of embryo stars" was revealed Wednesday by Doctors Gareth Wyn-Williams, Eric Becklin and Gerry Neugebauer.

"One of the newly-discovered objects," they reported, "emits 30,000 times more energy than the sun, and is larger than the whole solar system. Its temperature however is only 170 degrees Fahrenheit, which is extremely low compared to the 5,000 degrees or more for a normal star."

The enormous "cold star" may be collapsing upon itself, compacting under the pull of its own gravity, as part of the process of becoming a normal star—smaller and much hotter, the scientists said.

Crampton's Heavy Stress In Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Bruce Crampton, the good natured Aussie who found his putting touch at Phoenix and Tucson, doesn't give himself much of a chance of making it three in a row starting today in the Crosby National Pro-Am, but he'll be out there battling three tough courses and the weather along with 171 others.

"The pressure is tremendous when you've won two tournaments," Crampton said before his teeoff at Pebble Beach, "and I honestly don't think I can win again, but I'll be trying."

What makes it difficult is that the Crosby is one of those tournaments where the weather, along with the naturally tough courses, makes it difficult to score well.

"I've always played Pebble Beach well," Crampton said, "but that doesn't mean I've always scored well. Last year in the U.S. Open here I played about as well as I can but I finished three strokes behind Jack."

Jack, of course, is Nicklaus, who won the Open with a two-over par 290. Six months earlier, Nicklaus won the Crosby in a sudden death playoff with young John Miller, so he plays the Crosby seaside courses about as well as anyone around.

While Crampton starts off at Pebble Beach, Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper, making his 1973 debut, are at Cypress Point. Rod Funseth, winner of the Los Angeles Open to launch the $8 million 1973 PGA tour, opens on Spyglass Hill.

In the Crosby format, each pro plays a round on all three courses before the cut is made to the low 70 and ties for the final round on Pebble Beach. The top prize in the $180,000 tourney is $36,000. Second is worth $20,500 and third is $12,800.

There are 172 amateurs, many of them from the various entertainment fields, in the competition, too. Each pro is paired off with an amateur and the cut from that field is to the low 33 teams and ties. The ProAm purse comes to $25,000, making the total Crosby pot $205,000.

Nicklaus, who won more than $300,000 last year, is the favorite, as might be expected. Jack made a rare start in the Los Angeles Open four weeks ago and won $4,975. He went home to rest the last two weeks while Crampton, the top money winner thus far this year with $60,030, went on to take the Phoenix and Tucson opens.

Palmer, always a popular player in the Crosby, played in the Los Angeles and passed up Phoenix and Tucson. He's picked up only $1,129 thus far this year and is without a tourney title in more than a year.

Casper, like Palmer, didn't have a good year in 1972, winning only $52,105. He's been idle for a few months now with a sore muscle in his back, but like Nicklaus and Palmer, hates to miss the Crosby.

Heavy January rains have left the three Crosby courses quite wet and soggy, especially Cypress Point, which has the most exposed (seaside) holes. Thus, winter rules are in effect, meaning players can pick up, wipe and clean and replace balls inside the fairway markers.

A PRIZE-WINNING CAR

$9,000 Worth Of Model 'A' Ford

By RON LENT

An F. Scott Fitzgerald maxim states: "In America, there are no second acts." Apparently, the great American writer was not considering the Bay Area auto show exploits of San Anselmo's Marco (Mark) Mennucci.

The 28-year-old Marinite bought a 1928 Ford Model "A" in 1964 for $250, invested nine years of work and $9,000 in converting the stock car into a hot rod, and dominated recent auto shows with his finished product. He took top honors in the San Francisco and San Mateo auto shows plus the San Jose Autorama.

When he purchased the car, Mennucci admits, "I knew it was going to take a lot of time and money." And it did.

Mennucci labored long hours at night in his home garage rebuilding the car. Among other things, he redid the body and reworked the frame. "I put in $2,000 worth of chrome plating. I designed the setup and suspension." He did everything but build the motor — a 327 cubic inch Chevrolet engine.

A mechanic at Barsotti's Body and Fender Service, Inc. of San Rafael, Mennucci considers his car "a modern day Model 'A' ". His vehicle has directional signals, hazard flashers, seat belts, and a four-speed transmission — all contemporary model vintage.

Additionally, the dark green car with a walnut brown-color interior has a 400 horsepower motor, a Corvette rear independent suspension and a Corvair front independent suspension, he said during an interview at Barsotti's.

"I didn't plan on spending so much money; I just went overboard. I spent a lot of long hours in the garage, but my wife (Patricia) was very understanding ... she knows I've always liked cars."

"As a kid," he recalls, "I was interested in custom cars. And I guess that is how I got into this. I was never really interested in racing, though I did watch it."

Enamored of building cars, Mennucci fulfilled a long-time desire by acquiring the Model "A". "I got it with the idea of entering it in car shows. It was worth the time I put into it."

As a test, he brought the car to the Strawberry Auto Show last August in the Strawberry Shopping center. "It won the award as the best car in the show," he smiled.

From that point on, Mennucci knew he had a winner — and so did the show judges. He won several awards in the San Francisco Auto, Boat and Cycle Show, Nov. 17-19 at the Cow Palace, including best street rod sedan, best hot rod interior, most outstanding closed car, and best workmanship.

His car's showings in the San Mateo Auto Show Jan. 5-7 and San Jose Autorama Jan. 12-14 were equally impressive. In the San Mateo show, he took the sweepstakes trophy, emblematic of the best car in the competition. He also won the best overall car award in the San Jose show.

Off his excellent showings thus far, the International Show Car Association member is seeking a finish in the top 10 ratings of ISCA on the West Coast. "That is my goal," he agrees, "and I have a chance of reaching it if I do well in the Sacramento Autorama and the Winternationals." The Sacramento show is Jan. 31-Feb. 4; the date for the Winternationals in Los Angeles have not been determined. He will be driving the car to both shows.

The Marin Catholic High School graduate sees building show cars as a fine hobby. "I wish more young people would get into it. It keeps you busy, and you can learn as you go along."

Apparently, Mennucci still possesses the desire to learn, because he recently obtained a 1926 Model "T" for "my wife ... It will take about three years to fix it up right, but, after that, I may enter it in shows if things work out well."

Judging by his Model "A", Patricia's car will be a real winner.

A 16-Foot Try At Indoor Meet

While most of the attention around the pole vaulting pit at tomorrow night's 10th annual San Francisco Examiner Games, will be centered around the seven 17-foot vaulters entered, there will be one particular lad aiming for the 16-foot plateau.

It will be Mark Jones, former Terra Linda High School ace and holder of the Marin County Athletic League pole vaulting record of 14 feet, 1 inch. He's now a junior at Chico State University and will be competing in the College Division pole vault, opening event of the indoor track and field meet at the Cow Palace, at 6 p.m.

Mark, co-captain of the Chico State track team, vaulted 15-4 as a freshman to set a school record, but last year, hampered by a groin injury, only managed to get an even 15 feet off the ground.

"This year he is healthy and is a determined believer that he can reach the once magic plateau of 16 feet," said his former track coach at Terra Linda High, Barry Amsden.

Amsden also passed on some news about Dan Trondsen, like Jones a 1970 Terra Linda H.S. grad and currently a junior at Chico State. He was a three-letter star (football, basketball, track) for the Trojans and will be running the intermediate hurdles and mile relay for the Chico State track team in the spring. When at Terra Linda, Trondsen ran on the school's record relay teams in the 440 and mile and was the Marin County champ in low hurdles as a junior.

MARIN AMATEUR HOCKEY Club has seen the light. Starting Saturday and continuing until Feb. 10, the kids in the hockey club will be selling light bulbs, door to door, through Marin County. They'll be selling six bulbs for $2, which will go to help buy equipment for the players and pay for rental of an ice skating rink. Why light bulbs? "It's practical," said the club's Cliff Cameron. "Everybody needs light bulbs." (Even Mark Spitz?)

KNBR'S FRANK DILL, who lives in the Peacock Gap section of San Rafael, made his second Super Bowl wager with that radio station's stock market expert, Bob Stephens, who lives in the neighboring Glenwood area. Dill lost his 1972 bet, $2, and so they decided to double it this time. Dill lost the $4 but hasn't yet paid. At this rate, figures Stephens with money slide rule in hand, by Super Bowl XXVI Dill will owe him more than $2 million.

IF YOU MISS College of Marin's big basketball game against West Valley of Campbell Saturday night in Kentfield, you can get a second chance to see it Sunday, 7 p.m., on KFTY, Channel 50, if you have the right cable TV hookup. The Santa Rosa television station will tape the Friday 8 o'clock game for its delayed broadcast the next day.

WHAT DOES MARIN tennis pro John Zwieg do in the winter? He goes to the snow to give lessons — in tennis, not skiing. The first Bear Valley Wintertime Tennis Week is scheduled for Jan. 28 through Feb. 2, and then three days later the place where you ski Bear will offer a combination ski and tennis package, and Zwieg will be providing the lessons for the tennis segment. Heading the tennis program where the courts are covered by a big plastic bubble is Barry MacKay of Ross.

THERE'S A GOOD-SIZED article by Pat Frizzell about Allan B. Murray of Kentfield and his loving group called Giants Boosters of Northern California in the Jan. 27 issue of Sporting News. But alas, as happens so often in stories about Big Al, the name comes out Allen, not Allan.

Boxing Champ Ohba Dies In Car Accident

TOKYO (UPI) — Japanese boxing fans were shocked today by the death of World Boxing Association flyweight champion Masao Ohba, 23, in a traffic accident this morning on an expressway in Tokyo.

Police said Ohba, who had succeeded in his fifth title defense on Jan. 2 in Tokyo with a 12th round knockout of WBA No. 2 contender Chartchai Chionoi of Thailand, died instantly when the car which he was driving crashed headon into a large truck in the opposite lane on the expressway.

The accident occurred near the Edogawa bridge when Ohba, traveling at high speed, went out of control making a turn, crossed the center line and crashed into a large truck in the opposite lane in a headon collision, police said.

Former WBA junior lightweight champion Hiroshi Kobayashi, who has the record for a Japanese boxer of having made six successful world title defenses, said "I cannot believe that Ohba is dead. I was a television commentator when he succeeded in his fifth title defense on Jan. 2 by knocking out Chartchai at the Nihon University Auditorium. He was a good friend of mine."

Ohba was anxious to fight Thailand's Venice Borkorsor, who wrested the World Boxing Council's flyweight crown from Betulio Gonzalez of Venezuela with a 10th round technical knockout last September in Bangkok, to set up only one world champion in the flyweight division.

Ohba, a bachelor, made his debut as a professional boxer in November, 1966 and had a record of 35 wins, including 15 knockouts, two losses and a draw in 38 bouts.

Browns Peddle Center Hoaglin For Draft Pick

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Browns today traded veteran center Fred Hoaglin to the Baltimore Colts in exchange for a high draft choice in next week's pro football draft.

Hoaglin, a seven-year veteran with the Browns, took over the starting job in 1966 and played in 69 consecutive games before an injury forced him out in the middle of the 1971 season. Jim Copeland then became the regular center and Hoaglin was unable to regain the starting job.

Copeland held the starting center's position in 1972 until an injury early in the season put him out for the year. Hoaglin reclaimed the No. 1 job briefly until the Browns obtained Bob DeMarco from the Miami Dolphins.

In Baltimore, the Colts anounced they had acquired a third round draft pick in next week's college draft for Hoaglin.

Seals, St. Louis To Play Tomorrow

ATLANTA (UPI) — It wasn't exactly reminiscent of Gen. Sherman's march through Georgia but Fred Glover won't argue.

Glover was in the coach's box as usual last night as the California Golden Seals whipped the expansion Atlanta Flames 5-2. That snapped a string of two straight losses on the road and brought the Seals only their ninth win of the National Hockey League season.

Five different players scored for California, including rookies Morris Mott, Stan Weir and Hilliard Graves and veterans Reggie Leach and Ivan Boldirev.

Gilles Meloche was in the nets for the Seals as each team unloaded 32 shots on goal.

Mott, playing on left wing in place of the injured Gary Croteau and Joey Johnston, opened the scoring with a 30-foot drive past Atlanta goalie Phil Myre. But Flames Capt. Keith McCreary tied it with a power play goal later in the period.

Weir and Boldirev scored early in the second period and the Flames could not make up the deficit. In the final period, Leach scored with a slapshot and Graves notched his 17th goal of the campaign on a rebound with only 22 seconds remaining.

The Seals come home for a game tomorrow night at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena with the St. Louis Blues.

Score by periods:

QB QUESTION

Rams' Rosenbloom, Gabriel May Meet

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Responding to reports that the Los Angeles Rams, who now have a new coach, are also in the market for a new quarterback, Rams' signalcaller Roman Gabriel says he might have to have a talk with owner Carroll Rosenbloom.

After Rosenbloom called San Diego veteran quarterback John Hadl "one of our top prospects" during the same news conference at which he introduced the new Los Angeles coach, Chuck Knox, Gabriel said:

"The only way I see it is if the Rams get a Hadl or some other established quarterback, the guy coming here won't want to unless he is going to start. And if that is the case, I've got to sit down and talk with the people upstairs."

Gabriel, who said he hasn't talked to Rosenbloom since the Rams' 6-7-1 1972 season ended, has a no-cut, no-trade clause in his contract with the Rams.

"If it comes to the point where the Rams want to trade me," Gabriel said, "I've got a voice as to how much time I have before I leave and where I want to go," he said.

Gabriel's performance last season was hampered by tendonitis in his right elbow, which he said was "getting better."

Merlo Gets Trophy

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Linebacker Jim Merlo of Sanger, Calif., Wednesday night received the Dr. Irving S. Zeimer Memorial trophy as the outstanding Stanford football player of 1972.

MARIN PREP CONTESTS POSTPONED

All Marin County Athletic events scheduled for today have been postponed because of the day of mourning for former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Redwood High School's basketball games against Drake High have been rescheduled for tomorrow (Friday) evening, with junior varsity at 6:30 and varsity at 8 o'clock. Tamalpais' games at San Marin will be played Tuesday, junior varsity at 5:30 p.m. and varsity at 7.

All three MCAL wrestling matches also have been rescheduled. Redwood will visit Terra Linda in a showdown for first place at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow (Friday), San Rafael will be at San Marin at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow (Friday), and Drake will be at Novato at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Anderson Gets 18 In Rec Cage Win

Steve Anderson scored 18 points to lead Mac Arthur's to a 54-21 triumph over McPhail's last night in San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department adult basketball league play.

In other games, Ritters Critters whipped the Sharks, 45-30, while Mazza Fuller Paints trounced BVCC, 55-31.

Kings, Warriors In Oakland Game

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — The Golden State Warriors will be uncertain until just before tipoff tonight whether they'll have coach Al Attles and superstar Rick Barry on hand for their National Basketball Association game against the Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

Unless Attles' lung inflammation has healed sufficiently — and Attles thinks he's ready to return —center Nate Thurmond will continue as interim coach player. The Warriors are 2-2 under Thurmond's direction since Attles was stricken.

Barry's left ankle was badly bruised in Sunday's game at Milwaukee and missed the All-Star game. The word is that if he's not ready for tonight, he will be for the all-important back-to-back games with the Los Angeles Lakers there Friday and here Saturday night. The Lakers lead the NBA's Pacific Division by five games over Golden State.

Barry is disappointed about the timing of his injury. "It comes at such a bad time. We've got seven games in eight nights and we play the Lakers back-to-back. And I was happy with the way I'd been playing. I was out of shape at the start of the season and that affected my whole game. I've lost about 15 pounds since the start of the season, and I feel a lot quicker and faster."

The Warriors beat Kansas City the first two times this year but lost Jan. 11 by 109-108.

The Kings' Nate Archibald is the NBA's leading scorer with a 33.5-point-a-game average. Barry tops the Warriors with 23.1.

"The Los Angeles series will be our most important so far," said Attles, "but we also have to keep in mind we have a game against a team (Kansas City-Omaha) which beat us last time we played."

Stanford Event: McKay To Speak

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Cease-fires must be in the air.

Stanford Wednesday invited USC football Coach John McKay to speak at its annual senior athletes banquet March 13 and he accepted.

After the Trojans defeated the Cardinals 30-21 in the closest game of their national championship season, McKay startled reporters with a blast at the losers.

"I wanted to beat them by 2,000 points. They're the worst winners in the world. They've got no class."

Cars Unwanted At Sugar Bowl

By CHARLIE COANE

The first chairlift on the Pacific Coast was constructed in 1938 and named after Walt Disney, first person to sink a few dollars into Sugar Bowl. Back then, skiers never complained about the facilities. In fact, they used to march through water and deep snow to reach those first lifts. That's a far cry from being driven to the bottom of a chairlift by an automobile — commonplace at most areas now.

YET SUGAR BOWL still maintains a feeling of isolation. It remains one of the few ski areas in the United States shut off from automobiles during the winter. It wasn't until 1953 that the Magic Carpet gondola was built, linking the main highway with Sugar Bowl's skiing facilities. This still presented a problem of access to and from, and long waits were not uncommon. That problem was solved in 1970 when a parallel double chairlift was built. Skiers can now park their cars in the new 500 car underground garage near the main highway and zip into the main ski area via one of the two lifts.

Sugar Bowl is located one mile west of Donner Summit on U.S. 40 — leaving Interstate 80 at the Soda Springs/Norden exit. Time-wise, it's one of the closest resorts to the Bay Area.

The basics include seven chairlifts, a gondola, T-bar, and rope tow. There are fine overnight facilities located at the bottom of the slopes. The skiing terrain runs the gamut from rank beginner to the Silver Belt racing course — one of the steepest in North America.

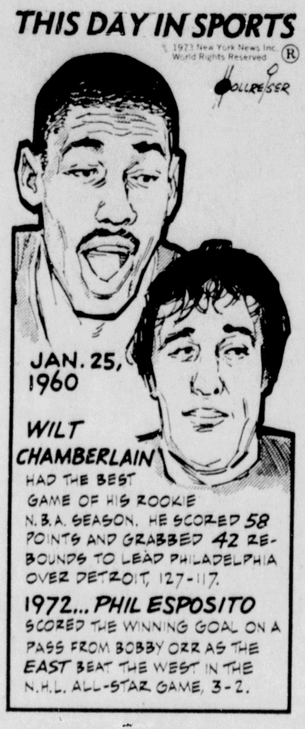
Being located next to Donner Summit, Sugar Bowl claims an annual average snowfall of nearly 40 feet.

"JUST BECAUSE we have a lot of snow," says Sugar Bowl boss Don Schwartz, "doesn't guarantee good skiing. You have to know what to do with the snow after it falls on your slopes. And grooming is what we do best. We have $300,000 invested in equipment to groom the snow and a full-time staff of experts to operate the gear day and night, fair or foul weather. We can convert poor snow into good packed powder within 24 hours."

In California, snow grooming has become quite a science because the Sierra has snow conditions uncommon in Utah, Colorado and Idaho — areas away from the warm wind and rain which may sweep in from the Pacific every once in awhile — such as it did in late December.

Sugar Bowl's ticket tab runs $8 and night skiing is available Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. Half-price rates exist during weekdays on the $8 ticket, and a number of package plans are available.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS



Coast Play: Santa Clara Impressive

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Maybe it's time for the pundits who do the national ratings to take note of the Santa Clara Broncos.

They ran their season's record to 12-3 last night by winning at one of the toughest spots in the nation.

They beat Pacific 82-76 at Stockton where UOP had a 45-game home win string snapped last time out by nationally fifth-ranked Long Beach State.

The Broncs looked as sharp as the 49ers as they fired 60 per cent from the floor in the first half and still led by 13 points with 2:19 to go and then held off a closing charge by the Tigers.

Jim McCargo and John Errecart had 26 and 23 for the losers while big Mike Stewart of the winners took scoring honors with 27.

There are some big battles tonight involving Coast quintets. The UCLA Bruins seek to tie USF's record of 60 consecutive wins when they play at Loyola of Illinois. If they win, they'll go for the record Saturday afternoon at Notre Dame.

The nation's two top scorers are on hand at the Cal State Los Angeles tourney. Pepperdine, whose Bird Averitt is firing at a 32.6 ppg clip, faces Grambling and Los Angeles State, with super soph Raymond Lewis at 31.2, hosts Texas Southern.

Washington hosts Seattle tonight while Fresno State is at Portland.

In Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference play Thursday, Whittier downed Pomona 68-63 to leave both teams tied for the lead with 5-1 marks. Pomona's Lamotta Jackson had 20 while Jack Smoot of the winners had 16 and Fred Hicks 14.

Other scores: Portland State 83 Humboldt State 71, la Verne 57 Claremont 48, Occidental 96 Caltech 49, Central Washington 57 Seattle Pacific 53, Central Washington 57 Seattle Pacific 53.

IN ROHNERT PARK

Rancho Cotate Vs. Cardinal Newman

Rancho Cotate High School's fading hopes for its first Sonoma County League basketball championship could be revitalized with a win over Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Rohnert Park.

In other local prep cage action tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, Petaluma hosts league leader Vallejo in a North Bay League game and St. Vincent hosts North Central League II rival Tomales at Kenilworth Junior High in Petaluma.

After winning its first two league games, Rancho Cotate has dropped two straight (the second a 66-46 rout by Analy of Sebastopol) and has fallen two games behind the first place Cardinals, who are 4-0.

The defending league champion Cardinals are a running team led by guards Ed Grogans and Pat Fitzgerald, who are two of the quickest in the league, outside shooter Mike Lininger and 6-foot-3 center Jerry Robinson. Lininger is the scoring leader with a 12.7 point per game average.

Vallejo (5-0) in league play) is a big, fast and high scoring team led by 6-5 Venson Washington, 6-4 Herb McEachin and guard Rick Beavers. Washington is the scoring leader with a 17.1 point per game average, followed closely by Beavers at 16.4 and McEachin, at 13.1. Petaluma is tied with Napa, Santa Rosa and Hogan of Vallejo in third place at 2-3.

St. Vincent and Tomales renew their long rivalry, but this year things may be a little different as the Mustangs appear to be legitimate contenders for the crown that Kelseyville has worn for the past two years, while Tomales is tied for fourth with Calistoga at 0-2.

Cardinals, Jets In Benefit Game

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals announced today the New York Jets will be the opposition for the 1973 Cardinal Glennon Hospital benefit game on Saturday, Aug. 25, at Busch Memorial Stadium.

The only other time the Jets have appeared in the annual game the Cardinals won, 13-6, before a record crowd of 50,372 in 1969.

The benefit game has raised almost $2 million for the hospital in the 18 years it has been played.

Most Innings

CHICAGO (UPI) —The 377 innings pitched by Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox in 1972 were the most by a major league pitcher since 1912.

McKenzie, Philadelphia Are Blazing

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Johnny McKenzie and the Philadelphia Blazers are finally beginning to make an impression on the World Hockey Association.

After a good deal of fanfare when they signed such former National League stars as McKenzie, Derek Sanderson and Bernie Parent, the Blazers fell flat on their face once the season started, quickly falling to the bottom of the Eastern Division.

But the Blazers seem to have caught on now, and by whipping the Quebec Nordiques, 6-4, last night they climbed to within three points of fifth place Ottawa. In addition, Philadelphia is now only six points behind the fourth place Nordiques, putting them in position to challenge for a playoff berth.

McKenzie, who also got off to a slow start due to his dual role as player and coach and because of injury, led the Philadelphia victory with a hat trick, lifting his goal total to 16. His first goal in the opening period gave the Blazers a 3-1 lead, then, after Quebec drew even, he scored twice more within a three-minute span of the final period to provide the margin.

In the only other game played Wednesday night, the New England Whalers moved into a tie for first place with Cleveland in the East by routing the West Division leaders from Winnipeg, 6-1.

ABA ROUNDUP

Denver Ends A Jinx On Kentucky Court

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Denver Rockets' Kentucky jinx finally ended Wednesday night after four years.

The Rockets had been unable to win a game at Kentucky since the American Basketball Association was founded, but they changed all that last night as Warren Jabali led a last-quarter surge that carried Denver to a 98-87 victory over the Colonels.

Kentucky, trailing by 10 points at the half, outscored the Rockets 25-16 in the third quarter to trail by only one point. But Jabali hit 10 of his 26 points in the final period and Denver outscored the Colonels 27-17 to secure the victory.

Byron Beck added 21 points for the Rockets while Dan Issel had 24 and Artis Gilmore 23 for the Colonels.

In the only other ABA game, Willie Wise hit a pair of layups with less than six minutes to play to lift the Utah Stars to a 111-103 triumph over Dallas.

Dallas, with Rich Jones and Larry Jones leading the way, had cut the Stars' lead to just two points when Wise hit a layup and 20 seconds later, he stole a pass and drove for another basket that broke the back of the Chaps' rally.

Ron Boone had 25 points for the Stars and Wise and Zelmo Beaty finished with 20 each. Rich Jones was high man for Dallas with 34 and Larry Jones hit 19.

The 2 Goals Of Giants' 3rd Baseman Kingman

Dave Kingman made his major league debut July 30, 1971, in Candlestick Park and within 72 hours of his arrival on baseball's big time scene he hit three homers, including his first grand slam.

Kingman started the 1972 season just as sensationally. At the Astrodome in the second game of the season, the 6-foot-6 slugger homered, tripled, doubled, singled and drove in six runs to make Sam McDowell a winner in Sudden Sam's National League pitching debut for the Giants.

Kingman finished his rookie season of 1971 with a respectable .278 batting average. He finished his first full season in the majors last year with a not so respectable .225 and 140 strikeouts although his homer total of 29 was quite impressive for a 24-year-old larruper who had been in pro ball only 2½ years.

This year Kingman has two goals. First, he is determined to become a good third baseman. Second, he is determined to trim his strikeouts substantially, under the 100 mark, by shortening his big home run swing.

HANK SAUER, batting coach of the Giants, is working with Kingman on the strikeout problem in the pro-spring drills now under way in Candlestick.

Jim Davenport, the Golden Glove third baseman of the Giants for more than a decade, is working with Kingman and giving him tips of how to remain cool on the hot corner.

"I want to play third," Kingman said simply when he reported for the early bird drills. "My ankle is sound again."

Kingman severely sprained his right ankle in midseason last year. He was out of action for 15 days. Even after he returned to duty it was obvious the ankle still bothered him. It affected not only his lateral moves in the field but his swing at bat.

KINGMAN UNCONSCIOUSLY began to favor the ankle while batting. Instead of keeping his right leg firmly planted he began flexing his right knee to such a degree that he began uppercutting the ball. His strikeouts increased.

In an Aug. 6 doubleheader at Candlestick between the Astros and Giants, Kingman tied a National League doubleheader strikeout mark when he whiffed six times. In his last time at bat that day he hit a homer.

Charlie Fox is convinced that a shorter swing will not interfere with Kingman's home run production.

"DAVE HITS THEM into the 39th row," said the manager. "If he cuts down on his swing he still will hit them into the first or second row. That's all it takes."

To help him shorten his swing this year Kingman is going to try a 36 ounce bat instead of the 34 ounce he had been using.

Canadian Grid Team Signs Coach Levy

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League today signed Marv Levy of the Washington Redskins as their new head coach.

Levy was a specialist coach under George Allen for the 1972 National Football Conference Champions in the National Football League. He replaces Sam Etcheverry who resigned in November.

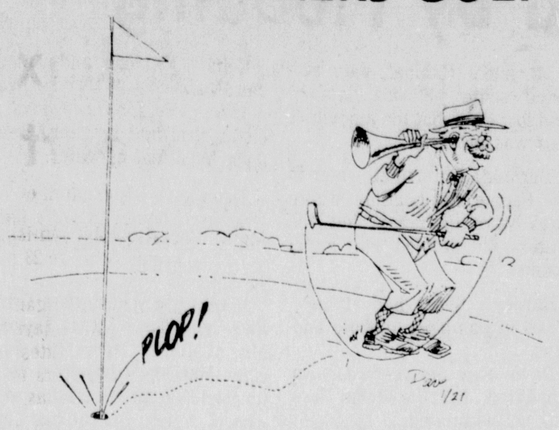
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Hit And Listen

By LEE TREVINO

After you stroke a putt, that baby's long gone. There's nothing you can do about it, so why look up? Hit it and listen.

What we're really doing is traveling 18 holes, about four miles, trying to hit a target 4-¼ inches wide. A lot of golfers get eight feet from the hole, then they try to see where the putt's going before they hit it.

Listen for it to hit the bottom of the cup. I know a guy named Punk Patton in West Texas who actually closes his eyes to putt. He said it was the only way he could quit looking up. He hits and listens.

The average player looks up to watch his ball — and pushes it. Any slight head movement changes the position of your hands. You may get away with a little move on a long putt, but it'll ruin you on a shortie.

Get in the habit of listening for that sweet little "plop" when it hits the cup. Stroke the ball, keep your head down, and listen. I guarantee you'll putt better.

Minnesota Goalie Worsley Retiring

Combined AP & UPI

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — "The North Stars have treated me well and hockey has treated me well," goalie Gump Worsley said, as he retired from the Stars yesterday.

Worsley, 43, professional hockey player for 23 years, played two full seasons and parts of two other seasons for the Minnesota North Stars. He played only two games since Nov. 22 when he suffered a hamstring injury.

Wren Blair, North Stars' general manager, said he accepted Worsley's decision "very reluctantly." He called Worsley a great goaltender and said, "I am leaving the door open — maybe I can change his mind."

When announcing his retirement, Worsley said he "felt there was no use in me going in there not feeling that I can do the job."

Worsley has played 831 regular season games — more than any other active goalie. He won the National Hockey League's Vezina Trophy as the outstanding goalie in the league in 1965-66 and 1967-68 with Montreal.

INNSBRUCK, Austria — Helmut Schmalzl led an Italian sweep of the first three places in the International Ski Federation giant slalom for men with runs of one minute, 56.30 seconds and 1:51.64.

Figure Skating

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Diane Goldstein, 19, Denver, Colo., yesterday took the lead in the school figures at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships, upsetting four-time champion Janet Lynn, Rockford, Ill.

Football

BALTIMORE — Veteran Baltimore Colt running back Tom Matte was traded yesterday to the NFL San Diego Chargers for an eighth-round draft choice.

Baseball

BOSTON — Pitcher Mike Nagy was traded yesterday by the Boston Red Sox to the St. Louis Cardinals for a player to be named later.

NEW YORK — A five-man committee from the Baseball Writers Association of America will meet here Saturday to discuss the possibility of voting Roberto Clemente into the Hall of Fame this year.

Clemente, the Pittsburgh Pirates star who was killed in a plane crash New Year's Eve near San Juan, was made eligible without the usual five-year waiting period by a special Hall of Fame ruling.

A spokesman for the baseball writers said the purpose of the Saturday meeting would be to find a method of electing Clemente, since his name was not on the ballot on which Warren Spahn was elected yesterday. The spokesman said it was possible the BBWAA might decide to put Clemente's name on next year's ballot, rather than to hold a special election for him in 1973.

Boxing

PHILADELPHIA — Muhammad Ali says he has suspended trainer Drew Bundini Brown following an alleged incident in George Foreman's dressing room after his victory over Joe Frazier in Jamaica.

According to Ali, Brown forced his way into the new heavyweight champion's dressing room and shouted, "When you gonna fight the real champ!"

"He was kicked out like a dog," Ali said yesterday, explaining he heard about the incident via news reports. "I'm disgraced and ashamed. He went to Jamaica without my authorization."

PREP SCORING

Lowey, Wright Run 1-2

Mark Lowey of Terra Linda High School and Hoza Wright of San Marin, who watched each other throw in 28 points in a head-on clash Tuesday night, have moved into the first and second spots in the Marin County Athletic League basketball scoring race.

Lowey has scored 105 points in six games for a 17.5 average, and leads the league with 46 field goals, according to statistics compiled by the Independent-Journal. Wright is a point behind and is averaging 17.3.

San Rafael's Byron Stewart, the leader after three games, plunged to sixth place with a 15.2 average. Moving up past him were John Channell of Drake (16.8), Willie Barnes of Novato (16.2) and Mike Connor of Redwood (16.0).

Connor wasn't even in the top 10 last week, nor was Terra Linda's Scott Logan, now 10th at 11.8.

San Marin remains the only team with three players in the top 10 — Wright, John Tait eighth at 13.2, and Fred Doar ninth at 12.7. Doar leads in free throws made with 28, seven ahead of his nearest rival.

Drake continues to lead in team scoring with a 66.5 average, and in average margin of victory with a 13.0 bulge. Marin Catholic, playing a time-consuming offense which cuts down the scores of games, leads in team defense with a 46.7 average. The Wildcats are the only team with a defensive average under 50, and have twice held foes under 40.

PREP NOTES

It Rained On Parade: Less Marches To Foul Line

By LEW CODDINGTON

It rained on the parade.

The so-called "parade to the foul line," anathema to most basketball fans, has been sharply reduced under the new "common foul rule," if certain statistics from Marin County Athletic League play are to be believed.

In the first six MCAL games last year, the various teams sank 569 free throws. This year, over the same time span, they have hit only 415 — a shocking reduction of 27 per cent. Assuming the players have not suddenly forgotten how to shoot, this suggests a corresponding drop in the number of shots attempted. Assuming further that the officials have not suddenly forgotten how to call fouls, one is left with a conclusion: players just aren't going to the line as much.

A "common foul" is just what the term implies — a normal foul made under normal circumstances. The term excludes intentional fouls, flagrant fouls, fouls committed against the shooter, fouls committed by a player of the team controlling the ball ("player control fouls"), and double or multiple fouls. A backcourt foul is a common foul.

In the past, a free throw was shot after every foul except a player control foul. This year, they are not shot until the bonus ("one-on-one") situation is reached. In other words, the first four are free — or the first seven in college.

The offensive team retains possession of the ball, which is often more important than getting the chance to shoot one free throw. Bob Fitzhenry, the North Bay Officials Association coordinator, who is supposed to know about such things, estimates that possession is worth 1.3 points. (If a team made every shot, possession would be worth 2.0, the value of a basket. Most teams make slightly less than half their shots, but put in the rebound once in a while.) A single free throw, by contrast, is probably worth 0.5 or 0.6, since most teams hit around 50 or 60 per cent from the line.

Whether the rule has succeeded in its other chief goal — reducing the length of high-school games by an estimated three to four minutes — is debatable. Nobody went around timing games, last year or this. It seems to me it has, but Fitzhenry says he doubts it.

REMINDER — MCAL sports events scheduled for today have been postponed because today is a day of mourning for the late President Lyndon B. Johnson. A list of changes appears on page 29.

SUPERIOR — A "superior decision," in wrestling, is one achieved by 10 points or better. It is worth four points to the grappler's team, instead of the three a normal decision is worth.

Bob Crotogini, Redwood's 122-pounder, demonstrated what the term meant Tuesday when he decisioned his Tamalpais opponent, 25-0. I wonder if there's a category for a super-superior decision.

NOT INFERIOR — One of the revelations to come out of the Section IV girls gymnastics meet at Terra Linda High last weekend, meet director Lyn Avila reported, is that schools from the Redwood Empire are now more competitive, and their gymnasts turned in good performances. Formerly, Marin was dominant.

PINNACLE — When Novato's basketball team climbed into first place Friday, it was the first time the Hornets ever rested there alone. The 1964 co-champions trailed San Rafael all year long until catching the Bulldogs at the end.

RETENTION — Since that year, the MCAL basketball title always has remained within the Tamalpais Union High School District, bouncing back and forth among Drake, Redwood and Tam.

WHO? — Tam and Redwood were the chief contenders last year, but they are hardly recognizable now. With center Darrell Elder injured, the Giants have exactly one player (Mike Connor) on the varsity now who also was on it last year. And Tam's starting lineup in the league opener Jan. 5 contained five different people than the one coach Bernie Schneider used in the Drake Summer League five months before.

Byasee Dental Laboratories Plans Third, Fourth Branches

Byasee Dental Laboratories of Novato, established a little over three years ago, is doing so well it will open its third and fourth branches this year.

Owners and operators of the dental appliances manufacturing firm are Wylie R. Byassee of Petaluma, his wife, Mary J., and their son, Bradley Byassee.

Byassee, who has been in the business for 32 years, opened his Novato store at 1305 Grant Avenue in August of 1969 when he bought out Coolen Ceramics. A year ago, he opened his second shop at 8 West El Rose Drive in Petaluma.

He will open his third store on Merchant Street in Vacaville in a couple of weeks, and his fourth in Sacramento within three or four months.

The firm provides dental work to dentists in Marin, Sonoma and the Bay Area. "I have always stressed quality and service, and that has paid off," said Byassee.

MARIN NEON CO. at 24 Woodland Avenue in San Rafael is expanding its sign-making services by adding engravings and wood carvings.

Owner Robert Bohanna, who has operated the firm for 21 years, said he has added new equipment this year to offer engravings on modern plastics and metals, and wood carvings to meet the needs of the times. He said engraved plastic signs, which come in 33 color combinations, can be used for nameplates, doorplates, deskplates, counters, directional signs, directories, badges, bulletins and plaques. The engravings are permanent because no paint is used, and there is nothing to chip or peel, Bohanna explained.

Marin Neon has provided all types of electrical advertising since 1952.

DEVAN'S JEWELERS at 1115 Fourth Street in San Rafael is conducting a clearance sale of its entire stock, and the place is up for lease, according to a large sign in the display window.

However, shop manager Stan Cabot cautioned that the jewelry store is not necessarily closing, explaining that the owner can change his mind or lease just half the store and retain the other half.

Benno Lewy of Hayward, owner of Devan's Jewelers, has been operating the San Rafael store since June of 1971 when he took over the former Gorb's Jewelers. Lewy also has jewelry concessions in Hayward and in Fresno.

He has been ailing since last March.

Businesses Hit Hard By Flooding

By WAT TAKESHITA

Storm runoff and high tides sent flood waters pouring through San Rafael business establishments along Francisco Boulevard last week, causing damages estimated at $100,000 or more.

Damages ranged from 'mental anguish and time lost" to as much as $10,000 in television and stereo shops where salt water caused permanent damage.

Only a percentage of the total loss is believed covered by insurance. For many of the established businessmen, this was the third major flood in six years and the worst they have experienced.

Of some 50 businesses along Francisco Boulevard and its side streets, very few escaped unscathed from the two days of flooding, on Tuesday and Thursday of last week.

An informal poll of some of the businessmen showed the following damages:

Floorcraft at 509 Francisco Boulevard reported a loss of $6,000 in floor covering when the entire store was covered with a foot to two feet of water. "This was the third flood in six years and this was the worst," said Manager Tony La Ruffa of Petaluma.

Klein TV, next door, reported losing a dozen new television sets and about 20 used sets, plus other equipment for a total loss estimated at $8,000 to $10,000. The firm has flood insurance.

Economy Imports in the same area suffered some $2,000 to $3,000 damage in parts and accessories. "The weight of the water broke the front window, and some of the accessories just floated out with the tide," said Manager Roger Newman.

Annex Motors at 535 Francisco Boulevard had about six inches of water in the garages, and some of the parts were damaged. Owner George Dexter said his two other agencies, Annex British Cars and Dexter Toyota, suffered no water damage. However, business and man hours lost were considerable.

In the same block, Brookside-Mills Winery reported damage that could easily run to a thousand dollars. Supervisor Tina Koziol said 122 bottles were condemned by health authorities, as several of the cases disintegrated from immersion in water, and rugs were destroyed.

Disco Department Store reported $3,800 worth of damage from waters that covered the store about six to eight inches. Manager Michael Gordon said his store has insurance.

At Leon C. Felton Volkswagen, employees reported water up to the knee inside the shop. Rugs had to be replaced but cars were undamaged. Employees estimated loss at $5,000.

Midas Muffler dealer Gene Ford said his overall loss was $1,500 to $2,000 in damages and time lost. Water was a foot and a half deep in back and 14 inches in front.

Walker Lyons of Lyons Ryan Ford reported little or no damage to cars but about $3,000 damage to rugs and parts.

Aamco Automatic Transmission, covered with about a foot of water, suffered more than $2,000 damage. The company has insurance coverage.

Mariani's Cabinet shop suffered some plywood damage and lost time, but the amount of loss was unknown.

Bermuda Palms had water in the Pepperland building, where rugs were damaged, but the waters did not get into motel rooms.

Barney's Shoes had at least $1,000 in damages to shoes and rugs.

Davis Saw Service was also inundated, but the dollar loss was not estimated.

A-1 Rentals at 807-A Francisco Boulevard had three or four inches of water inside and up to two feet in the yard. "Our planter boxes just floated away," said one employee.

At Pacific Stereo, Manager Howard Squires said his rough estimate is $10,000 in loss of business and equipment. Many of the stereo parts were soaked and must be sold at discount or sent back to the factory, he pointed out. The wall-to-wall carpeting had to be cleaned and replaced.

Celia's Mexican and American Restaurant at 1 Vivian Way had to close for three days to clean rugs and furniture damaged by a foot of water.

Trombetta Distributors at 715 Francisco Boulevard was hard hit, as cases disintegrated and bottles toppled.

Not as badly hurt were firms like Cycle Town, RAB Motors, Marin Mazda, Marin Bay Lincoln Mercury, Imported Motors, and Dominic's Restaurant, where waters threatened but did not actually invade the interior. However, these firms also suffered in time and business lost and the cost of cleaning up.

There is no accurate measure of toal loss, but if 50 businesses suffered an average of $2,000 damage, the total would hit $100,000.

PG&E Reports Earnings Gain

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pacific Gas & Electric Co. has reported that net earnings available for common stock rose to $184,235,000 in 1972.

The figure for 1971 was $167,715,000.

Revenues last year reached $1,350,613,000 compared to $1,260,345,000 in the prior year. The increase, PG&E said Wednesday, resulted from higher electric sales and higher gas and electric rates.

The board of directors declared a cash dividend for the first quarter of the fiscal year of 44 ½ cents per share of common stock.

Managers Young In Scandinavia

COPENHAGEN (UPI) —If you're young and want to become managing director of a firm, Scandinavia is the place to be.

A survey showed 25 per cent of all managing directors in the Scandinavian countries are under 45, compared to 20 per cent in Italy and 5 per cent in France.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold shares of Simmons Company (NYSE) which I bought on a monthly investment plan. Why hasn't this stock gone up in price with the market? What would you recommend I do with my shares?—A.M.

A. Although shares have not exhibited very robust market action in recent months, patience should prove worthwhile. Since 1969, earnings have moved sideways, a factor reflected in share price action. Earnings recovery, begun in the final 1971 quarter and reestablished in the second and third periods of 1972, should foster a market reappraisal this year. Assuming that the recent spurt in consumer spending continues to develop and that the rate of new construction remains firm, Simmons could reap the benefits.

Sales in the first nine months of 1972 rose 9 per cent, a rate which should carry over into the current year. With consumers buying the higher priced product line, profit margins should widen this year. Thus, a tentative earnings projection of $2 to $2.10 a share appears reasonable. This estimate also assumes expansion in Simmons' institutional sales and consumer acceptance of the recently introduced Polycel foam mattress. Gradual earnings growth on a modestly upgraded price-earnings multiple should be forthcoming in the next several quarters. Shares should be held.

Q. I have been investing monthly in a mutual fund since the beginning of 1970. The price of the fund has increased 70 per cent over that period. What do you think?—J.W.

A. You have made a very fortunate choice of funds. Over the three years, your fund has averaged 23 per cent appreciation annually. By comparison the Standard & Poor 500 Stock Average appreciated 13 per cent annually over the same period as did a speculative fund average.

As you can see your investment choice has achieved an above-average performance record since 1970.

Keep in mind, however, that performance leadership is constantly shifting and you might well hedge your position by diversification.
